Industrial development prospers at the Beach

By LEE CAMILL
Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Industrial development in Virginia Beach is healthy. So healthy, in fact, that the city Monday afternoon received $481,493 from the Virginia Beach Development Authority as payment in full for a loan extended for development of Airport Industrial Park.

Alfred W. Craft Jr., chairman of the Authority who made the presentation to Mayor Patrick L. Standing, also presented the annual report which shows that the park is approximately 96 percent occupied with only ten acres left. The major activity at the park last year as the expansion of existing business. Seven companies expanded, two companies purchased land and three new companies leased space in existing buildings. Because of office and industrial space demand, Eastern International started development on an additional 50,000 square foot warehouse and a 40,000 square foot office addition to its existing building.

According to the report, 60 businesses are now located in the park. The land and building value for the new firms is approximately $2.9 million and 65 new jobs were created.

Craft also pointed out that where the Authority in 1977 had a deficit at the end of the year in its reserve for authorized expenditures of $211,304.06, it ended this year in the black with a balance of $335,023.82.

A summary of the report shows that during 1978, the Authority, working with the Industrial Development Division of the Department of Economic Development, helped locate eight new businesses and helped seven businesses expand in the industrial parks.

The Authority has also assisted companies locate on sites other than the ones available in the industrial parks.

An outstanding $300,000 on the development loan with the First and Merchants National Bank of Tidewater was paid off. In addition the Authority has in reserve funds to begin construction of the first half of Skyhawk Circle in Ocean West Industrial Park.

Construction will begin on Skyhawk Circle to accommodate several smaller companies that have announced their move to Oceana West Industrial Park.

In Oceana West where major development efforts of the Authority are directed two foreign firms located the French firm Moulinex and a German firm named Busch, Inc. The two firms, when full production levels are reached, will offer approximately 1,000 new jobs between them.

The Lynnhaven Mall project is expected to begin during the early part of this year at a cost of $50 million.

The Authority was congratulated by Mayor Patrick L. Standing on behalf of the council. Councilman Clarence A. Holland noted that the Authority did a "monumental job" and that Virginia Beach would have had "slimmer pickings without them."

Searching for Mrs. America

Beach wife, model wins Virginia title, travels to Vegas

By PAM VANDEVER
Virginia Beach Sun Editor

Las Vegas is a long way from Virginia Beach. And the road to the Mrs. America title is a long one, too. But Virginia Beach native Regina Halme will fly to Las Vegas March 23 in hopes of becoming Mrs. America 1979.

Crowned Mrs. Virginia on Jan. 28 at the Omni Hotel in Norfolk, Mrs. Halme says she can't quite believe it's true. "There were 165 applicants in that contest. Twenty were chosen to be in the pageant."

The 26-year-old, five-foot-eight-inch blond was born and raised in Virginia Beach. Today she is a model with Charm Associates. "They backed me in the pageant, but my husband was really the one to push me."

Husband Dean works in printing and advertising with Viking Press. Add to the group of supporters 10-year-old daughter Lisa, a fifth grader at Bayside Elementary, and Mrs. Halme's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. White of Weblin Place in Virginia Beach.

"My family has been more excited than me," laughs Mrs. Halme. "You'd think I'd won a million dollars. When I was named Mrs. Virginia I could hear Lisa above the whole crowd."

She says her modeling experience was a definite asset during the pageant. "We were judged in swimsuit, evening gown and on personality and poise. The scariest part was answering the question they ask you on stage. You have absolutely no idea what they'll ask. The rest I could look at like a fashion show."

Mrs. Halme's stage question concerned a weight problem she had as a young girl. Today she weighs 122 pounds. "I eat just one meal a day," she explains, "anything I like. If I eat breakfast I'm hungry all day long. My biggest problem still is drinking too many Cokes. I exercise a lot, too. I'll be working out at the spa everyday between now and the national pageant."

In addition to straight exercise, Mrs. Halme says she plays tennis and she and her husband often go disco. See PAGEANT, page 12

City Council grants increase in Beach cab rates

By LEE CAMILL
Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Beach cab companies will get to charge fares comparable to those in neighboring cities, but City Council made a concession to all the little old ladies with groceries and laundry.

Council Monday afternoon granted an increase in cab rates from 60 cents to 90 cents for the first seventh mile; and an increase in waiting times from 10 to 15 cents for each minute. Each succeeding seventh mile remains at 10 cents.

Cabbies will also get to charge an extra 30¢ per hour for each trunk, something they have been doing without benefit of the law. A request to charge passengers 25 cents for each piece of baggage other than one handbag per passenger and 50 cents for hauling groceries and laundry, was turned down, however.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf suggested that most of the citizens using taxis for their grocery shopping and laundry hauling must be senior citizens.

Cassandra Barnes, a radio station reporter and senior citizen residing at the Mayflower, spoke up on behalf of seniors. She said that a friend bought groceries and was charged a dollar a package. She said that a cab driver once told her, "You old ladies at the Mayflower certainly worry us and you don't tip enough." Mrs. Barnes said, "I tipped him $3 and he practically threw it back at me."

Herbert Dise, owner of Yellow Cab of Virginia Beach, presented the cab driver's view. He said that laundry runs take time, because the driver has to stop, open the trunk, help with the laundry and groceries. Sometimes, a driver will have to handle 10 to 15 bags of groceries a day and the whole back seat may be filled with laundry. The driver may come out making $10 a day, he said, and as a result it's getting increasingly difficult to find drivers.

Dise also said that the cab companies have had no increase in years and are just about to go under.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said also that he is concerned about Norfolk ordinances which prevent Virginia Beach-based taxicabs from picking up passengers at the Norfolk International Airport. At present, he said, Virginia Beach companies can take people to the airport, but cannot pick them up. The policy is detrimental to both cities, said Hanbury, who plans to bring a resolution back to council next Monday requesting Norfolk to rescind the ordinance.

He said that at present 90 percent of Beach visitors come by car, but that with the promotion of the convention business, 90 percent may be coming by air.

Higher density zoning denied in Linkhorn Park

National Beach Corporation has lost another bid for higher density zoning on an approximately three-acre parcel in Linkhorn Park.

City Council denied an application to reclassify the property now zoned R-3 (1,239 acres) and R-1 (1,886 acres) to B-2 Community Business District on July 25, 1977.

In an appeal of the decision to Circuit Court last August, the court ruled that council had acted properly in denying the business classification, O-1 Office District or A-2 Apartment District zoning, but that the existing single-family detached zoning may not be appropriate. The court ruled that council should reconsider zoning the property.

On the basis of the court's decision, National Beach asked for R-9 Residential Townhouse District zoning which would allow the construction of 28 units while the present zoning permits the construction of four single-family houses.

The parcels are located at the intersection of Holly and Pinewood Roads.

Tim Barrow, planner representing National Beach, told council Monday that the adjacent property on the south and east are zoned B-2 and A-1. He said that the city has consistently recognized the fact that the property is not suitable for single-family residential development and that it is in a transition stage. The Seventeen centuries later, the question remains: 'Will you be my Valentine?'

February, a month of icy mornings, ground hog "omens" and Presidential birthdays, is also the time to celebrate Saint Valentine's Day.

Little is known about Saint Valentine of the third century. There were, in fact, two such saints by that name (some sources say three), although no one knows why any of them would become the patron saint of lovers. The exact day of the holiday is Feb. 14, Eve of the Roman Lupercalia (a romantic festival).

It was on this date that sweethearts were chosen and love tokens exchanged. Names on a piece of paper were placed in a container and then drawn in turn by every person until everyone had become someone's Valentine. It is probably not a coincidence that on this date the birds also choose their mates, according to an ancient country tradition.

The holiday began to have its share of eccentric customs. One was that the first man a woman had seen on the festival morning was automatically her Valentine. Women had to be very careful about whose eyes met theirs early in the day.

In the 17th Century, it became a common practice for married couples to have and to be Valentines as well as young men and maidens. During this time, women would receive expensive gifts such as embroidered gloves, silk stockings or fine jewelry. Ultimately, the elaborate present was replaced with the Valentine card, a handmade greeting complete with verses and drawings of hearts or flowers. This was then replaced with a printed card with lace edges or other ornamentation.

In the 19th Century, these cards became increasingly popular with an estimated 1.5 million being exchanged in the 1880's. Thereafter, they declined sharply in popularity and eventually disappeared for almost half a century. It was only in the 1930's that Valentine's Day became fashionable again.

Today, Feb. 14 is a very popular holiday with a card, flowers and candy considered conventional gifts for one's loved one. The day also continues to have special appeal for children which was true from its early beginnings seventeen centuries ago.

Through the centuries, Valentine's Day remains an occasion for expressions of love and caring... a celebration of the romantic spirit in everyone.

Roma Lodge plans Valentine dinner dance

Roma Lodge #254, Sons of Italy will hold a Valentine Dinner Dance on Saturday, Feb. 10, at the Club House, 3097 Magic Hollow Boulevard. Steamship Round Dinner begins at 7:30 p.m., dancing 9:30 to 12:30 with music by "The Shadows". Call 468-2029 for reservations.

Chesapeake Beach women meet

The Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach will meet Tuesday, Feb. 13, at Fantastic Fenwick's, Witchduck Road. The business meeting will begin at 11 a.m. with lunch at 12 noon.

Guest speaker will be Benjamin Moore, Clean Community Coordinator. Edwin Clay, Assistant City Manager, will also be a guest. The club will present a check in the amount of $25 to him to be used for the "Plant-A-Tree" program.

Beach PTA council attends Founders' Day meeting

The Virginia Beach PTA Council will hold its annual Founders' Day Meeting on Thursday, Feb. 15, at 8 p.m. at Kellam High School. Members will honor past council presidents. Guest speaker for the meeting will be Solomon Carey, regional vice-president of PTA.

Hospital offers free screening for coronary risk factors

A free screening for coronary risk factors will be conducted by General Hospital of Virginia Beach on Sunday, Feb. 11 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Any adult may call 481-8181 to make a reservation. Hospital personnel advise calling early, judging from overwhelming response last year. Hours for calling are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays.

Each participant should plan to spend one hour at the hospital. The program includes height, weight and blood pressure checks; a fitness test on a special exercise bicycle; and a film on risk factors. Those who do not eat or drink for 12 hours before their appointments may have blood drawn for a blood sugar test and two tests for blood fats — cholesterol and triglycerides. Participants and their private physicians will be advised by mail of the test results.

Extension services offer courses

The Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture/Cooperative Extension Services has just finished planning their programs for the winter and spring sessions. A variety of programs are being offered, from workshops to lessons by mail. The Consumer's Corner will include such topics as "Boning up on Seafood," "What's New in Fabrics and Notions," and "Wills, Taxes and Inheritance." A "How To" series on home improvements will include Simple Home Repairs; Window Treatments, Drapery Making, Pointers on Painting and Wallpapering and Home Furnishings: Dollar Saving Ideas.

Six sessions on parenting will be offered to help improve family relations. A variety of programs at several locations and times on "How to Can and Freeze without Killing Yourself" will also be offered as well as classes offered by the horticulture staff.

For information regarding these services pick up a brochure at any of the Virginia Beach branch libraries or call the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture/Cooperative Extension Service at 427-4611.

Jazz classes begin this week

The Tidewater Ballet Association is giving master classes in jazz on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 10:30 to 12 at their 3222 Tidewater Drive location beginning Feb. 8.

The class is being taught by Ric Salinas associate teacher of Luigi Dance Center, New York City. Classes for beginner adults are on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. Teenagers meet on Tuesday evenings 8-9 and professionals on Friday evenings 6:30 to 7:30.

Officers wives set luncheon date

The Amphibious Officers Wives' Club will hold a luncheon on Feb. 14, with cocktails at 11 a.m. and lunch at noon, in the Pleasure House Room of the Little Creek Officers Club. A representative from Hiram Walker will present a program on cooking with cordials. Husbands are invited. Reservations must be made through Key Callers by Feb. 9.

Solo selection

Monique McCloud, age 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. McCloud of Virginia Beach, has been selected to dance the romantic Russian Pas de Deux, Spring Water for the Chrysler Museum Gala Feb. 10 and 11. Ms. McCloud, who recently danced as a soloist with the Richmond Dance Invitational, has also been asked to audition in Washington, D.C. for a summer scholarship at the School of American Ballet. She is a student of Teresa Martinez, Virginia Beach teacher, and Cane Hammott, Susan Berree, Patricia Sorrell and Ric Salinas of the Academy of the Tidewater Ballet. Tickets are now on sale at the museum for the Chrysler Museum Gala.

VWC sponsors meditation course

A two week intensive seminar on meditation, mysticism and reincarnation will be offered free of charge to the public at Virginia Wesleyan College this month. The course will be held on consecutive Saturdays, Feb. 10 and 17, 7:30 p.m. in room 203 Hofheimer Library. It will be taught by Rudra Tamm, who has studied under the Indian mystic Sri Chinmoy for ten years. Tamm, an attorney, has given similar courses at Johns Hopkins, Brown University and the Universities of Maine, Connecticut and Delaware. He does not charge for his instruction and pays his own expenses.

The course will explore in depth meditation, concentration, reincarnation and will include a session on how to select a Guru. Practical instruction in specific meditation techniques will be emphasized. No prerequisite is required.

Linkhorn Park Garden Club plans park entrance dedication

Several members of the Linkhorn Park Garden Club met recently to landscape and beautify the new entrance to Linkhorn Park. The entrance is located at Linkhorn Drive and Holly Road and is the current project of the club. Funds to erect the white brick columns were raised by a continuing Bridge Marathon sponsored by the group, and from contributions from other Linkhorn Park residents.

The club will dedicate the entrance this week to the late Mrs. James U. Goode, one of its founders and the first president of the club. The dedication ceremony will take place Saturday, Feb. 10 at 1 p.m. All residents of Linkhorn Park are invited to attend. Rain date is the following Saturday.

Queen, princess to be crowned at Valentine dance

Judges are Charles Bashara, Carl Barefoot, Meyera Oberdorf and Ester Ferris.

The eighteen candidates competing from the various chapters are: Jean Brown, Preceptor Alpha Alpha; Vivian Jeter, Xi Alpha Epsilon; Cheryl Brickner, Xi Alpha Lambda; Carroll Overbey, Xi Alpha Mu; Kathy Kerr, Alpha Rho; Ronnie Wills, Xi Alpha Zeta; Aurora Tisdale, Xi Beta Lambda; Marsha Schwieder, Alpha Rho; Debbie Belote, Beta Alpha; Louise Hayes, Beta Mu; Carol Edney, Beta Omega; Gail Maciejewski, Beta Psi; Odessa Weston, Delta Beta; Susan Albright, Eta Iota; Judy Nozzarella, Gamma Gamma; Sharon Snead, Zeta; Linda Smith, Zeta Kappa; and Susan Caudle, Phi Beta Psi.

Children of the American Revolution hold 52nd annual state conference

The fifty-second annual state conference of the Children of the American Revolution will be held on Feb. 9, 10 and 11 at the original Cavalier Hotel in Virginia Beach. State president John David Huddleston and senior state president Mrs. Clarence James Smith will officiate over the proceedings.

Children will come from all over Virginia to be greeted by the host societies: Moore House, Cavalier, Old Cannon Ball, Lt. Pascoe Herbert, Miles Cary, and Battle of the Barges.

Members will visit Lynnhaven House for a special tour Feb. 10. The tour is especially meaningful to the C.A.R., since the Freedom Hill, Washington-Lee, Falls Church, Bristol Parish, Moore House, Cavalier and Old Cannon Ball chapters cleaned up the grave yard, painted wrought iron, and cleaned the grounds around Lynnhaven House last September. The site was the 1798 Virginia Society State Project.

Children have been active in their communities throughout the year. Surgeon Lawrence Brooke Society gave the floral wreath at the dedication of the headstone of General George Weedon, decorated the city's library Christmas tree and participated in the Christmas Open House at Kemore.

The Dick Anderson Society participated in the naturalization ceremony for new U.S. citizens. Washington-Lee Society took a Canal Clipper mule drawn cruise down the C&O Canal. Freedom Hill Society studied the operations of the Washington National Airport from the control tower to baggage handling.

Lt. Pascoe Herbert Society is helping with the restoration of the Herbert House which is 225 years old. Cavalier Society has made an anti-litter scrapbook for the Virginia Beach Clean Community Systems. The scrapbook will be displayed throughout the city.

The Virginia Beach Neptune Festival Annual "Hoedown", featuring country music and dancing has been scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 24 from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Virginia Beach Dome. Special entertainment will be provided by the Dixie Squares and the nationally famous Flatland Cloggers. Tickets are $5. Dress is western or casual. Refreshments will be available.

Prizes will be awarded for such categories as "best dressed farmer" and "worst country dancer". This is the first of the Neptune "pre-festival" events for 1979. The hoedown has always been a sell-out, so get your tickets right away. Tickets are available at the Virginia Beach Dome and the Neptune Festival Office at Pembroke Mall Chamber of Commerce. For further information call 490-3129.

Committee holds public hearing

The Virginia Beach Housing and Community Development Citizens Advisory Committee will hold a public hearing on the City's Fifth Program Year Application on Monday, Feb. 12. The hearing will be held at 2 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, Administration Building, Princess Anne Municipal Center.

The Citizens Advisory Committee has held public hearings in January, 1979, and has developed a list of proposed activities for the Fifth Program Year Application. For additional information contact the grant's office at 427-4721.

Soil testing service available

The Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture offers a vegetable garden soil testing service. If residents want their soil tested for this growing season, they should submit soil samples immediately.

Soil samples can be left at any of the five branches of the public libraries or the Department of Agriculture/Horticulture Office at Princess Anne Municipal Center.

Clinic designed to help smokers kick the habit

Have you found kicking the cigarette habit more difficult than you thought? The adult services unit of the Virginia Beach Recreation Center has scheduled a smokers clinic in cooperation with the Virginia Lung Association for Feb. 8 at 7:30 p.m. Richard Bowman from the association, will lead a discussion and slide presentation on the effects of smoking on the body.

The clinic is being held at no charge to the participants. For further information contact the adult services unit at the recreation center, 499-1281.

NAS Oceana observes Black History week

Black History Week will be observed at the Naval Air Station Oceana Feb. 11-17. A program entitled "Black Truth" will be presented at the base theater at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 12, and is designed as a variety show acknowledging blacks for their contributions to American society.

A black fashion show and readings from black poetry and prose will be included during the week's activities. The NAS Oceana library will highlight books written by black authors and about black people. For more information call Airman Claude Fletcher Jr. at 425-3502.

ICF conducts cheering clinic

The gymnasium at Independence Junior High will be the scene of the annual Regional School Spirit Clinic on Saturday, Feb. 24. The event is one of a series of national clinics conducted by professional teachers from the International Cheerleading Foundation. The ICF will provide a full day of new cheers and spirit-boosting activities.

The event is open to all junior and senior high school cheerleaders and will feature instruction in cheer material and technique. A highlight of the one-day event will be an evaluation session where any squad present can receive written scoring on their cheers.

Students interested in attending the clinic may register with Mrs. Phyllis Bradley at Independence Junior High School, 460-1108. The cost is $4 per person. Faculty sponsors and chaperones may attend without charge.

Business women plan Boss Night

Tidewater chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold its annual Boss Night on Feb. 12, with the social hour at 6 p.m. in the Mayfair Room at the Admiralty Motel. Dinner will be at 6:30 p.m. This meeting will also be the citizenship month meeting.

Guest speaker will be H. Lee Marchant, division manager, market sales for C & P Telephone Company. He will speak on "Personal Communications." Vocational speaker will be the club's Woman of the Year, Gayle Colley. The C & P Glee Club will furnish entertainment.

Backyard orchards discussed

The Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture will conduct a two hour class on the backyard orchard on Thursday, Feb. 15. The class will be held at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center from 9:30 a.m.-12 noon and 7-9:30 p.m. The class will be conducted by extension horticulturist Randy Jackson who will discuss basic establishment and maintenance of the home orchard and the best varieties of tree and small fruit for Tidewater.

There is a $1 registration fee. To register or for additional information contact the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture/Cooperative Extension Services at 427-4611.

Give a Valentine gift from the heart

The American Association of Medical Assistants, Virginia Beach chapter, will sponsor a Bloodmobile in the North Wing Lounge of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach on Feb. 13, from 1-7 p.m. Because of the critical shortage of blood in this area, Medical Assistants is setting a goal of 150 pints.

That Seafood Place and the Western Sizzlin Steak House will give gift certificates to all who donate a pint of blood.

Council opposes #804

Virginia Beach City Council has gone on record as opposing Senate Bill 804 because it would "severely weaken the ability of the Board of Zoning Appeals to properly deal with variances presented to that body."

Under the proposed bill, considered by a Senate Committee Tuesday, a petitioner does not have to demonstrate any hardship, but has to show merely inconvenience.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the change is contrary for the reason for the board.

If the Coastal Protection legislation (SB403) is not passed, Hanbury added, the localities would have to pass their own ordinances for which the board would be the appeals agency. A weakened appeals agency would weaken the purposes of the any local coastal protection ordinance, he said.

Hanbury also announced that the coastal protection bill was out of committee and before the full Senate.

Council Monday approved a resolution opposing SB804. Last week council, by a vote of six "ayes" and five abstentions approved a resolution supporting the Coastal Protection legislation.

Kempsville High School Band represents Virginia in Festival of States

Governor John Dalton has named the Kempsville High School Band as the official representative of the State of Virginia at the famed Festival of States (springtime celebration in St. Petersburg, Florida, March 26 through April 7).

Kempsville's award winning band, which was invited to participate in the 58th annual festival, will be competing with bands representing 20 other states during the two weeks of festivities that annually star more than three thousand teenagers.

The Virginia Beach band will be competing for the three top festival awards: the Governor's Cup, awarded annually to the best out-of-state band in the famed Parade of States, viewed last year by more than 300,000 spectators; the Mayor's Trophy, which goes each year to the best out-of-state band in the popular standing room only Champions on Parade, a three-hour nighttime extravaganza; and the Heart of St. Petersburg Plaque, presented to the band whose members "win the heart of the city" by promoting goodwill between their home state and the people of the Sunshine State.

As honored guests of the 58th annual festival, the Kempsville Band will be almost constantly in the limelight performing at various service and civic clubs, in churches, hotels and at St. Petersburg's downtown bandshell in Williams Park. In their spare time, the bandmembers will get a chance to visit Florida's west coast beaches on the Gulf of Mexico and the many attractions in and around the Sunshine City.

Hundreds of thousands of tourists and Tampa Bay area citizens will be watching the Virginia Beach band when it marches in the Eleventh Annual Illuminated Night Parade on April 3, and the two-mile long Parade of States down the St. Petersburg waterfront, which climaxes the Festival's 200-event, two-week springtime celebration.

TCC observes Black Student Month

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College will observe Black Student Month during February. The Black Student Alliance has planned a number of activities and observances on the theme "History: Torch to the Future." All events are open to the public.

Feb. 13; 12:30 p.m., D-124, Old Dominion University Black Gospel Sing; Feb. 15, 10 p.m., Green Run Recreation Center Dance; Feb. 20, 12:30 p.m., B-100, Old Dominion University Dance Group, "Ebony;" Feb. 22, 9 a.m., D-124, Black College Day, with representatives from all the predominantly black colleges in Virginia and North Carolina on campus. For further information, contact Wanda Allen at 427-3070, ext. 154.

Beach sophomore goes on stage

John Hatchett, a sophomore majoring in acting and the son of Cmdr. and Mrs. J.W. Hatchett of Virginia Beach, is a dancer and chorus member in the play "Anyone Can Whistle" being presented at Syracuse University Feb. 16-18 and 22-25.

Gifted students attend TCC

One hundred forty four gifted students from the Virginia Beach Public Schools are attending Saturday morning classes at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College. The annual program exposes fifth, sixth, and seventh grade students to special course work in the fields of natural sciences, mathematics, and electricity/electronics.

While the course work is not college level, classes are taught by regular Tidewater Community College faculty members in the college classrooms and laboratories. Students receive instruction in biology, chemistry, geology, physics, mathematics, and electricity/electronics. During the twelve-week program, students are exposed to four weeks in each of the three basic areas of science, mathematics and electricity/electronics.

The students are all enrolled in the Virginia Beach Public School Systems program for the gifted and talented. This is the fourth year the school system and TCC have cooperated in this project for gifted students.

Beach student earns honors

Megan A. Barton of Lord Leighton Dr., Virginia Beach, has been named to the dean's list at the University of Rhode Island for achieving a high academic standard during the fall semester.

Kempsville grad on dean's list

Lauren Marie Allen, a 1978 graduate of Kempsville High School, is on the dean's list at Sam Houston State University. She is majoring in computer science.

Fourteen placed on honor roll

Fourteen area women were placed on the honor roll at Princess Anne Business College for the fall quarter. All of these women maintained a 3.0 grade point average, with no grade lower than a B.

Honor roll students were Eleanor Criscione, Barbara Daniels, Ruthanne Dean, Janice King, Ramona Nunez, Carol Zanichowsky, Christine Tortugno, Kim Caffee, Mildred Dunbar, Valerie Everett, Marilyn Martin, Pam Mitchum, Lonna Moore, and Linda Whitehurst. Ms. Daniels, Ms. Dean, and Ms. Mitchum all attained a 4.0 GPA, all A's.

Beach women attend job seminar at TCC

The problems of working women are not strictly related to on-the-job activities. Some of the problems surface even before the job begins. How do you get a job if you have no experience? How do you deal with an interviewer who asks illegal questions? What if you are physically handicapped?

Forty-six women of all ages recently examined these questions and others in a job exploration seminar co-sponsored by the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College and the Princess Anne Business and Professional Women's Club.

Keynote speaker for the two-evening session on campus was Nancy Budd of Kelly Services who discussed the advantages of temporary employment for the women just beginning work or re-entering the work force after an absence of several years. The seminar also examined career opportunities in a variety of areas from clerical to management.

Kathy Anderson, secretarial science instructor at TCC in Virginia Beach and coordinator of the program, said the job exploration seminar was attended by women from their early twenties as well as women in their sixties. She said many of those who attended the seminar were military wives.

Beach schools announce extramural winners

The winners of the second extramurals have been announced by the Virginia Beach Public Schools through the Health and Physical Education section. Extramurals are held at the conclusion of each teaching unit and bring together the intramural winners from the secondary schools. These events were held at four schools with each member of a winning team and each individual winner being recognized.

The girls beginning basketball tournament was held at Bayside Junior High with the host team defeating Plaza Junior in the final game. Members of the winning team were: Tracy Peckham, Diane Neuby, Sandy Whitfield, Paulette Elliott, Alicia Davis, Anita Griffin, Debra Alvis, Laurie Pieper, Rosin Elliott, and Tracy Phillips.

Slashing property taxes and quashing big spenders is this year's remedy for the high cost of living, according to a nationwide survey of 21,500 high school juniors and seniors listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Eight out of ten teens polled would vote for tax limitations a la California's Proposition 13, but they'd like to give up any government amenities. A vast majority (95%) would maintain police and fire protection, and their school programs, but the students are puzzled about the future for parks, be made as deserved. The deadline for submission is March 15.

The purposes of the poetry contest are to encourage the writing of poetry among high school students in Virginia, to recognize and reward the best efforts of those students, to highlight concern for writing poetry in institutions of higher education, and to feature the writing, reading, and judging of poetry in a workshop for a wide audience of students, parents, teachers and all others interested in poetry.

The contest rules limit poems to one per student, with no restrictions about length, form, or subject matter. Entries should be typed and double-spaced on 8 1/2" x 11" paper or neatly handwritten. The student's name, age, grade, home address, and telephone number should appear in the upper right-hand corner of each entry. A signed statement by the student that the poem is his/her original work, and the signature of the sponsoring English teacher must appear below the poem. All entries from one school should be sent in one envelope to Poetry Contest, English Department, Williams Hall, VPI & SU, Blacksburg, VA 24061. Winners will be notified on April 15.

America's outstanding teens catch tax cutting fever libraries and public transportation. Half would keep these services, while half would let them go.

Inflation makes these teens' blood boil, too. A shot in the arm for America's troubled economy is a top priority for a plurality (35%). But half of the group did not approve the Carter Administration's proposed cures when the survey was conducted in the summer of 1978. If lowered spending is the prescription, what ailments would get the medicine? Education, energy conservation and environmental protection would get a boost from a vast majority of the students. If they could choose where their federal tax dollars are allocated, 49% would pay for tax reform.

The budget to defend American shores would eat up the dollars of 33% of the teens, but urban problems won't be cured by these kids: fewer than one-quarter would spend money on housing, city renewal or mass transit.

Tidewater builders say coastal bill unacceptable

By LIN A. COOPER

Director of Communications, Tidewater Builders Association

The Coastal Resources Management bill (S.B. 403) which has aroused so much interest and controversy with its off-limits 1000 foot "fastlands" buffer strip, has undergone a metamorphosis in order to appear more attractive to its critics. The fastlands zone, which included all land areas up to 1000 feet inland from mean high water, has been dropped.

The fastlands had become the hottest item in the bill when it was realized that thousands of acres in the state, along not only the coast but every conceivable tidal creek and river, would be subject to special use permits and local and possible state review boards. There was so much opposition to that portion of the bill that its patron, Sen. Gartlan, dropped it hoping the opposition would just melt away. After all, it seems feasible that the mayor of a small town in western Virginia would lose interest in what he would interpret as a coastal issue.

So the fastlands is gone for the moment. Gone, but not forgotten. It seems certain now that Gartlan is pushing for passage of a less controversial bill this year with the hope that, once the legislation is on the books, it can be more easily amended next year to include the fastlands.

But next year aside, consider for a moment what remains of the bill. The legislation if passed will regulate building on hundreds of miles of mudflats, sandy beaches and primary dunes. Fine, you say, we should be paying attention to what's happening on our mudflats, sandy beaches and dunes. Builders and developers agree. But look closely at what this particular piece of legislation is saying:

1. The bill still calls for the necessary funding and staffing to create a new Shorelands board to consider permit applications. This board would add another layer of bureaucracy to the home building process which is already over-regulated. A new bureaucratic layer would add to the price of new housing which is already slowly creeping away from the grasp of the middle-income family.

2. Still unaddressed in the bill is the vital issue of a person's right to use his own property. This legislation could "take" property with no compensation, raising what is a very real constitutional issue.

3. Also unaddressed is any consideration of socio-economic conditions that might at some future time justify incursion into the dunes/mudflats areas. The absolute 'thou shalt not' rigidity of the bill's language portends ill for the future growth of both Virginia Beach and Chesapeake. There may well come a time when we will need all our land and resources available to us.

4. Lastly we must look at what this bill suggests in the way of federal land use control. By passing a federally acceptable plan for mudflats, beaches and dunes this year and at the same time continuing to work toward a fastlands solution, Virginia can continue to receive planning money for another year. Traditionally the acceptance of federal money has opened the door to federal control. Last year Virginia ranked 44th among the states that rely on federal aid. Virginians have always liked it that way. And most residents of Virginia Beach and Chesapeake would undoubtedly prefer to have decisions of the magnitude of S.B. 403 kept at the local level where the individual's voice can still be heard.

It must be added as a final addendum that once the machinery to carry out this legislation is set up, the state might well have to carry the costs of administering it should federal funding dry up. That means a bigger bite out of everyone's wallet.

For all the reasons stated above, Tidewater Builders Association remains opposed to S.B. 403 even without the fastlands provision. We think there are better alternatives to consider. One such alternative might be to have the very important sand dune protection written into the already established Wetlands ordinances. We urge every reader to examine this whole issue again.

Ideas and hard work pay off for Beach residents

Virginia Beach residents Francis L. Romero, Richard W. Ewing, Benjamin L. Rogers, Catherine F. Smithwick and Virgil I. Maynard are among Norfolk Naval Shipyard employees cited recently for contributing outstanding performance and money-saving suggestions to their jobs.

Fifty-five shipyarders received a total of $7,684.30 in incentive awards for offering service and suggestions that saved the government $19,233.96 and improved efficiency and safety at the shipyard.

At the shipyard, the suggestions included: 1. Replacing old, inefficient light bulbs with energy-saving fluorescent bulbs. 2. Replacing old, inefficient light bulbs with energy-saving fluorescent bulbs. 3. Replacing old, inefficient light bulbs with energy-saving fluorescent bulbs.

Marks, Basnight join ATLA

Ronald H. Marks and W. Brantley Basnight of Virginia Beach have been accepted for membership in the Association of Trial Lawyers of America (ATLA).

ATLA, a 35,000 member organization with members from the fifty states, Puerto Rico and Canada, is the nation's largest trial bar organization. The goals of ATLA include preserving the adversary system and protecting the rights of the injured and the innocent.

Based in Washington, D.C., ATLA testifies before many legislative groups on issues of concern to the trial bar.

As members of the association, Marks and Basnight will be eligible to participate in numerous educational workshops and seminars aimed at furthering the trial lawyer's professional growth.

Kickoff meeting

The builders' lament

An engineer who felt the pinch of our tight economy was able to keep his sense of humor intact and recently mailed this letter, along with his membership renewal check to his respective professional society:

Gentlemen:

I reply to your letter requesting a check I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes this impossible. My shattered financial state is due to federal laws, county laws, corporation laws, liquor laws, mother-in-laws, and outlaws.

Through these laws I am compelled to pay a business tax amusement tax, head tax, school tax, gas tax, phone tax, sales tax, excise tax and income tax. I am required to get a business license, auto license, fishing license, marriage license and dog license. I am also required to contribute to every society and organization imaginable to women's relief, to unemployment relief, to gold-digger's relief, to every hospital and charitable institution in the city, including the Red Cross, Black Cross, White Cross, Purple Cross and double cross.

For my own protection, I am required to carry life insurance, property insurance, burglary insurance, accident insurance, earthquake insurance and tornado insurance, unemployment insurance, old age insurance, and fire insurance. My business is so governed that it is hard for me to find out exactly who owns it. I am inspected, expected, suspected, disrespected, rejected, dejected, examined, reexamined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commended, and compelled until I supply money for every need of the human race. Simply because I refuse to donate to something or other I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held down and robbed until I am almost ruined.

can again
to fund

You can tell the Internal Revenue Service to turn over $1 of your tax to the 1980 Presidential Election Campaign Fund by checking the appropriate box or boxes on your income tax return. On a joint return the election to make this designation is available to both spouses. Also on a joint return, one taxpayer can contribute the dollar while the other declines, or both may decline.

This election will not change any of the figures entered on your income tax return. For example, the tax you owe will not be reduced or increased nor will the refund, if applicable, be reduced or increased.

Social security benefits received, monthly or in a lump sum, from the Federal Government or from a State under the Federal social security program, are not taxable income. This applies whether you receive the benefits because you are of qualified age, are disabled, or are the dependent of a qualified worker.

PUBLIC NOTICE
PROPOSED HIGHWAY PROJECT
VIRGINIA BEACH BOULEVARD
CITY OF VIRGINIA BEACH

A Location and Design Public Hearing will be held by a representative of the Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation on March 12, 1979, at 7:00 P.M. in the Auditorium of the Princess Anne High School located at 1400 Virginia Beach Boulevard in Virginia Beach, for the purpose of considering the proposed location and design of Virginia Beach Boulevard (Route 58) from the West Corporate Limits of Virginia Beach (Hwy 101) to 8.27 miles east of North Great Neck Road, in the City of Virginia Beach.

All interested parties are urged to attend and give the Department the benefit of their comments and suggestions relative to the proposed highway improvement.

Maps, drawings, an environmental declaration and other information are available for public review and copying in the Department of Highways and Transportation District Office located at 1700 North Main Street in Suffolk. In its readiness Office located at the intersection of Business Route 13 (Military Highway) and Route 160 in Chesapeake and in the office of the Director of Public Works for the City of Virginia Beach.

In addition to the availability of information at the above mentioned locations, public information trailers, manned by Department Personnel, will be placed at the Lynnhaven Shopping Center and the Aragon Shopping Center. These trailers will be operational from 1:00 to 9:00 P.M. on March 8th, 9th and 12th, and from 9:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. on March 13th. All interested parties are encouraged to review the proposal prior to the formal hearing.

Written statements and other exhibits relative to the proposed project may be presented in place of, or in addition to, oral statements at the hearing. Such written statements and exhibits may also be submitted to the Department at any time within ten days after the public hearing.

At this location and design public hearing, relocation assistance program and tentative schedule for right of way acquisition and construction will also be discussed.

dancing. "We usually go to Adam's. That's about the best place as far as atmosphere."

The beauty queen also admits a passion for watching race cars. "I lived in Highpoint, North Carolina, for about three years and used to go to all the races. I've been in a few dragsters, but prefer to watch. I still love to go to races like the Charlotte 500."

But there won't be much time for hobbies between now and March 30, when the Mrs. America Pageant will be aired on national television.

"There's not a minute there's not something to do to get ready for Las Vegas," Mrs. Halme says. "There's a lot more than I thought. I have to do all my shopping—they give you a list of what clothes to bring."

"I'm realizing that it's going to be a lot of hard work. We will have seven straight days of rehearsals from 8 in the morning until 11 at night in order to be ready for the TV production. We have to be in our rooms by 11:30 every night for bed check, which seems funny for a group of married women."

Marriage — that is the element that distinguishes the Mrs. America Pageant from all the "Miss" beauty contests. "I think the key to a successful marriage is that you have to be friends before you can be lovers," says Mrs. Halme. "And you have to have respect for your partner."

She says her husband will remain in Virginia Beach during the pageant week. "With so many rehearsals we wouldn't hardly be able to see each other in Las Vegas anyway. He'll still be supporting me though," she laughs. "We sound like a broken record and just keep saying over and over, 'Do you believe all this?'" city's administrative staff supported transitional zoning, he said. Criticism should be leveled at the city and the council not on lack of planning, but at having adopted plans and not using them. "It's difficult to have respect for the city planning process. If we're going to have planning, we should use it for development."

The court's decision was interpreted by the applicants to mean requesting any zoning up to A-1. The units would be for sale cluster units which are more suitable than rental apartments for the area, Barrow said.

Attorney H. Calvin Spain, also representing National Beach, charged council that its decision on the application would be politically motivated. There are more owners in Linkhorn Park opposing the application, than there are applicants in favor of the change, he said. He said that nothing is acceptable to the civic league ~~but to have the property as it is.~~

"However unpopular it may be, the people are going to have to accept the plan," he said. The plan referred to apparently is the Beach Borough Development plan which recommends residential use of 12-36 dwelling units an acre.

Grover Wright, attorney for the opposition, said there was "some misunderstanding of what the court did. The matter has been presented as though you lost. You did not. (The Court ruled) what you did was not unreasonable." The court ruled that the applicant might return with a less restrictive zoning request than R-1. Wright suggested that his clients would not be opposed to making both parcels R-3, the higher density zoning classification. He said the townhouse zoning would be an intrusion on the established single-family neighborhood.

Councilman R.L. Riggs said that the "highest and best use depends on which side you're on," and moved to deny the applications. An addition to the motion to change the R-1 parcel to R-3 was refused by the applicants. The vote was 10-1 with Councilman Clarence A. Holland voting against the motion.

A water tower can be beautiful, says mayor

Mayor Patrick L. Standing figures beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Even a hulking water tower outside your kitchen window can be beautiful, according to the mayor.

"We have people who have been in Virginia Beach a long time who think a water tower is beautiful," he told one citizen complaining about the scheduled location of a tower in Green Run.

William B. Whiteside, of the Green Run Homes Association, complained that the city is going to build a tower next to the main corridor in Green Run. With 200 acres of open territory, he said, why build it next to the main corridor?

The mayor said the towers are beautiful to people who know the value of water and water pressure.

To charges from Whiteside that the people were not informed soon enough to do anything about the tower, Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. said that the program has been in effect for some time. He said he had a water tower close to his backyard and it means to him that he can get water for fire protection and household use.

Councilman Reid Ervin explained that the placement of a water tower has something to do with distribution and a "lot end up in highly restrictive residential areas." Ervin added, however, that maybe greater attempts should be made to publicize the Capital Improvement Budget.

Council authorized the acquisition of the property for the tower — the Rosemont Road water storage tank and collector lines and the acquisition of temporary and permanent easements of right-of-way.

EXTRA CASH

It's so easy...advertise in your neighborhood what you no longer need in the classified columns of your hometown newspaper. In practically no time at all, people

Linen service location prompts rezoning in Bayside

A Virginia Beach councilman Monday afternoon expressed concern that a "member of the Industrial Development Authority was serving as an advocate for rezoning."

As a result, Councilman Reid Ervin voted against rezoning a parcel in Bayside from B-2 Community Business District to I-1 Light Industrial District to permit the location of a $1,340,000 linen service business. Ervin also considered the requested zoning, spot zoning.

The application was approved, however, by a vote of 7-3, Councilman R.L. Riggs was absent.

Joseph M. and Clara V. Mattox applied for the change on a 6.71-acre parcel between Northampton Boulevard and Shell Road, east of the intersection.

Harold Gallup, coordinator for the city's Industrial Development Division, told council that the company would have the sewage capacity it would not have in an industrial park. The company, Tidewater Linen Service, will pump directly into a force main. He said the pumping station which will be used has been examined and now handles 225 gallons per minute while it has a 1200 gallons per minute capacity. The proposed use will require 376 gallons per minute service.

Ervin said that the "thing that bothers me is we have a member of the Industrial Development Authority serving as an advocate for rezoning."

Councilman Clarence A. Holland said that he (Gallup) was not advocating, but just furnishing information.

Councilman George R. Ferrell added, that he felt that Gallup was "doing it for the benefit of the city."

Voting against the motion with Ervin were Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf and Councilman Donald S. Merrick. Voting for the motion were Mayor Patrick L. Standing, Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., Councilmen Holland, Ferrell, J. Curtis Payne and John A. Baum and Councilwoman Barbara Henley who said that she wouldn't even consider the change except for the fact that the parcel was already zoned B-2 which might be a less desirable use for the area residents.

Joseph J. Lawler, attorney for the applicant, said that the company, which has been located in Norfolk since the middle 50's, suffered a fire in which its building was destroyed. The company plans to spend $840,000 in land and improvements and another $500,000 in machinery. He said the plan operates during a regular 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. work day, excluding week-ends, hires from 85 to 100 employees and has an annual payroll of $750,000.

Adjoining residents and 13 others in the area do not oppose the petition, he said. Lawler said that the company tried to locate in Airport Industrial Park but could not because of the lack of gas and sewage capacity.

M.E. Bowman, who said he represented 20 of the 30-35 area residents, said that Shell Road was too narrow, and that the rezoning would be spot zoning. He said the area has basically been a farm area and the required rezoning is out of context with the Bayside Development plan.

The Rev. Joyce Kramer, whose church site adjoins the parcel in the application, asked, "Why do we have industrial parks if we're going to locate in residential sections?" She said the drain-off from the property would create a problem.

Councilman John A. Baum said that the church contributed the same problem with its drain-off. "People are going to be just as unhappy with the B-2," he said.

Council meeting cancelled

The Feb. 19 meeting of national, state and local Virginia Beach City Council has been cancelled to observe the celebration of George Washington's birthday.

Certain Tests Apply to Qualify

For a person to qualify as your dependent, the following five tests must be met:

- Support Test — you must furnish more than half the person's support during the calendar year;

Some Must Pay Estimated Tax

The pay-as-you-go feature of the Federal income tax system requires employers to withhold income tax on salary and wages paid to their employees.

This same principle applies to employees and self-employed individuals who have income that is not subject to withholding or from which not enough tax is being withheld. These individuals must file the "Declaration of Estimated Tax," Form 1040-ES, and pay in four equal installments, or a lump sum, the income and self-employment tax estimated to be due. The first installment, however, must accompany the declaration.

The Internal Revenue Service provides Estimated Tax Declaration-Vouchers for the taxpayer to use to make declarations of estimated tax and to pay the installments as they come due. The taxpayer mails the installment and a numbered declaration-voucher in a pre-addressed envelope to the Internal Revenue Service Center by the due date for that installment.

In general, a declaration is not required to be filed if you expect that your 1978 Form 1040 or Form 1040A will show (1) a tax refund, or (2) a tax balance due of less than $100.

If you are a citizen of the United States or resident of the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, or American Samoa, make a declaration of your estimated tax if your total estimated tax is $100 or more, and you:

- can reasonably expect to receive more than $500 from sources other than wages subject to withholding; or
- can reasonably expect gross income to exceed—
- $20,000 if you are a single individual, a head of household, or a widow or widower entitled to the special tax rates;
- $20,000 if you are a married individual entitled to file a joint declaration with your spouse, but only if your spouse has not received wages for the taxable year;
- $10,000 if you are a married individual entitled to file a joint declaration with your spouse, but only if both you and your spouse have received wages for the taxable year; or
- $5,000 if you are a married individual not entitled to file a joint declaration with your spouse.

Additional information on tax withholding and estimated tax can be found in the free IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax," available from local IRS offices or by using the convenient mail-order form in the tax package.

- Gross Income Test — his or her gross income for the year must be under $750 (this does not apply to your child who is under age 19 or is a full-time student);
- Member of Household or Relationship Test — if a person is a member of your household and lives with you for the entire year, the person need not be related to you for you to claim that individual's exemption;
- Citizenship Test — your dependent must be a U.S. citizen or resident, or a resident of Canada or Mexico for some part of the year you claim the exemption; and,
- Joint Return Test — you are not allowed an exemption for your dependent (such as your son or daughter) if he or she files a joint return unless the individual and his or her spouse are not required to file a return but do so only to claim a refund of tax withheld.

Political contributions can reduce taxes, IRS says

Taxpayers have the choice of claiming an itemized deduction or a tax credit, but cannot claim both, for contributions to candidates for public office and political committees and to newsletter funds of candidates and elected public officials.

The Internal Revenue Service advises that the deduction is limited to $100 ($200 for a joint return). Half of the contribution may be taken as a tax credit limited to $25 ($50 for a joint return). The credit cannot exceed the amount of your tax.

To claim the deduction the taxpayer must itemize deductions of Schedule A of Form 1040. If you take the credit, enter the lesser of the amount of your tax or your allowable credit on your return. Remember, the deduction and credit are mutually exclusive; only one can be chosen.

The free IRS Publication 585, "Voluntary Tax Methods to Help Finance Political Campaigns," can be ordered by using the handy mail-order form in your tax package. The publication is also available from local IRS offices.

Requesting a Social Security Number Interest Considered Taxable Income

If you have ever held a part-time or summer job, you should already have a social security number. If you plan to start to work for the first time and do not have a social security number, you should apply for one.

Interest you receive must be included in your income, the Internal Revenue Service said. This is true of interest on your savings account in a bank, a credit union, or a savings and loan association (even though the association refers to the payment as a "dividend"), and interest from any other source unless it is expressly exempt from tax by law.

Interest on U.S. Savings Bonds is taxable income. You can elect, however, to report the interest each year as it is earned, or the year you cash the bonds. You pay tax on interest in the year it is received or available for payment to you. For example, you are taxed on year-end bank interest when it is credited to your savings account, even though you do not present your passbook to have it entered.

Where to File

You should send your return to the Internal Revenue Service Center for your region. Use the envelope mailed to you or the appropriate address listed in the instructions.

Work Clothing

Generally, the cost and maintenance of work clothing is a personal expense and not deductible. However, if your occupation specifically requires special clothes or equipment as a condition of employment, its cost and maintenance are deductible if it is not adaptable to general or continued use as ordinary clothing.

Surviving Spouse

In many cases, when a spouse dies, the survivor may use the tax rates that apply to a joint return for two tax years following the year of death. But these rates may be used only if the survivor has not remarried and maintains in his or her home a son, daughter, stepson, or stepdaughter for whom he or she is entitled to a dependency exemption.

Virginia Beach Sports

Sportsview

What about later?

by MIKE D'ORSO
Virginia Beach Sun Sports Writer

"The future is now." George Allen made these words famous with the then powerful Washington Redskins. Total commitment to the present ensured his team's maximum immediate success possible.

But tomorrow always comes, and so it did for the Redskins, who found themselves flat-footed an unable to cope with younger, stronger teams. This dilemma of "now versus later" faces all coaches of team sports. The players who are expected to be the backbone of a school's program in the future must receive some amount of preparation and experience now.

For many athletes in Chesapeake, Portsmouth, and Norfolk, this experience is acquired through junior varsity competition. Varsity coaches enjoy the luxury of selecting the cream of the crop and going with their best individuals, secure in the knowledge that the junior varsity program is, to a great extent, taking care of the future.

At the Beach, however, where J.V. competition is a thing of the past, coaches must carefully fill their rosters with either proven performers or definitely potential athletes. Occasionally the rare blend of youth and talent finds his way into the starting lineup as a sophomore.

But there is little room for the marginal athlete, the clumsy sophomore who might blossom into a star senior if he only had the opportunity. Given this limiting situation, it is interesting, and perhaps revealing, to examine the contributions of sophomores to the various basketball programs at the Beach.

A common phenomenon seems to be the junior high ballplayer who stops playing in the tenth grade. With a lack of opportunity to play on the J.V. level, many rising tenth graders who are seasoned ballplayers in junior high competition shy away from trying for a spot on a high school team.

"I think they anticipate that they can't play," notes Cox head coach George Ontko. "I had a good one who started at the junior high. He could've played for us, but he didn't come out."

What causes a young ballplayer to hang it up at the stage where his skills should be coming together - at the high school level?

"They're used to playing and they don't want to come up and sit," says First Colonial's Alton Hill. "We didn't have many good tenth graders to come out. We had some good junior high players who didn't come out for our team."

So it seems that many ballplayers hesitate to serve time on the bench, although such apprenticeship is a necessity with the absence of J.V. programs limiting playing opportunities. This impatience to play keeps some athletes away from the courts, but there are many more sophomores who come to the gym in the fall seeking a varsity uniform. Of these candidates, only a handful can help a program in the near future, and even fewer can lend immediate strength. These few are the future for many schools.

Princess Anne's Leo Anthony seems blessed with a flock of young talent topped by the premier tenth grader in the District, Thad Miles. One of the leading scorers and rebounders at the Beach, Miles is the keystone to the Cavalier attack.

"The real surprise to me is how early he began dominating things against seniors," says Anthony. "Playing in the tournament (Norfolk Collegiate Tournament) helped him. He just jumped out and improved right from the beginning."

Along with Miles, Anthony can look forward to good things from Marc Hinch, Bobby Reckling, and Billy Deihl, a group of which Anthony says, "The four of them would be super on the J.V. level."

Johnny Dollar can be optimistic about the future with his group of Bayside youngsters, headed by Gary Knox, a junior high teammate of Miles.

Eddie Diehl, the Marlins' assistant coach, says of Knox, "He's definitely the best leaper at the Beach."

Dollar must have to resort to last names at practice with Gary Browning and Gary Cason joining Knox in the sophomore contingent, and these three players, along with David Bobst, should continue Bayside's improvement next season.

At Kellam, Al Bailey has three sophomores, Mike Smith, Mel Roach, and George Wadsworth, in the lineup. Of these three, Wadsworth is the strongest bet to be a starter next year, which Roach is playing only his first year of organized ball, and Smith may be transferring to the new Green Run High School next year.

Cox's Ontko is looking down to the junior highs to give him help next year. Paul McGovern, at Lynnhaven Junior High, and Independence Junior High's Leonard Goffigan both figure in Ontko's plans.

"I'm anticipating them stepping right in," says Ontko. "We're wide open. These guys will have to do it for us."

Kempsville's Chiefs have only two sophomores on their roster. Of starter Mike West, head coach Bill Cochrane, says, "He's a quick learner. He's gained a lot more confidence as the year goes along." According to Cochrane, his other sophomore, Chris Scherrer, "has a lot of natural ability. He's got a lot of quickness."

While Kempsville has only two sophomores, the Chiefs are rich compared to Alton Hill's First Colonial team, where Jojo Dozier is the only sophomore.

So, with no players waiting in the J.V. wings, the school with more than two solid sophomores seems to be lucky. And for the coaches, the fall tryouts must seem like a grab bag of uncertainties, with the future being one big question mark.

Two million geese die yearly from lead poisoning; steel shot enforced in Virginia

The Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service proposed zones recently where waterfowl hunters would be required to use nontoxic steel shot during the 1979 fall hunting season.

The Department also published a final regulation which requires that steel shot be used in all gauges of guns in steel shot zones beginning in the fall of 1980. Waterfowl hunters will be required to use steel shot only in 12-gauge guns when hunting in the zones during the 1979 fall hunting season.

The purpose of requiring waterfowl hunters to use steel shot is to reduce the incidence of lead poisoning in waterfowl. About 2 million waterfowl die of lead poisoning in the United States annually after eating spent lead shot, which the birds mistake for seeds or grit. Steel shot is not toxic to waterfowl.

A proposed regulation describing 1979 steel shot zones and a final rule making on the use of various gauges of steel shot were published in the January 12, 1979 FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed 1979 steel shot zones are almost identical to 1978 zones except for changes in Florida, Michigan, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. The proposals would affect parts of 32 states, including areas where steel shot regulations were not enforced in 1978 as a result of legislation passed by Congress that prohibited the Interior Department from enforcing steel shot regulations in any state unless the state fish and wildlife agency approved. Twenty-five states approved enforcement of steel shot regulations; 13 states did not approve enforcement in part or all of the areas designated as steel shot zones. The restriction on enforcement of steel shot regulations will expire September 30, 1979, unless renewed by Congress.

Detailed descriptions of the designated steel shot zones for 1979 will be listed in press releases to be issued by the six Fish and Wildlife Service regional offices. No changes are proposed for the Virginia steel shot zones, which include the city of Va. Beach and the area between U.S. 60 and State Route 5 on the James River Peninsula. Steel shot will again be required in these zones of the Atlantic Flyway during 1979. Also the Mississippi Flyway, the Central Flyway and the Pacific Flyway.

Public comments on the proposals should be submitted by February 12, 1979, to the Director (FWS/MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Under the final rulemaking on use of various gauges of steel shot, waterfowl hunters will not be permitted to possess 12-gauge shotshells loaded with toxic (lead) shot while taking waterfowl in a steel-shot zone during the 1979 season. Hunters using other gauges will be permitted to use toxic shot until September 1, 1980, when the use of all gauges of toxic shot will be prohibited in steel shot zones.

The service had previously proposed to end the use of all gauges of toxic shot in steel shot zones beginning Sept. 1, 1979. This regulation has now been delayed for one year because the aforementioned action by Congress created uncertainty regarding demand for shotshells loaded with either toxic or nontoxic shot.

Looking into the future

Beach teachers get 'apple' that's really a computer

By PAM VANDEVEER
Virginia Beach Sun Editor

Just as today's students are tomorrow's leaders, today's computers are tomorrow's household "appliances" says Alex Hay of Home Computer Center in Virginia Beach. If such an observation is true, then it might be a good idea to get today's kids and computers acquainted. The Virginia Beach Public School System's sixth grade Gifted Program is doing exactly that.

"Introduction to Computer Science" is the name of the unit being taught since January to "gifted" sixth graders in Virginia Beach who spend one day a week on the subject at Thalia Elementary School. Patty Terry and Lillian Gilbert are team-teaching the course.

"The students are learning the needs and uses of computers," explains Miss Terry. "They're realizing that there's no reason to be afraid of computers. And they're learning how to write programs."

Last Friday's class was an example in action. Hay brought the "Apple II" computer to class for a demonstration. Later students worked on their own programs as a group and individually.

"The kids are able to read computer cards," Miss Terry points out. "Soon they'll take a trip to Old Dominion University and use its time-sharing computer system. They'll also visit Virginia National Bank and see how a large computer works."

"Their final project will be to design a future house that uses all kinds of computers," she adds.

Last Friday's class focused on some of the lighter applications of computers, however. Blackboards sported figures for long math "story" problems (computed by pocket calculators, of course). Turned upside-down, the numerical answers appeared to spell words, solving the riddles of the story problems. For example, the number 5508, when turned upside-down, appears to spell the word "Boss."

But it was the "Apple II" that stole the show, spurring a display of logical thinking and creativity on the part of the students that pleased their teachers.

Hay's demonstration of the computer featured a showing of some of the graphics programs stored in the machine's memory. Appearing over a television-like screen, one program pictured a fine drawing of a room containing a television set that depicted a tiny stick-figure dancing a jig to the tune of "Turkey in the Straw." The kids were delighted.

Another program turned the computer into a sort of electronic "Etch-a-sketch" complete with sound and color. Other programs pictured series of kalidescope designs flashing on the screen in random colors.

Following each program students requested to see the text, or "computer instructions" that determined the graphics. The students then took a simple program and turned it into a more elaborate one of their own design. Their final colorful creation was dubbed "Friday's Fantastic Figure" and stored in the computer's memory under that name.

"The students have picked all of this up so fast," exclaims Miss Terry. Hay agrees, adding that he thinks the computer course is a good subject for youngsters to learn.

"Ten years from now everyone will have a computer in their home," he predicts. And the "Apple II" is a likely model he suggests.

"A computer of this type could operate your home. It could regulate your air conditioning or heating or your lights," he explains. And for a cost of about $1300 it can be hooked up to your television screen.

Hay admits that he is anxious to own a computer of his own. "One reason I'm working in this field now is to learn as much about computer capabilities as I can so I'll know which one is best to buy for myself," he chuckles.

And there is no time like the present to begin computer education programs like the one at Thalia Elementary, he agrees. "Let's face it," he says seriously, "computers are becoming increasingly important. Programming them is sort of like learning another language. And those who know how to do it will be the ones who are running things in the future."

John Wood, age 11, of Kempsville Elementary School takes part in the computer science course taught to students his age through the Virginia Beach Public School System's Gifted Program. Here he programs the "Apple II" computer as his classmates and Alex Hay of the Home Computer Center in Virginia Beach look on.

General Assembly summary

Council support falls short on coastal legislation

Virginia Beach City Council still falls short of unanimous support of proposed coastal protection legislation which will be the subject of a public hearing in Richmond, Friday, at 9 a.m. Nine members of Council Monday afternoon voted to support an amended version of Senate Bill 403, the Coastal Resources Management Act, which has passed the Senate and is now in the House Committee of Conservation and Natural Resources.

Despite the appeal from Councilman Reid Ervin for unanimous support of the legislation, two members again abstained from voting because of insufficient time to study the proposal. An earlier version of the bill won the backing of six council members with five abstaining.

Councilmen George T. Ferrell and R.L. Riggs abstained Monday afternoon.

Included in the current version of the bill is a provision for payment of compensation for property where the owner has been deprived of the reasonable economic use of his property. The compensation would be paid by the Commonwealth.

The bill in general is an expansion of the Wetlands Act to include dunes. Removed from the bill are "fastlands," the area beyond the dunes landward. The inclusion of this area created most of the opposition to the original bill.

City Manager George L. Hanbury, in summarizing actions of the 1979 General Assembly, reported that of the eight bills which the council asked legislators to introduce, only two failed to win a sponsor among Virginia Beach legislators. They were recommendations that:

1. The General Assembly should amend The Code to allow local city charters to prevail in areas where the State Grievance Procedure and City Charter provisions conflict.

2. Legislation allow localities to impose a tax on coin-operated amusement machines on a per-machine basis.

Hanbury said the city was still opposed to Senate Bill 804, the Boards of Zoning Appeals, which has passed the Senate and is in the House Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns. The bill would weaken the board, Hanbury said.

H.B. 1943, introduced by Delegate Owen Pickett, transfers all of Camp Pendleton except approximately 259 acres of the main base from the Department of Military Affairs to the Division of State Parks. The bill has passed the House and is now in the Senate Courts of Justice Committee.

A bill introduced by Senator Joseph Canada, which would exempt municipally-owned property from Sunday closing laws, passed the Senate and is in the House Committee on General Laws.

A bill introduced by Canada which would allow localities to collect certain taxes through the use of credit cards has passed the Senate and is in the House Finance Committee.

Another bill introduced by Delegate Tom Moss of Norfolk and amended by Delegate Glenn McClanahan of Virginia Beach would allow breweries or distillers to sponsor professional athletic events and to use their name in connection with advertising for the event. This bill passed the House 82-7.

Controversial rezoning requests approved, Lynnhaven residents voice opposition

By LEE CAHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Two highly controversial rezoning requests in Lynnhaven squeaked through Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon with identical votes of 6-5. A third application sailed through with a vote of 10-1. Delegations, mostly opposing the petitions for rezoning, accounted for a major part of the crowd that overflowed into the aisles of Council Chambers.

Councilman Reid Ervin, who voted against all three petitions, remarked that it was a "mystery that members of this council who don't even live in Lynnhaven can be so free with rezoning Lynnhaven which will cause problems. It doesn't make sense."

Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., who represents the Kempsville Borough, said that "Ervin's remarks were aimed at me. As long as we have a borough system we will have this sort of thing."

In two applications, Dean S. Potter, Gordon R. Potter and John Ray Potter were granted their requests for a change of zoning from R-4 Residential District to A-2 Apartment District on a four-acre parcel by a 10-1 vote, and from R-5 Residential District to A-2 Apartment District on a 25.302 acre parcel by a 6-5 vote. The sites are located west of First Colonial Road, between Old Donation Parkway and Wildwood Drive, Lynnhaven Borough.

Approval by a 6-5 vote also was granted Henry Clay Hofheimer II, Edward D. Hofheimer and Marie E. Mansbach for a change from R-1 Residential District to R-3 Residential District on an 80.533-acre parcel on the east side of Harris Road north of Little Neck Road.

In both 6-5 votes, in favor of the applications were Councilmen John A. Baum, George R. Ferrell, Clarence A. Holland and J. Curtis Payne, vice mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. and Mayor Patrick L. Standing. Voting against the applications were Councilman Ervin, Donald S. Merrick and R.L. Riggs, and Councilwomen Barbara Henley and Meyera Oberdorf.

Attorney Grover Wright, representing the Potters, explained that it was the seventh public hearing on the Potter applications. Both the Planning Commission and planning staff have twice recommended approval, he said. The matter was referred back to the Planning Commission following a 5-4 decision of council on a motion for approval. Wright had sought rehearing on the basis that there was no vote on denial of the applications, and that only a partial council was present.

Wright maintained that the Great Neck Development Plan recommends apartment use for the property with 12 to 24 units per acre. Although the new zoning allows 527 units, the applicants voluntarily have restricted

Beach sees hope for target area improvements

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Residents of lower income (target) areas of Virginia Beach can see a ray of light in remarks made Monday afternoon by City Manager George L. Hanbury. Hanbury was optimistic about passage of legislation in the 1979 General Assembly which will permit the city to deal directly with a non-profit corporation. For target area residents, this means that long-awaited sewer, water and drainage projects have a chance of seeing completion.

The legislation being considered will in effect eliminate the necessity of going through the Virginia Housing and Development Authority (VHDA) for Community Development Fund appropriations. Savings will result in time and in money which at present has to be paid to the VHDA for servicing. The city would be permitted to deal directly with the Virginia Beach Community Development Corporation which was set up specifically as an agency to disperse Community Development funds in the absence of a Redevelopment and Housing Authority in the city.

Hanbury said the city has also requested that the Auditions open for comedy 'The Madwoman of Chailot'

The Performing Arts Unit of the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation will hold open auditions for Jean Giraudoux's delightful comedy, "The Madwoman of Chailot." There are 25 male roles and 15 female roles available. The play's ingenue will require an actress who has had some dance or ballet experience. Also needed is an actor who can sing and play the guitar. All of the parts are heavy character roles. The play takes place in Paris during the early 40's before World War II.

Auditions will be held Feb. 16 from 7 to 10 p.m. and Feb. 17 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Virginia Beach Recreation Center Theatre, 800 Monmouth Lane. Rehearsals are scheduled to begin Feb. 27 at 7 p.m. All rehearsals will be held in the evenings and on weekends. The production is scheduled to open April 25 and run through May 6.

In addition to actors and actresses, the Performing Arts Unit will be looking for technical people with experience in props, stage managing, costuming, sets, lighting, and general all around backstage assistance. For more information, call Henry deShields at 499-1281.

Farmers sponsor exhibit at Pembroke Mall

The Virginia Beach Farm Bureau Young Farmer Committee will sponsor an agriculture exhibit throughout the Pembroke Mall area Feb. 15, 16, and 17. Special features will include live animals, grain products and some of the largest and most advanced farm equipment on the east coast.

Breakfast meeting set Sat.

The Virginia Beach Chapter of Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International will meet Feb. 17, at 9 a.m. at the White Heron Motel, 1284 Laskin Road. Speaker will be Robin Ferris. Breakfast is $3. For reservations call 497-9265, 499-0697 or 481-7070.

Parents without Partners hosts February dance

Virginia Beach Chapter 216 Parents Without Partners will host a Washington's Birthday dance on Sunday, Feb. 18, for all Tidewater Parents Without Partners members, featuring the music of the "Benny Gould" Band.

This dance was originally scheduled to be held at Little Creek, but will now be held in the Pink Elephant room at the N.A.S.C.P.O. Club, Patters Rd., Oceana. Dancing will be from 8:30 to 11:30. There will be snacks and door prizes.

Perspective members, 45-day card members and P.W.P. re-marrieds are invited to attend. Fare more information or directions call 340-7293, 427-6345 or 340-2462.

The Virginia Beach Association of Office Personnel will meet on Feb. 15 at Kempsville High School. A pot luck dinner will be served at 6 p.m.

Fashion and finance are topics of free seminar

"Financial Freedom, Taking The First Step," a free seminar on money management for women, will be held by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. and Miller & Rhoads, Feb. 20, at 2 p.m. and again at 7 p.m. at the Hilton Inn, Virginia Beach, with the help of women's clubs in the Tidewater area. Merrill Lynch account executives will tell women how to become informed, how to feel comfortable about making financial decisions and how to use financial services.

The fashion portion of the program will feature Miller & Rhoads showing of the latest spring and summer looks. The commentary will focus on Spring Designer clothes for the businesswoman. Admission to the seminar is free, but reservations are requested. They can be made by calling Merrill Lynch at 446-4000.

Historical society meets Thur.

The Norfolk District Historical Society of The United Methodist Church will meet for dinner at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 22, at First United Methodist Church, 3031 Luxembourg Ave., Norfolk. Dr. Robert L. Curry, pastor of St. George's United Methodist Church in Philadelphia, Penn., will speak on "St. George's and its place in Methodist History." Persons planning to attend should phone the church office at 625-4297 Thursday, Feb. 15.

Comic villain

"Oliver!" the musical version of the Charles Dickens classic tale, "Oliver Twist," opens Friday, Feb. 16 at The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach. Featured in the show and pictured here is Will Simonson as Fagin, the comic villain. Evening performances are at 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, Feb. 16 and 17, Feb. 23 and 24, and March 2 and 3. Sunday matinees on Feb. 18 and 25 are at 3 p.m. Tickets are $4.25 for adults and $2.50 for students. For reservations, call the theatre box office at 428-9523. Little Theatre of Virginia Beach is located at 24th Street and Barborton Drive.

Dog club interest rises through classified ad

Carol McChesney of Norfolk agrees that Virginia Beach Sun/Chesapeake Post classified ads bring results. When she recently ran a classified ad to spark interest in a local white German Shepherd Dog Club, she received a number of calls, including one from a veterinarian.

Ms. McChesney was particularly pleased with the service she received in placing her ad.

"The classified department gave helpful advice and guidance. They took time to understand and tried to help," she said. "My ad was given care and consideration, and the prices are reasonable. This paper is one of a kind!"

When you have something to sell, place a classified ad in the Virginia Beach

"Au gratin" comes from the French word for "scratch." The culinary term refers to the golden brown crust formed on the surface of a soup or casserole topped with either grated cheese or bread crumbs and butter and cooked in the oven or under the broiler.

Children's concert will feature popular tunes

A children's concert performed by the Virginia Beach Pops Symphony under the direction of Walter Noona will be held Monday, Feb. 19, at the Virginia Beach Dome. Admission is free. Tickets may be obtained through the Dome. The concert is sponsored in part by the Arts and Humanities Commission. The American Association of University Women, Virginia Beach Branch, will supervise.

The program will open with "Holiday Festival Overture" by Dimitri Shostakovich. Shostakovich is considered to be the most important contemporary musician of the Soviet Union. He received the highest achievement award from the Soviet Union in the field of Arts and Sciences. His "Festival Overture" received its American premiere by the Utah Symphony under the direction of Maurice Abravanel on November 16, 1965.

"Manilow Magic" by Barry Manilow, arranged by Ray Mahoney, showcases a varied sampling of Manilow's appealing tunes such as "I Write The Songs", "Could It Be Magic", "Daybreak", "Tryin' To Get the Feeling Again", and "Copacabana".

"Tubby the Tuba" tells the story of Tubby, a fat, friendly, young tuba who loves beautiful things. But he is very slow and awkward. Tubby is a member of a large symphony orchestra in which all the other instruments, big and little, have lovely tunes to play. All that is, but Tubby. The other instruments either laugh at Tubby or become very angry with him when he attempts to play a melody all of his own.

"Children's Guide to T.V." will feature a series of tunes (sing along) of familiar tunes from commercials. The concert will end with music from "Star Wars."

Harlequin theme to highlight Alliance Francaise dinner-dance

Life-size dancing harlequin figures in spring shades of green and white will dominate the scene at the Alliance Francaise dinner dance at the old Cavalier Hotel ballroom in Virginia Beach the evening of March 3. So that guests may participate in the light-hearted theme, harlequin masks in green or white will be presented to each person at the party. Table favors for every guest, offered by costume student Alliance members, will emphasize the same harlequin colors.

Festivities will begin with a cocktail hour at 7 p.m., during which the local Alliance chapter will also serve dubonnet to its guests. The cocktail time will be enlivened with a strolling French guitarist-singer who will feature favorite French songs, both vintage and the latest hits. A French-oriented dinner with wine will be served at 8 p.m., with dinner music by "The Shadows" orchestra who will also play for dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The guitarist will entertain at intermissions and at presentations of special door prizes throughout the evening.

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Paul Gerbluck. She will be assisted by Mrs. Frank Ritter in charge of decorations, Mrs. James Wilson, reservations; Mrs. Antoinette Linsley, clerical; and Mrs. Alvin Lanese, door prizes.

Invitations for ticket subscriptions at $22 per person ($12 tax deductible), reservations for group seating or further information can be obtained by calling 622-9155.

Crown Prince

Michael Pelkey, dancer with the Tidewater Ballet Association, has been selected to dance the role of the Crown Prince in the Thelma Olako Youth Ballet's production of Tsar Zartan. The ballet is to have its world premiere at the Hopewell Women's Club in honor of Princess Irene of Russia. Christin Parks, director of Thelma Olako Youth Ballet, has commissioned the choreography from Gene Hammett, artistic director of the Tidewater Ballet Association. Michael Pelkey is a model with Glamour, LTD. and has studied dance for two and a half years.

Musical comedy begins run at dinner theatre

"Cabin In the Sky" opened Feb. 13 at the Tidewater Dinner Theatre and will run through March 4. The play is being given its first stage production anywhere since its off Broadway revival in 1964 by Arthur Whitelaw.

Originally produced on Broadway in 1940, the musical comedy fantasy was written by Lyn Root with lyrics by John LaTouche and music by Vernon Duke. It was subsequently made into a movie with Ethel Waters from the Broadway cast repeating her role, and a cast which included Lena Horne.

The film did not use much of Vernon Duke's superb music, many of which songs have become standards, including "Taking a Chance on Love," "Do What You Want To Do," "Love Me Tomorrow," "Wade In The Water" (made a jazz hit by Ramsey Lewis), "Savannah," "Honey In The Honeycomb" and others.

Marti McGaw has assumed directorial responsibilities for the Tidewater production with Chris Kypros as musical director and Hugh Copeland as choreographer.

Debra Lusk-Barnes will perform the role of Petunia, created by Ethel Waters and Red Wiggins will portray her husband, Little Joe. Femme Fatale, Georgia Brown is played by June Webb with Kenneth Stewart as Lucifer Junior and Tony Pellerin as The Lord's General. The rest of the company is made up of actors and singers who have appeared on the Tidewater Dinner Theatre stage previously.

The story is basically that of Good versus Evil. There is whimsy, fantasy, laughter and tears; song and dance. It is a true musical of the 40's. As the curtain opens, Little Joe is on his deathbed, a ne'er do-well, a gambler shot by one of his cronies. Emmissaries from both heaven and hell wait for his soul, having a minor tiff about who indeed will get Little Joe.

As it happens, the Lord has mercy because Petunia, Little Joe's long suffering wife, is so good as to almost be a saint. He is given six months more on earth to reform. The catch is, when he awakens, he will not remember having been dead; nor will he know what challenge lies ahead. Lucifer Junior, a petulant child will tempt him with everything he can; the biggest temptation being Georgia Brown.

The Tidewater Dinner Theatre is located at 6270 Northampton Blvd. Call 461-2933 for information and reservations.

Taxicab ordinances studied

The City of Virginia Beach will ask the City of Norfolk to rescind ordinances that prevent a Virginia Beach-based taxicab from picking up a fare at the Norfolk International Airport and permits the "doubling up" of a fare for a passenger being taken into the City of Virginia Beach.

City Council Monday afternoon approved the resolution which City Manager George L. Hanbury said places an unfair hardship on Virginia Beach-based taxicab companies.

More people go to museums than play tennis, go bowling, jog, play softball, or go fishing.

Classified ad nets dozens of responses

A Portsmouth reader said she had very good results when she advertised her mobile home for rent through a classified ad in the Virginia Beach Sun/Chesapeake Post.

"I received at least two dozen calls from this ad," exclaimed the satisfied customer. "Your paper reaches so many people in the area," the woman continued. She added that she won't hesitate to run another classified ad in the Virginia Beach Sun/Chesapeake Post when she has something to advertise.

It's a good practice to flush all drains with lots of hot water after every use. This helps keep them free of grease and keeps clean water in the S-shaped pipe under the sink. To clear

The Human Touch

'Tis the human touch in this world that counts,
The touch of your hand and mine,
Which means far more to the fainting heart
Than shelter and bread and wine;
For shelter is gone when the night is over
And bread lasts only a day,
But the touch of the hand and the sound of the voice
Sing on in the soul always.

Delegate report

Legislation provides for safer waterways

The week ending Feb. 9 constituted the final period for both the Virginia House of Delegates and the State Senate to act on legislation introduced by its own membership.

The entire legislative package of the Marine Patrols Study Commission, which I had the honor to chair, has passed the House of Delegates. House Joint Resolution 296 encourages the Congress of the United States to enact legislation which would return the federal tax on fuel used to power motor boats to the states for boating related programs. Enactment of such legislation would produce approximately $850,644 in each fiscal year for the Commonwealth of Virginia, to be used for marine related services.

HJR 295 provides that the Virginia Marine Resources Commission, the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, the United States Coast Guard, and the police and sheriff's departments of the counties and cities of Virginia are directed to improve and maintain high quality interagency and intergovernmental coordination, cooperation and communication as to marine patrols and marine safety, including the upgrading and interlinking of radio systems wherever practical. Further, HJR 295 requests the relevant state agencies and Virginia localities to maximize the use of personnel, boats and equipment that are employed or owned for other purposes, to perform marine patrols and marine safety activities, whenever feasible, so as to minimize costs.

Finally, House Bill 1954 authorizes the Virginia Marine Resources Commission to implement a marine patrols dispatch system in the lower Chesapeake Bay and its tidal tributaries. At present, there is absolutely no system of coordination designed to maximize the use of the hundreds of boats and personnel presently owned and employed by the various state agencies and localities. Our commission found a great need for someone to know the location at all times of these craft and personnel so as to provide much faster search and rescue assistance, and to deter people from wreckless boating.

House Bill 1954 also provides a means by which the state will assist the localities with one-half the cost of their waterborne law enforcement, safety and rescue activities, not to exceed $10 per boat registered in the locality. This law will provide approximately $75,000 a year in additional help to Virginia Beach for water safety purposes.

As chairman of the Marine Patrols Study Commission, I would like to express particular appreciation to State Senator Russell I. Townsend, who represents Chesapeake and Virginia Beach, for his help on the commission.

In addition, I am especially grateful for the help and suggestions of Virginia Beach Councilwoman Meyera Oberdorfer and that of Virginia Beach Police Sergeant Stanley Bennett who graciously appeared before the commission on behalf of the city.

I certainly hope that the waterways of eastern Virginia will be much safer as the result of this legislation, at a very minimum cost to the state of Virginia.

Adjournment of the Virginia legislature is scheduled for Feb. 24. Before that time, I would enjoy having you write me as follows: Delegate Glenn B. McClanahan, State Capitol, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

Banning personal use of campaign funds

There's no question that it's improper for a retiring or defeated elected official to sponsor a big fund-raising dinner simply to acquire some pocket money. And yet they do it. They do it and defend it and encourage others to do it.

As Common Cause insists, a ban on personal use of campaign funds would help win new respect for politics and politicians.

Legislative approval may be as difficult to come by as the definition of "personal use."

The bid for renewed public confidence in the political system demands that the effort be pursued.

The Virginia Beach Sun welcomes and encourages letters from its readers on topics of general interest.

Letters should be short; on one side of the paper, and preferably type-written.

Summer scholarship

Cadet second classman Edwin L. Baker III of the Virginia Military Institute was recently awarded a scholarship to attend one of the British Universities' Summer Schools in 1979. The scholarship is in the memory of Marine Corps Captain James Rivers

Adams, VMI class of 1931, who was killed in action in Guam, July 21, 1944. The scholarship has been established by Elizabeth Adams Elliot and Davis H. Elliot of Roanoke.

Present at the ceremony awarding the scholarship were Major General Richard L. Irby, superintendent of VMI; Cadet Baker; Dr. Brewster Ford, the chairman of the scholarship committee; and Col. C. Ernest Edgar, III, commandant of cadets and professor of military science.

Cadet Baker is an academically distinguished biology major and a first sergeant in the corps of cadets. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Baker, Jr. of Five Point Road, Virginia Beach.

Friends establish memorial to 'Coach' James K. Cole

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun

On June 13, 1978, the city of Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department was saddened by the sudden death of their "boss" and friend, James K. Cole, Superintendent of Recreation, affectionately known to his employees as "Coach". To those of us who began our careers under "Coach", his professionalism indebted us to him and instilled within us the desire to do our best work.

Due to the respect so many people had for him, and for his untiring efforts in the promotion and development in the Recreation and Parks profession, we, his friends are establishing the James K. Cole Memorial Scholarship Fund and the 1st Annual James K. Cole Roundball Marathon Classic.

The basketball marathon will be held March 9, 10 and 11th at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center. The tournament will consist of 128 teams, ages 13 years and up. Teams can be either male, female or co-ed. This single elimination tournament will consist of 136 games played continuously beginning at 7 p.m. March 9 until 9 p.m. March 11. This will provide both spectators and team members with 50 action-packed hours of fun and competition.

All proceeds received from the tournament will be placed in the James K. Cole Memorial Scholarship Fund. A scholarship will be awarded to a qualified student who is pursuing a college degree in the field of Recreation and Parks. The selection committee which is composed of prominent members in the Tidewater community will determine the recipient of the scholarship.

Court should enforce rulings, woman says

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun

What's wrong with the Virginia Beach judicial system? The court can make a ruling, but apparently it is unable to enforce it.

An example: A divorce in which the court directed the former husband to pay child support. These payments were to be paid monthly to the court. In turn, the court was to pay the former wife. When the former husband doesn't pay, the court then warns him that his payments are delinquent. A call back to the court is necessary after several days to find out if the court has heard anything and to set a court date two weeks later if it hasn't. This process usually takes anywhere from two to six weeks.

The court hearing is next. When the names are called, ex-husband and ex-wife go into the Juvenile Court judge's chambers and discuss the problem. Ex-husband gets his hands slapped. Ex-wife usually gets a very small portion of child support and leaves depressed and disgusted. Then she has to wait patiently for the ex-husband to miss his payments for a few more months and start the process over again.

On occasions, the ex-husband gives the ex-wife a few dollars directly. When this happens, the court gets very upset. The ex-wife must take time off from work, drive to the Juvenile Court, and sign an affidavit stating how much money she received.

Each time the ex-wife pursues the non-support problem, the court thanks her for her patience, gives her ex-husband a warning, and sends her on her way. The court has made no effort to force payment and provide what was granted to the ex-wife three years before.

Visability important on wintry days

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Having come from the New England states, I have driven (and flown) in some not too desirable weather conditions over the years. Fortunately, due to good driving habits and a little bit of luck at times, nothing major has gotten in the way. But I can't thank many Tidewater drivers for this record to date.

It amazes me, and others at the Safety Center, how some people have the gall to attempt to drive their vehicles in a safe manner when the windows are either iced over or covered with several inches of packed snow. One little 12-inch opening is the only forward means of visibility, and nothing to the rear or side! Talk about your accidents waiting to happen. Well, we all have seen many of them over the past few "wintry" days here in Tidewater. Just why these "blind" drivers aren't cited for reckless driving is beyond me. Can't the police do something about this hazardous situation?

'Tight budget' to save taxpayer

City Manager Roger Scott broke with tradition Tuesday night in a speech before the Tidewater Association of Homebuilders (TAHB). He publicly disclosed the amount of the Virginia Beach operating budget for fiscal 1969-70 before it has been formally presented to City Council.

Scott told the homebuilders the budget "will total approximately $45 million." But sources at City Hall have been a little more specific, selling the figure at about $44.5. They say that will probably be pared down from the present form of about $44.7 million. ...

Crowd from Larkspur may oppose airport

Another large contingent of residents, this one from Larkspur, is expected to jam the City Council chambers on March 10, to protest the building of a general aviation airport nearby off Holland Road.

The Larkspur Civic League plans to lead the opposition against the airport planned by C.H. Byler of Byler Realty and Virginia Aviation Sales Ltd.

Byler applied for zoning changes and a use permit to build the airstrip and airport facilities. The property would have to be zoned industrial, and the civic league fears a "smoke-stack" industrial area nearby. ...

Council reaffirms stand

Virginia Beach City Council officially adopted a resolution Monday reaffirming an earlier stand against development of a state park in the False Cape area southward on the oceanfront below the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge to the North Carolina line. ...

Council is opposed to the park generally because of the loss of tax revenue by developing the property as a park instead of normal commercial and residential development. ...

College ground-breaking set

Princess Anne Business College will hold a ground-breaking ceremony on Feb. 28 for its new $180,000 school building.

The new building, which is scheduled for completion in time for summer classes, will be located at 2924 N. Lynnhaven Rd. directly behind the Pine Tree Inn.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Benefits keep families together

Social Security benefits play a leading role in helping to keep families together when they are threatened by loss of income as a result of the death of a worker. This is a fact that many people overlook.

For some families, the benefits mean that children can grow up in their own home instead of an institution. And for others, it means that the dreams of a deceased parent may live on because of the legacy of social security benefits payable on his or her work record.

Benefits are payable to children upon the retirement, death, or disability of a worker. Benefits are also payable to nonworking, surviving parents with minor or disabled children in their care who are also receiving social security benefits.

This aspect of social security comes to mind because 1979 has been declared the International Year of the Child by the United Nations General Assembly. We are urged to commemorate the year by reviewing our efforts to provide for the needs of children.

Although many people may not realize it, nearly 5 million children are currently receiving children's benefits, about one of seven of all social security beneficiaries. Benefits for children have been available since 1940 when the first social security benefits were paid.

Although children's benefits usually stop when the child reaches 18, they may continue until age 22 if the unmarried child remains in school full-time, or if the person is disabled before age 22.

Student's benefits are paid to almost 850,000 persons between 18 and 22. Payments go to students attending any accredited school full-time because the child is considered dependent on his or her parents for support.

Benefits for adult children who have a disability that begins before they reach age 22 and which is likely to prevent them from ever becoming gainfully employed, can start at any age. More than 400,000 persons are currently receiving childhood disability benefits. About 65 percent of them are receiving disability payments on the basis of a mental deficiency, but other disabling conditions include cerebral palsy, epilepsy, and schizophrenic disorders.

A child is entitled to 75 percent of the basic benefit payable on a deceased worker's record and 50 percent of a disabled or retired worker's benefit, subject to a family maximum. The average survivor family's benefit being paid currently is $398.00. However, since the family maximum may run from 150 percent to 188 percent of the worker's basic benefit, and the average worker's benefit is about 42 percent of his or her prior earnings, a family's benefits may amount from 75 to almost 100 percent of the worker's prior earnings.

More than 95 out of 100 children and their mothers or fathers can count on monthly cash benefits if the family's worker(s) die. These benefits may be paid when either parent dies, even if the surviving parent continues working.

The Social Security Administration also runs the supplemental security income program for needy blind, aged, or disabled people. SSI can pay benefits to disabled or blind children at any age.

For more information on social security and SSI for children contact the social security office at: 441-6401.

TIDEWATER COMMUNITY COLLEGE - VA BEACH

Today College Counts

By Dr. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

Inmates at St. Brides Correctional Center-Chesapeake are participating in the Associate in Science degree program in General Studies as a result of the cooperative efforts between the Rehabilitative School Authority at St. Brides and Tidewater Community College-Chesapeake.

The Associate in Science degree program in General Studies is designed to offer a student sufficient academic flexibility so that he may enter college with uncertain vocational or educational goals. The student can take courses in General Studies which are accepted in most four-year colleges and universities in a wide number of baccalaureate curricula. A special feature of the General Studies curriculum is that the student is not required to declare a specialized major subject field during the first two years of undergraduate education.

Ten full-time students are attending classes that are taught at St. Brides four afternoons a week by TCC-Chesapeake faculty members. Classes are offered in Composition I (English 111), General College Math (math 181), United States History I (History 111), and General Psychology (Psychology 201).

The TCC-Chesapeake Office of Continuing Education coordinated the planning of the program with Mrs. Joan Midgett, Principal, Rehabilitative School Authority, St. Brides Correctional Center, Dr. Charles Wall, Chairman-Humanities and Social Sciences, and Mr. John Massey, Chairman-Math, Sciences, and Technology, provided academic division support for the program which enabled its beginning at St. Brides.

Special efforts in setting up the off-campus program were made by the St. Brides staff and by the college Business Office, Admissions Office, Financial Aid and Counseling staffs.

Classroom notes

Mosely earns academic honors

Cadet Maj. Michael A. Mosely earned academic honors for the first semester of the 1978-79 school year at Wentworth Military Academy and Junior College, at Lexington, Missouri.

Cadet Mosely, son of Capt. and Mrs. C.R. Mosely of Virginia Beach, earned superior grades to qualify for the honor roll list. Those earning academic honors during specified grading periods at Wentworth are awarded extra privileges, and they are permitted to wear the scholastic ribbon on their uniform.

Residential youth care workshop offered at TCC

The Community and Social Services Department at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College will sponsor a workshop in residential youth care Feb. 20-22. The workshop is designed to offer in-service training for those who provide residential youth care as well as instructing those interested in entering the field.

Two additional workshops in residential youth care will be offered at the Virginia Beach Campus during the spring quarter. For further information, contact the Department of Community and Social Services at 427-3070.

Beach student wins scholarship

Deborah Malenda of Virginia Beach is the recipient of a $300 scholarship presented to the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College by the Virginia Association of Hospitality Accountants.

Ms. Malenda is the daughter of Mrs. Letty E. Malenda of Colonial Parkway and a second-year student majoring in hotel accounting through TCC's Hotel-Restaurant-Institutional Management curriculum. She plans to continue her education by seeking a bachelor's degree in hotel administration. Ms. Malenda says that although she may leave Tidewater to pursue further training, she hopes to work in the Tidewater area.

Career schools association elects officers

The Virginia Association of Private Career Schools elected officers at its annual meeting held Jan. 20 at the Hyatt House, Richmond. Elected from Virginia Beach were Herb E. Wittersheim, Automotive Training Institute, vice-president; and Joseph A. Kennedy, Princess Anne Business College, secretary/treasurer.

The association's next meeting will be held Saturday, March 3, in Roanoke.

Beach cadets anticipate military ball

For the Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps (NJROTC) units at the six high schools in Virginia Beach one of the highlights of the year is the formal Military Ball. It is being held this year on Sunday, Feb. 18, at the CPO Club at the Little Creek Amphibious Base.

About 400 of the cadets and their dates are expected to attend the dinner-dance from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight. Music will be provided by the Navy Show Band from Little Creek.

Overall responsibility for the ball rotates among the high schools, and this year the First Colonial High School NJROTC unit has the responsibility for the 8th annual event. The unit there is under the command of Cdr. Raymond C. Lackore, whose assistant is CPO John J. McCarron.

Besides the principals of the six high schools and several members of the central school administration, the units have invited many top navy officials in Tidewater. RADM. William E. Nicholson, Commandant of the Fifth Naval District, and Capt. Glenn C. Skinner Jr., Navy ROTC manager for the area, are expected to attend.

"To make marinade easy, the secret is "in the bag." Home economists suggest putting meat, fish or fowl in a strong plastic bag, being sure no bones are sticking out to pierce it. Pour the marinade in and tie the bag securely; turn frequently so the marinade soaks the food, discard or thoroughly wash the bag. Never return cooked food to any container in which it was stored when raw.

Realty Consultants represents Homeowners Relocation Service

Realty Consultants of Virginia, LTD. has been selected as the exclusive representative in the Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Chesapeake area for Homeowners Relocation Service of America, Inc., which is a national relocation and marketing service with headquarters in Charlotte, North Carolina.

George L. Ayers, broker, said, "Our membership with Homeowners Relocation Service allows us to better serve clients in our city and receive information on clients moving to our area from other parts of the United States. We can now mail these families a copy of our "Preferred Homes" brochure which is a monthly publication of the homes we have available in the Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Chesapeake area; and also tell them about schools, taxes, voting information and many helpful items to new comers. With this national exposure we shall be able to give the homes we have listed the advantage of being sold to a transferee through our associate members with Homeowners Relocation in another city.

Homeowners Relocation Service of America, Inc. Executive Vice President L.T. Randolph, stated, "We are very pleased to have Realty Consultants of Virginia, LTD. represent us in Virginia Beach, Norfolk, and Chesapeake, and its competent staff came highly recommended as leaders in the real estate field. Since the residential real estate business has become a national one, through Homeowners Relocation Service, we shall broaden the scope of Realty Consultants of Virginia, LTD. services to clients locally and nationally.

Schuyler named legislative council

James H. Schuyler has been named legislative counsel for the 113,000-member National Association of Home Builders. The appointment was announced Jan. 31 by Robert D. Bannister, NAHB senior staff vice president for governmental affairs.

Schuyler was minority counsel of the Senate Subcommittee on Housing and Urban Affairs since early 1977, serving under Sen. Edward Brooke (R-Mass.) and specializing in urban and rural housing, community and economic development, urban mass transit and national urban policies. From April 1976 to January 1977, he was assistant minority counsel.

Following his graduation from Harvard Law School in 1972, Schuyler joined New York Mayor John Lindsay's staff as a housing specialist. He later served as Acting Director of the Single Room Occupancy Housing Task Force under Mayor Abraham Beame.

Schuyler practiced law with the New York City law firm of Shea Gould Climenko and Casey from 1974 to 1976 before moving to the nation's capital to take a job with the Senate housing committee. He completed his undergraduate studies in 1969 with honors in political science at New York University.

Performance award goes to DPMA chapter

C.W. Smith Jr., CDP, of Virginia Beach has accepted in behalf of the Tidewater Chapter of Data Processing Management Association (DPMA) a Chapter Outstanding Performance Award (COPA) from DPMA Executive Director Edward J. Palmer, CDP, and International President George R.

Eggert, CDP.

The award was earned during the association's past award year on the basis of performance in the areas of education, membership, public relations, chapter meetings and association participation. The award was presented during DPMA's international conference in New Orleans, La.

The Tidewater Chapter of the Data Processing Management Association has been organized to promote and develop fellowships, cooperation, education, and scientific research into the field of data processing management.

A new face...

But not to Tidewater natives. Dot Kirby, with two years realty sales experience has recently joined Realty Consultants, Virginia Beach. She was employed by United Virginia Bank for ten years prior to beginning her career in real estate. Her son, Michael D. Kirby, is the Indian River Jr. H.S. Band Director, while her daughter, Cheryl Waterfield, teaches at the Point of View Elementary School in Virginia Beach. Mrs. Kirby will begin her duties as a full-time sales associate.

Westminster Canterbury relocates

Westminster Canterbury of Hampton Roads has announced the relocation of their offices to 4700 Thoroughgood Square in Virginia Beach from Koger Executive Center.

Dr. Daniel D. Dickinson, administrator of the planned retirement facility, stated, "This move is a large step forward in our development, giving us much larger quarters in a well known location. We are now only five minutes from our building site on Shore Drive."

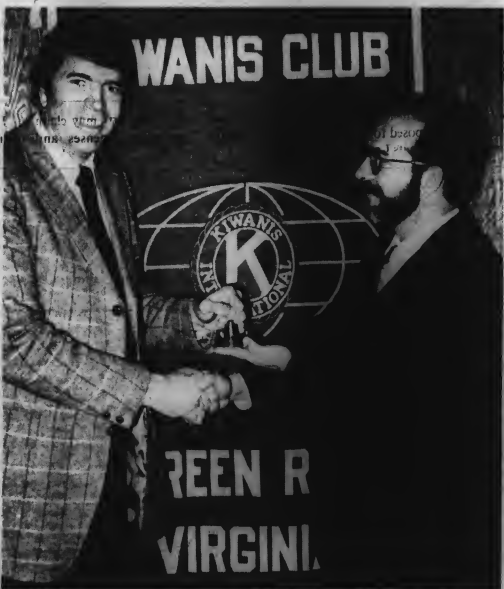

The new office is located in the former sales office for the Thoroughgood development owned by Danny and Richard Collier. Leasing arrangements were handled by Robert Harrington of David L. Cassida & Associates.

Notes from the shelter industry

Popular heat pump saves energy, cuts utility costs

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications, Tidewater Builders Association

What could be better in an energy-hungry world than a heater that creates more energy than it uses? Solar heating systems do this, of course, but they are costly and not always practical. Not dependent directly on the sun, heat pumps provide an increasingly popular alternative for home heating.

Heat pumps have become so popular in Tidewater that they are being installed in over 95 percent of the new homes being built in Virginia Beach and Chesapeake.

A heat pump is essentially a central air conditioner with indoor and outdoor units that can operate in reverse. A switch-over valve allows the units to serve the double function of expelling warm air from the home in summer and extracting warmth from the outside in the winter.

The pump operates on three principles of physics: (1) heat flows naturally from a warm place to a cooler one; (2) when expanded, gases become cooler; (3) when compressed, gases become hotter.

It may seem strange to heat a home with the warmth of winter air, but heat is present all the way down to minus 460 degrees Fahrenheit -- or "absolute zero". Eighty-six percent of the heat in the air at 100 degrees is still there at zero; however, for the purposes of home heating, it is more difficult to extract.

In winter, a cold liquid refrigerant in the outdoor coil picks up heat from the warmer air around it and becomes a gas. The gas is then pushed through a compressor where it picks up even more heat as it travels toward the indoor unit. The cooler air inside the house absorbs heat from the gas, which turns back to liquid form as it cools and is pushed outside to begin the process again.

The refrigeration cycle described above is far more efficient than the electrical resistance cycle used by the central electric furnace and the baseboard heating system which work essentially like huge electric toasters. While an electric furnace takes one watt of electricity and delivers one watt of energy, a heat pump can yield up to two or three watts for every one it consumes.

Heat pumps cost about the same to install in a new home as an oil furnace and central air conditioning combination. When compared to the electric heating and air conditioning system, the real saving is evidenced in operating costs, which are reduced as much as 50 percent.

The major drawback of heat pumps is that their efficiency drops as temperatures outside fall. To collect enough heat from outside during extremely cold days, the heat pump would have to be equipped with huge outside coils. This would be impractical and costly so builders in this area add on an auxiliary system (usually electric resistance heat) to handle the heating needs of a home during very cold days. These supplementary systems usually provide a 75 to 100 percent back-up.

There has been some experimentation with tying a heat pump system to a solar system, or combining it with another form of energy. Some heat pumps run simultaneously with a second system, but this is inefficient since both must run at the same time. There is, however, a move toward the use of a mixed fuel system whereby an automatic thermostat switches from the heat pump to the furnace when temperatures fall below the pump's efficient range and switches back as the temperature rises.

The heat pump is still a new system, and some critics say that a final assessment of the product cannot be made until its long-term efficiency and repair record is available. However, dollar for dollar, it is, at present, still the most reasonable way to heat and cool a new home.

Deductions permitted for some auto expenses

Taxpayers may be able to claim as tax deductions expenses incurred when using their automobile for business, moving, charitable and medical purposes, the Internal Revenue Service advised.

Those who keep record of actual costs may claim operating expenses and fixed expenses, such as depreciation -- and insurance, for business use of their automobile. But for deductible nonbusiness uses, only operating expenses may be claimed.

Instead of claiming actual expenses, taxpayers may use an optional mileage allowance method. Taxpayers can deduct 17 cents per mile for the first 15,000 and 10 cents per mile for each additional mile when their automobile is used for business purposes. Individuals who use their automobile for charitable, medical, or moving expenses are allowed 7 cents per mile under tax guidelines. In all instances, parking and toll fees may be claimed in addition to the mileage rate.

If the taxpayer was reimbursed for the expenses by his or her employer, only the amount of the expenses in excess of the reimbursement may be deducted. If the employer's reimbursement exceeds the employee's expenses, the amount of the excess reimbursement must be shown as gross income, the IRS said.

For more details concerning business expenses, the free IRS Publication 463, Travel, Entertainment, and Gift Expenses, is available from the IRS by using the mail-order form in the tax package.

Proposed legal ethics opinion warns against misuse of funds in real estate purchase, sale

It is unethical for a Virginia lawyer to deliver any checks on his trust account in connection with a real estate settlement until monies intended for that settlement are actually received in his trust account and not subject to stop payment or dishonor by the issuing bank.

This is the conclusion drawn in a Legal Ethics Opinion being proposed to the governing council of the Virginia State Bar by its Legal Ethics Committee.

Under a Virginia Supreme Court rule, the public must be given notice of and invited to comment on the proposed bar opinion at least 75 days before it is considered for approval by the Virginia State Bar Council, which will meet April 27 in Arlington.

According to the Legal Ethics Committee, there have been instances in Virginia in which lawyers used other clients' funds to cover a check issued on behalf of a client in a real estate transaction until the funds intended for that transaction were actually received in the lawyer's account, usually a short time.

The question presented in proposed Advisory Legal Ethics Opinion 182 is: "When may the attorney who serves as settlement or closing attorney in connection with the purchase and/or mortgage financing of real estate ethically disburse funds from his trust account?"

The Legal Ethics Committee, in its conclusion, says: "The attorney may disburse funds from his trust account only when the funds are actually in the attorney's trust account."

Free IRS publications answer tax questions

Tax law may be complicated, but the IRS has more than 90 free publications to make it easier to understand.

If you have a tax problem, there probably is an IRS publication that will answer it. In fact, there are even some IRS publications in Spanish.

Most IRS offices have the publications readily available or you can use the order blank provided in your tax forms package for ordering by mail.

Some of the more common free IRS publications include the following (the number denotes the publication number):

- 17 Your Federal Income Tax

Beach lawyer suspended

The Virginia State Bar Disciplinary Board has suspended the Virginia law license of Virginia Beach lawyer Gerald Rubinger, 42, who was convicted Dec. 13 by the Circuit Court of Virginia Beach on a charge of bribing witnesses.

The disciplinary board's suspension order takes into consideration the fact that bribery constitutes a crime under Rules of the Supreme Court of Virginia governing the ethical conduct of lawyers.

The suspension will remain in effect pending a disciplinary board hearing Feb. 22 in Richmond to determine whether Rubinger's license should be revoked. Rubinger will have an opportunity at the hearing to demonstrate sufficient cause as to why his law license should not be revoked.

Should Rubinger, who lives on North Lynhaven Road, Virginia Beach, appeal his bribery conviction by the Circuit Court, the suspension order will remain in effect until the appeal is settled.

Platz

Coast Guard Lieutenant Bruce W. Platz Jr., son of Bruce W. and Patricia A. Platz of Sunrise Drive, Virginia Beach, is participating in an oceanographic research mission in the North Atlantic.

He is executive officer of the Coast Guard cutter Evergreen, homeported in New London, Conn.

The Evergreen will be conducting experiments with various types of life rafts to determine drift patterns under various weather conditions. The findings will aid world wide search and rescue efforts. Port visits are scheduled in Charleston, S.C. and Bermuda.

Platz is a 1971 graduate of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., with a Bachelor of Science degree, and a graduate of the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, Calif., with a Master of Science degree.

Chapman

Coast Guard Ensign Eric K. Chapman, son of Kendall J. Chapman, and stepson of Francis E. Chapman, both of Ewell Road, Virginia Beach, was graduated from the National Search and Rescue (SAR) School.

The four-week course at the Coast Guard Training Center, Governors Island, New York City, was designed to prepare students for duty in rescue coordination centers of aboard rescue ships and aircraft. The school is joint Coast Guard-Air Force Activity which presents standardized doctrine and techniques for personnel from military, Federal and civilian agencies involved in SAR efforts.

He is a 1974 graduate of Bayside High School, and a 1978 graduate of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy with a Bachelor of Science degree.

Elliott

Marine Lance Corporal James R. Elliott, son of John N. and Martha Elliott of Burton Station Road, Virginia Beach, recently departed for a deployment in the Mediterranean Sea.

He is a member of the 3d Battalion, Eighth Marines, based at Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

His unit is embarked aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Iwo Jima, operating as a unit of the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

During the cruise, his unit is scheduled to participate in various amphibious training exercises with other Sixth Fleet units and those of allied nations. Port visits are scheduled in Rota and Palma, Spain and Naples, Italy.

A 1975 graduate of Bayside High School, he joined the Marine Corps in August 1976.

Cachaper

Navy Mess Management Specialist First Class Basilio C. Cachaper Jr., whose wife, Veneracion, is the daughter of Ramon and Florina A. Marty of Hidden Valley, Virginia Beach, recently participated in exercise "Cold Start" in the Gulf of Maine.

He is a member of the staff of Commander Amphibious Squadron Eight, homebased at Norfolk.

The exercise provided Navy and Marine Corps personnel with training and experience in cold weather amphibious operations. The exercise included a helicopterborne assault into the Naval Air Station, Brunswick, Maine, by a reinforced Marine rifle company, supported by jet attack aircraft, anti-tank missiles and artillery. The landing force consisted of an amphibious assault ship, an amphibious transport dock and a tank landing ship.

Cachaper joined the Navy in June 1964.

Oceana unit retires Captain's Cup after three triumphs

The old adage that says "three times is a charm" has certainly proved true in the sports world at Naval Air Station (NAS) Oceana for the Fleet Aviation Specialized Operational Training Group Atlantic Fleet (FASOTRAGRULANT - commonly referred to as FASO). This means that FASO won the cup three years in a row and this trophy has become their unit's personal and permanent possession. FASO's victory years were from 1976 through 1978.

Captain D.J. Michaels, NAS Oceana's Commanding Officer, recently presented FASO the cup, marking the first time in 15 years that the cup was retired. Attack Squadron Forty-Two did it back in 1963. The Captain's Cup is presented annually to the unit which distinguishes itself above all others in intramural sports competition by accumulating the greatest number of adjusted points.

Participation on a large scale was a key note in FASO's success story, as they entered 15 of 18 events in 1978, and more than 76 out of 127 personnel competed in athletic events. They compiled 1,155 points, the bulk of which was obtained in minor sports. Minor sports at Oceana are table tennis, badminton, handball, racquetball, horseshoes, relay racing, boxing, billiards, decathlon and tennis. Softball, basketball, football, golf, bowling and volleyball are considered as major sports.

Taking seven championships and six runners-up, FASO never finished lower than fifth place in 13 events for the 1978 competition. Overall, the 1978 runner-up for the Captain's Cup was Fighter Squadron Forty-

Three with 464 points.

After all points are added up, they are multiplied by a factor of 2.2 and that gives FASO their 1,155 point total for 1978.

Beach man takes part in multi-million dollar tank testing project

One of the largest defense procurements for 1979 may be in the form of a new sophisticated 59-ton tank called the XM-1. With a price tag of nearly 1 million dollars each, the Army's new XM-1 main battle tank may soon be replacing the M-60 tank which has been in use since the early 1950's.

At present, NATO countries are heavily outnumbered by Warsaw Pact tanks in Europe, the XM-1 may help offset this numerical disadvantage. Tests being conducted at Ft. Bliss, Texas will soon determine the operational effectiveness and military utility of the XM-1.

A local man, Specialist Four James Hedgepeth of Virginia Beach, is an important part of this testing. For nearly 11 months, Hedgepeth and the members of his unit have been involved in the second phase of testing for the XM-1. Tests will end later this month. Operational Test II (OTII), as it is called, places 5 XM-1 prototype tanks against 5 M-60 tanks. These tests are providing comparison of how much of an advantage the new tank has over a battle proven M-60 model.

Hedgepeth, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ollen Hedgepeth of Virginia Beach, is assigned to H Company, 2nd Squadron, 3d Armored Cavalry at Ft. Bliss. During the testing he is working as a driver of an XM-1 tank.

As the XM-1 driver, Hedgepeth sits in the front center compartment of the tank. Laying almost flat in a specially designed seat, he navigates by viewing through three large periscopes which are also equipped with windshield wipers. At night he looks through a special telescope which emits absolutely no light, yet while looking through the scope even on the darkest of nights it appears to be daylight outside.

He controls the 1,500 horsepower turbine engine using steering and throttle controls similar to those found on motorcycles. He has at his disposal an instrument panel which contains a variety of different warning lights which warn of any problems such as low electrolyte levels in the batteries or clogged up air filters.

Hedgepeth joined the Army in December 1975 and took basic training at Ft. Knox, Kentucky. "I joined the Army to see what it was like. Later I found out that I really liked it," said the 24-year-old soldier.

Captain David Cowan, Commander of H Company, praised the work of Hedgepeth and his fellow soldiers. "The people I've got working for me are some of the finest tankers in the world. They've gone through the most extensive training period and through the most demanding testing that probably anyone has ever been in. I've had many comments made to me by senior officers and officials that the things we have been doing here during the testing could only be more difficult if we were under actual combat conditions. The men have worked day and night under all conditions and through it all we've kept this test on schedule."

Interest in the new tank goes beyond the Army. According to Brigadier General Richard D. Lawrence, Chief of the Tank Management Office, the Marine Corps is also expected to procure the XM-1.

The Chrysler Defense Group, which is building the tank, has received approval from the Defense Department to cooperate with Dutch government officials who are interested in co-producing the XM-1 in their country. Other NATO countries have also expressed interest in acquiring the new tank.

Although the five prototype XM-1's used a 105mm main gun during OTII, considerations are under way to have later versions mount a smooth bore 120mm high velocity main gun. This change would not require any significant structural modification. The larger gun is preferred by NATO. With testing officials calling it the most advanced and sophisticated tank in the world, the XM-1 may become the tank of the future.

Hedgepeth graduated from Bayside High School in 1974. He was employed as an apprentice mortician for Smiley Funeral Home, Virginia Beach, before joining the Army.

Much quieter and faster than its M-60 counterpart, the XM-1 will be an exceptionally difficult target for an enemy gunner to spot, track and hit. The 105mm main gun is capable of first round hits at ranges of 3,000 meters. It also features multi-fuel capabilities.

Olbrych

Navy Chef Machinist's Mate James V. Olbrych, whose wife, Sharon, is the daughter of Walter L. and Alice Core of Hinsdale St., Virginia Beach, recently participated in exercise "Cold Start" in the Gulf of Maine.

He is a member of the staff of Commander Amphibious Squadron Eight, homebased at Norfolk.

The exercise provided Navy and Marine Corps personnel with training and experience in cold weather amphibious operations. The exercise included a helicopterborne assault into the Naval Air Station, Brunswick, Maine, by a reinforced Marine rifle company, supported by jet attack aircraft, anti-tank missiles and artillery. The landing force consisted of an amphibious assault ship, an amphibious transport dock and a tank landing ship.

Olbrych joined the Navy in July 1964.

Platz

Navy Lieutenant (junior grade) Kelley D. Platz, son of Bruce W. and Patricia A. Platz of 1708 Sunrise Drive, Virginia Beach, recently deployed with the Atlantic Standing Naval Force, an organization within the NATO alliance.

He is an officer assigned to the frigate USS Paul, homeported in Mayport, Fla.

While deployed in the North Atlantic Ocean, the Paul will participate in various exercises with units from Canada, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, and West Germany. Port visits are scheduled in England, Portugal, France, and Germany.

A graduate of Bayside High School, Platz joined the Navy in January 1976.

Marine Second Lieutenant Scott B. Stokes, son of Dr. and Mrs. William S. Stokes of 140 Linlier Drive, Virginia Beach, recently participated in exercise "Varsity Lance" off the Southern California coast.

He is an officer assigned to the 1st Battalion, 5th Marines located at Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif. The 12-day exercise involved more than 20,000 personnel, 38 ships and 250 aircraft from U.S. Navy and Marine Corps squadrons. "Varsity Lance" began with advance inport training by all units and continued with an at-sea warmup period. The assembled forces conducted sea control operations in preparation for amphibious landings at Camp Pendleton, Calif. The exercise then continued ashore at Camp Pendleton for Marine Corps forces, while naval surface and air units conducted antisubmarine and anti-air warfare training at sea. The exercise ended with an amphibious backload from Camp Pendleton and return transit to the San Diego area.

A 1975 graduate of Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va., with a Bachelor of Arts degree, Stokes joined the Marine Corps in April 1974.

Merkle

Pvt. James E. Merkle Jr., whose wife, Colleen, and parents live on Deary Lane, Virginia Beach, recently received the Gen. Creighton W. Abrams Award at the end of basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

The award is made to the trainee who best demonstrates leadership ability and professional military performance.

Longfellow

Navy Storekeeper Seaman Bobby J. Longfellow Jr., whose wife, Jamie, is the daughter of Lt. Cmdr. Frank T. and Elizabeth Simpson of Parkside Place, Virginia Beach, is currently on deployment to Rota, Spain.

He is a member of Naval Mobile Construction Battalion One (NMCB-1), homebased in Gulfport, Miss.

The "Seabees" of NMCB-1 are scheduled to perform various construction projects.

Longfellow joined the Navy in June 1978.

A Regional spot for Bayside?

By MIKE D'ORSO
Virginia Beach Sun Sports Writer

With Cox assured of a spot in the Eastern Regional Basketball Tournament, the other Regional berth for the Beach District will go to the District Tournament champion. With this in mind, this week's final regular season District games will be anything but anticlimactic.

If the tournament champion is the regular season champion - that is, if Cox wins the tournament - then the Regional berth will go to the runner-up team in the tournament.

Therefore, if Cox makes it to the tournament finals, its opponent will have a spot in the Regionals before the game begins.

Since Cox will open the tournament against the regular season's fourth place team, if the Falcons win that game, the winner of the tournament game between the second and third place teams will clinch a spot in the Regionals, regardless of the outcome of the tournament championship game.

So there is clearly a big difference between finishing third or fourth in the regular season, depending on Cox's performance in the opening tournament game.

Which brings us to this Friday.

Bayside is currently in fourth place, one game behind Kempville. If the Marlins beat First Colonial Friday night, and if Kempville loses to Cox, then the two teams would finish tied for third place.

Although Bayside has beaten Kempville in both of their meetings this year, if the two teams end up in a tie, a coin would be flipped, with the winner claiming the third place slot.

If the Marlins should win the playoff game, and assuming Cox beats Kempville in the opening round of the tournament, the battle for the other spot in the Eastern Regional Tournament would be between second-place Princess Anne and third-place Bayside.

Should Bayside win that game, Coach Johnny Dollar's young Marlins, winless a year ago, will have scored an amazing coup.

Obviously, this is an "iffy" situation. The stage for a Bayside upset will be set if:

- 1) Kempville loses Friday night;
- 2) Bayside wins Friday night;
- 3) Bayside wins a coin-flip with Kempville;
- 4) Cox wins the opening tournament game.

But looking at each of these possibilities, the odds are riding with Bayside on all but one count - Bayside's hopes for a shot at the Regionals would seem to rest on the flip of a coin.

So don't be surprised to find Johnny Dollar's sophomore-laden club fighting for a Regional berth a week from now.

Cox tops Princess Anne for hoop title

By MIKE D'ORSO

Virginia Beach Sun Sports Writer

Behind the same lethal inside-outside attack which has carried them throughout the season, Cox's Falcons dropped visiting Princess Anne 76-66 Friday night to clinch the Beach District title. With that title comes a reserved spot in the Regionals for the 14-5 Falcons.

Mr. Inside for Cox has been center Rich Davidson, who averages 15.7 points a game by dominating the backboards and the lane area, while Myron Goffigan roams the perimeter, scoring his average of 16.1 points on an assortment of slinky drives and gilding jump shots. Each of the two had 20 points in Friday's championship victory.

"It feels kinda' numb right now"

"It feels kinda numb right now," said Davidson in the Falcons' ecstatic dressing room. "It takes a while for things to sink in for me." Id didn't take long for the square-jawed transfer from North Carolina to make his presence felt at the Beach this season. For Cox, he was just what the doctor ordered.

"I didn't know we were going to have a big man before the year started," observed forward Brian Garwood. "Then Rich came from Carolina." With Davidson, the Falcons have a hub around which their offense and defense can revolve. His presence gives his teammates more opportunity to do their thing.

"Rich covers so much ground on our press," says Cox coach George Ontko of his 6'6" center. "He's so mobile." Cox needed that press Friday night, when a game-long lead was erased after three quarters by the persistent Cavaliers.

Technical foul starts game

Technically, Cox had the lead before the game had even begun. Princess Anne's new addition, Terrell Hodges, put on a show for the crowd during warm-ups by slamming one dunk after another to the roaring approval of the visiting fans.

However, the Cavalier jumping jack slammed one too many as the referees entered the gym in mid-dunk and slapped Princess Anne with a technical foul. John Steele (13 points) dropped in the gratis free throw to begin the game and Cox was off and running.

Combining a stingy zone defense with good medium-range shooting, the Falcons reeled off eight unanswered points to lead 9-0 before Dave Moyer hit a jumper for the Cavaliers exactly midway through the initial quarter.

While Cox kept their steady game going in the second quarter, the 6'2" Hodges (12 points) was putting on a show at Princess Anne's end of the court, as he played above the rim, dropping in alleyoop passes and close range follow shots. Hodges' pure jumping ability and Geno Carballo's (11 points) hot hand off the bench kept Princess Anne within range in the first half as Cox took a 37-33 midway lead.

Williams caps Cavalier comeback

After the Falcons struck first in the second half to open an eight-point spread, Brett Williams (16 points) gave a hint of things to come by intercepting two passes and dropping in a layup and a ten-footer to bring the Cavaliers close. Both teams traded scores until Williams' thievery stung Cox again as his steal and two free throws closed the gap to one point with 1:14 left in the third quarter.

A Cox turnover gave Princess Anne the ball with 1:48 to go, and while Cox patiently watched from their packed zone, guards Brett and Marvin Williams played catch until the clock showed ten seconds. Then Marvin Williams (11 points) calmly tossed in a 22-footer to put the Cavaliers on top for the first time, 49-48.

"We tried to keep it under control," commented Garwood in reference to the tight second half. But Princess Anne seemed to be taking control, carrying their surge into the final quarter as Brett Williams again played pickpocket with back-to-back steals and layups to keep his team up, 53-51.

However, the Falcons' steady inside game was taking its toll on Princess Anne's strength as the Cavaliers' center, Thad Miles, had picked up four fouls while fighting Cox's inside wave. After Brett Williams' 16-footer tied the game at 55, Garwood took a snappy feed from Davidson to the basket, was fouled by Miles, and sank his layup to put Cox ahead and Miles on the bench.

Garwood jumped higher after his layup than he did while shooting it, for he knew, as did the crowd, that that was the turning point in the game. With Miles' broad shoulders on the bench, Hodges could not carry the inside load alone, and Cox's press opened the way for eight unanswered points which sewed up the game and the District crown.

"Great! Great! Great!"

"Tremendous!" grinned Garwood amid hand slaps, screaming, and ratherhanging in the winners' dressing room. "Great! Great! Great!"

"We had to get 'em tonight," said Ontko. "If we didn't win it this year, I don't know when we would."

With a team full of seniors, it's easy to understand Ontko's feelings. All of Cox's starting team, except Davidson, saw their season end last year at the hands of Kempville in the District tournament. Fittingly, the Falcons close out the regular season against the Chiefs this Friday. Kempville pinned Cox with its only district

Beach senior 20th in scoring nationwide

Virginia's Wesleyan College senior guard Mark Butts is 20th in the nation in scoring and the basketball team is nationally ranked, according to the latest NCAA poll.

Butts, sharp-shooting co-captain of the Blue Marlins, had a 21.7 average after 18 games this season. The Virginia Beach native leads the Dixie Conference in scoring by a wide margin.

The team, with a starting lineup composed of three Portsmouth residents and two from Virginia Beach, is ranked among the top 23 teams in the nation by virtue of its tough schedule and a current 16-5 record.

Butts, who reached the 1,000 point plateau last week against North Carolina Methodist, accomplished this feat in only two years. He is only the third Blue Marlin player to hit 1,000 points in his college career.

defeat earlier this season, but the Chiefs had standout Mike Downs in the lineup then. He'll watch Friday's game from the bench with a cast on his foot.

"We've got a score to settle with them," said the red-headed Steele. "They kept us out of the Regionals last year."

"We've gotta' even the score with them," echoed Davidson.

"I think we'll have something for them," smiled Ontko.

But is this Friday's game the topic of Falcon's thoughts, with the District title and a Regional berth in hand?

"We're just going to enjoy this," says Ontko.

By MIKE D'ORSO
Virginia Beach Sun Sports Writer

Cox, the perennial powerhouse of Beach wrestling, continued their tradition Saturday night by waltzing away with the District tournament crown. Combined with the Falcon basketball team's Friday night clinching of the District title, Cox enjoyed a championship weekend.

Before a packed house at Kellam High School, Cox, which advanced eleven wrestlers into the finals, lost its first five matches before Buddy Kerr began a Falcon sweep of the last six matches by defeating Kempville's Phil Lanman 4-0 at 138.

As the overwhelming tournament favorite, Cox wore the black hat in the fans' eyes, and every Falcon defeat was cheered as a victory for the underdog.

Cox's defeats in the lower weight classes were relished by the anti-Cox fans in much the same way as rare losses by the old New York Yankee baseball dynasties were seen as blows for equality.

Uzzie takes 98-pound title

Kellam's 98-pounder, Irvin Uzzie, capped his Cinderella tournament by upsetting Cox's Harry Johnson 5-2 to begin the evening. In the only Cox-less final match, Bayside's Lee Willie won by default at 105 over Kempville's John Edwards, who was leading 2-0 when he injured his hip.

With the crowd cheering for anyone but the favored Falcons, Kellam's Ray Lewis wrestled Cox's Scott Parr at 112, and last year's 98-pound state champion had to go into overtime to edge Parr 6-3. Now the anti-Cox contingent was heating up and Bayside's Davis Johnson kept the fires going by edging Cox's Keith Lown 7-6 at 119. In an equally tight match, Bayside's 126-pounder, Jeff Boyce, decided Cox's Jeff Violeck 4-3, and the Marlins' Dave Casher topped Cox's Mark Davidson 7-3 at 132 to give the Marlins four champions in the first six weight classes.

Cox takes off with Kerr victory

At that point, Kerr gave the Falcon cheering section some fuel with his victory, and the Cox juggernaut was rolling. Steve Pritchett took a tense 7-6 decision over First Colonial's Tom Coghill at 145, and in the night's biggest upset, Kempville's 155-pounder, Steve Stover, was beaten 3-1 by the Falcons' Kurt Felthousen. Jimmy Carleo picked up another crown for Cox at 167 by defeating Kempville's John Kimarski 9-2, and the Cox fans now owned the gym.

In the hottest contest of the night, Bayside's Mike Cuffee picked up an early point and made it stand until 40 seconds remained in his 185-pound bout with Cox's Paul Gaudreau. At that point, while riding Gaudreau, Cuffee was penalized for stalling, giving Gaudreau the tying point, and then, with 15 seconds left, Gaudreau was awarded another stalling point to win 2-1 as a cascade of boos poured down on the referee.

Woodhouse caps Falcon finish

There was no question about Mark Woodhouse's win at unlimited. The Falcon giant put First Colonial's enormous David Mayhan on his back for a pin in 1:35.

With the slap of the referee's hand on the mat, signalling Woodhouse's pin, Cox's undefeated heavyweight sprang to his feet, facing the roaring Falcon contingent with one finger thrust into the air in the gesture of champions.

Nobody would dare argue with him.

Each weight class's top four finishers will wrestle this weekend in the Regional tournament at Manor High School. They are, in order of District tournament finishes:

98 Uzzie (Kel) Johnson (C) Wiggins (FC) Tadeo (Kemp)	105 Willie (Bay) Edwards (Kemp) South (PA) Jordan (FC)	138 Kerr (C) Lanman (Kemp) Drinko (FC) Carroll (Bay)	145 Pritchett (C) Coghill (FC) Sutherland (Kemp) Green (PA)

Boat show spurs dreams of warmer weather at Beach

By JOSEPH RUTH
Special to the Virginia Beach Sun

February is boat show time in Tidewater and while the weather was far from conducive to most watersports, Virginia Beach residents were recently given an opportunity to view, under one roof, the wares of all the local boat dealers, and to dream a bit about the coming boat season.

The 26th annual Mid-Atlantic Sports and Boat Show closed last Sunday after a one week run at Scope in Norfolk. The 150 boats on display ranged from inflatables and sail powered surf boards to a 32-foot motor cruiser and a 27-foot sailboat. There were also numerous boating related products displayed such as nautical hardware, marine electronic equipment, fresh and salt water fishing tackle, nautical furniture, clothing and marina facilities.

Beach man receives scouting award

Veteran scoutmaster Howard A. George, a Virginia Beach resident and Norfolk Naval Shipyard electrician in Shop 51, recently received the coveted Silver Beaver Award for "distinguished service to boyhood."

Although George was surprised to receive the high award, 1978 was a banner year for him in terms of recognition for his efforts in scouting. In addition to the Silver Beaver Award, he was the recipient of the District Award of Merit, Advisor of the Year and Explorer Training Award. He also received an Outstanding Contribution Award from the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, which sponsors his Explorer Post 440.

The Silver Beaver Award caps 15 years of service to Explorer Post 440 by George.

Silver Beaver Awards are presented annually and require approval of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America. The highest awards that can be given by the Tidewater Council, they are limited to one award for every 75 units.

The Tidewater Council cited George for serving "as Merit Badge Counselor in the field of electricity, safety, fire and first aid. He has assisted the council and district by giving first aid support for special events and scout shows. His involvement with exploring demonstrates quite clearly his dedication to the program. He is never reluctant to assist for the good of scouting. He is truly a dedicated scoutmaster."

George said, "It is very rewarding to me to see those youngsters with whom I have worked leave the post and make a good life for themselves." Explorers range from 14 to 21 years of age, and while most leave at 18, members are trained to cope with life while preparing for a trade or other vocations. Both boys and girls are members of the Explorers.

George commended his wife, Kathryn, and said "I couldn't have done it without her. She has worked closely with the group throughout the years and has assisted with the activities," he said.

"Our satisfaction is derived from seeing the accomplishments made through a good program which helps youngsters move in the right direction rather than hanging around the streets," George said.

The Georges have three sons. Two are in the Air Force and one will leave soon for the Army. Their oldest son serves as a scoutmaster in addition to his duties in the Air Force.

The Georges live on Sedgfield Avenue in Virginia Beach.

Lynnhaven rezoning approved by city council themselves to constructing no more than 372 units on the property.

Ms. Bobbie Michaels, president of the First Colonial Civic League, which, she said, is not a member of the Great Neck Association, cited as the basis for opposition congestion of First Colonial Road and the fact that the new school is not scheduled for completion until 1964. The association had earlier in the proceedings approved the rezoning requests only to withdraw approval later.

Larry Wilson, president of the Great Neck Meadows Civic League, also complained that the rezonings would create a 400 percent increase in density. If the property were rezoned, he said, there would be pressure on the council to downzone the surrounding area.

The rezoning on the Hofheimer tract was sought to permit developers to continue developing Middle Plantation, an affluent subdivision.

E. Kenneth Day, representing the applicants and also one of the developers, said that he would furnish assurances from the owners that they would not try to rezone their remaining holdings in the area which are also zoned R-1. He said it was the only subdivision in Virginia Beach utilizing the open space option. That is, property which would ordinarily be part of private lots is used for community open space areas.

He said that although R-3 zoning will permit lot sizes to be as small as 12,000 square feet, the minimum lot size in the development would be 18,500 square feet with lots as large as two acres close to the water. R-1 zoning requires lot size to be a minimum of 40,000 square feet, close to an acre.

Day said that 120 units are planned for the tract which comes to 1.4 units per acre, the same average density throughout the Little Neck area. The original zoning for the Middle Plantation Subdivision already under construction was R-2 and R-3.

Attorney James Pickrel, representing the Little Neck, Redwing Farms and King's Grant Civic Leagues, presented a petition with 608 signatures of people opposing the application.

He emphasized that the present Middle Plantation is being built under existing zoning. The development of one area is no reason to throw away existing zoning, he said. Pickrel said that R-1 zoning in the city is fast vanishing. Among the 1,581 acres zoned R-1 still remaining in the city 433 are in this area, he said. "If you grant this, you will be granting (rezoning) for the whole area."

Day maintained that R-1, R-2 and R-3 classifications were all considered low density zoning and were therefore in keeping with the Little Neck plan.

Reid Ervin said it made more sense to him to have grass swales than curbs and gutters in some areas.

Councilman Donald S. Merrick placed R-1 zoning in the same class as waterfront property. He said both are becoming more scarce.

Councilman John A. Baum said that R-1 zoning was left over from the Princess Anne County days when "we needed it for water and sewer." He said that the more restrictive zoning is in the north end, the more pressure there will be in the south end of the city. He said that many of the people living in R-1 areas now, couldn't afford to buy in those areas now.

Ervin said that farm areas are a valuable resource and R-1 areas are equally valuable. The basic question is can we take any application before us. "Most (are here) because some developer wants to make a few more dollars." He said he believed in the profit concept, but that people who live in an area have a right to expect to continue to live as they are.

Mayor Standing said that when R-1 areas are not up to standards (curbs and gutters, water and sewer) it costs the city money. Line fees and tap on fees do not pay for improvements. "No one can develop R-1 with today's standards..." Earlier development included less expensive septic tanks, secondary roads and no curbs and gutters, he said.

Ervin said that "nobody has convinced me that you can't develop R-1. If you increase the density you increase the tax burden."

In other zoning actions, council denied two rezoning petitions in Kempsville.

John E. and Myra A. Creekmore were denied their application for a change of zoning from R-2 Residential District to R-5 Residential District on a 1.07-acre parcel at the southeast intersection of Princess Avenue and Avalon Avenue. The existing zoning allows one single-family home while the proposed zoning allows three single-family homes.

Howard Jones, an area resident opposed the application. He said that "he (Creekmore) has caused us enough trouble this year. He's trying to subdivide a subdivision."

Willis Realty was also denied its application for a change of zoning from R-6 Residential District to R-9 Residential Townhouse District on a 3.28 acre parcel and for a change of zoning from B-2 Community-Business District to R-8 Residential Townhouse District on a 1.32 acre parcel. Both parcels are on the east side of Thalia Road, north of Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The Planning Commission recommended approval. The Thalia Civic League opposed the petition because it would change the character of the neighborhood.

Improvements in sight for Beach target areas legislation be considered an emergency so that the city would not have to wait until July 1 to benefit from the action.

Hanbury made his remarks in answer to comments by the Rev. Barnett Thoroughgood, chairman of the Community Advisory Committee, who said that citizens are "concerned about low interest loans and grants for (utilities) hook-ups." Community Development funds will be needed to provide the loans and grants to target area residents for hook-ups once the lines are constructed in their neighborhoods. The people will also need loans and grants for rehabilitation of homes which are lacking facilities to take advantage of the services.

Hanbury said that the city is proceeding "just as fast as we can." He said that the non-profit corporation will probably make funds available first for grants for the extremely low-income people. For the higher income people, a loan program will be established.

The CAC expects to have 75 percent of the work in the target areas already underway completed by June 30 of this year. Recommendations made by Thoroughgood for expenditure of the fifth year grant of $2.4 million included the reservation of $380,000 for water and sewer which would be added to $120,000 already carried over from previous years. This money would be used for water and sewer hook-ups.

He also reported that $515,000 is also available for rehabilitation loans and grants, which with an additional $250,000 from the Fifth Year grant would provide $765,000 to help people take advantage of utilities when they are available.

To be ready to assist people when the time comes for improving their homes and hooking up, the CAC is also recommending the addition of an inspector estimator and housing coordinator.

The CAC also recommends:

1. Completion of Gracetown water and sewer projects.
2. Completion of Atlantis Park water.
3. Continuation of Queen City water and sewer.
4. A clarification of the status of Burton Station. Although this is a target area nothing has been done there because of the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority's threat to take over the area. The City of Virginia Beach is being asked to step in and obtain specific commitments from the authority.
5. Improve the drainage in Newsome Farms. The people have been asking for improvements for three years.
6. The inclusion of three additional target areas, Centerville Turnpike, Reedtown and Lake Smith, and the study for possible inclusion as target areas of Great Neck Manor, Little Neck, Stumpy Lake and Brownie Park.

Chris Ward, representing Volunteers of America, also requested Community Development funds for a Child Development Center. The organization at present has an arrangement with Tidewater Community

Virginia Beach quilting guild breathes new life into dying art

By PAM VANDEVEER
Virginia Beach Sun Editor

Quilting may be thought of as a dying art by many, but not by a growing number of women in Virginia Beach. Bonnie Lucy of Thoroughgood, who recently formed the Tidewater Quilters Guild, has been so overwhelmed with response to the group she is convinced that quilting is here to stay.

"I kept waiting for someone else to start a club," says the mother of three who took up quilting five years ago. "I had a friend in a weaving guild and I wished there was something for the quilter."

"I had done a couple of craft shows and there were always questions about quilting. So at one show I set out a notebook for people to sign if they were interested

Becky Blevins of Virginia Beach, vice president of the guild, says, "A lot of people relate quilts back to their childhood and their grandmother. Quilts are a happy part of the past."

"I started quilting 10 years ago because I wanted my one daughter to have a quilt for her bed. I had grown up with them and I wanted her to."

Mrs. Lucy adds, "When you see a quilt you know a lot of time, interest, planning and love went into it."

"We don't give lessons, and we don't sew at the meetings. We have programs."

Members of the quilters guild meet to share ideas and methods, she explains. "We don't give lessons, and we don't sew at the meetings. We have programs."

For the March meeting members will bring in their collections of quilting books and publications to pass around.

"We have a 'sharing time' at each meeting where we show things we've made," Mrs. Blevins says. "In March we'll show things to wear, like quilted vests and aprons. Our theme for February featured hearts and flowers patterns."

Future programs will discuss antique quilts, and how to use quilts throughout the house as, say, wall coverings, table coverings or lampshades. Local authors and quilting experts will also give presentations.

"One idea we have is for each member to make a quilt block of her own design that has something to do with the area," says Mrs. Lucy. "We'll put them together as sort of a 'Tidewater quilt.' Then we'll lend it for display at courthouses or city functions."

Mrs. Lucy says she began quilting in 1974. "Everytime I went back to North Carolina to see my relatives they tortured me by bringing out all the beautiful quilts they'd made. When my children all started school I decided to take up the hobby."

Donna MacDougall of Virginia Beach, who writes the guild's newsletter, explains that none of her relatives quilt. "One day I just decided I wanted to make a quilt. I use a 15-inch round wooden embroidery hoop instead of a large quilting frame."

You can adapt your quilting method to your situation Mrs. Lucy says. "There are different styles and sizes of frames, so you can quilt even if you live in a trailer!"

"Today there are several men on the quilting scene. They're mostly working with color and design, sort of free-form things."

One thing quilters are particular about, though, is the type of fabric they use. "Most prefer 100 percent cotton," she says. "It has a nice feel and is easy to quilt, as the needle glides easily."

But the sky is really the limit when it comes to pattern and fabric, she adds. "You can use velvets and polyesters; satins are nice. People used to make 'crazy' quilts of satin, velvet and taffeta. They used their fanciest stitches and displayed them in the main rooms of the old Victorian houses."

"Today there are several prominent men on the quilting scene. They're mostly working with color and design, sort of free-form things."

The women agree that quilting is a time consuming in forming a club. I got 60 names in two days, so I knew there was definite interest."

A trip to a quilting conference in Washington D.C. last summer brought Mrs. Lucy in touch with the rising national interest in the craft. She returned to Virginia Beach inspired. Soon after, the Tidewater Quilters Guild was born.

"I call it an explosion," she laughs. "Everyone wants to try quilting -- they sort of get hooked on it. There's been so much response to the local guild, we're already looking for a larger meeting place."

Coming through an escape scuttle during a two-day training cruise aboard the U.S.S. NJROTC Cadet Todd Patriquin of Kempsville High School.

Training cruise aboard Sumter gives students chance to experience Navy life

It was an unusual crew that reported for duty aboard the U.S.S. Sumter on Wednesday evening, Feb. 7. Thirty-three cadets from the Virginia Beach Public Schools NJROTC program boarded ship for a two-day training and indoctrination cruise.

Running in age from 14 to 18, the students gathered from Kempsville High School, Kempsville Junior High and Brandon Junior High under the direction of NJROTC instructor John J. Dow.

The 522-foot-long U.S.S. Sumter departed Little Creek at 0800 Thursday morning under the command of Cmdr. Fred W. Olds. Cadets were free to roam the ship and mingle with the crew.

"It was my first time on a cruise," student Bill Daruk commented later. "It really gave me a chance to know what Navy life is really like. I wish I could do it again. The experience made me take a positive second look at the Navy."

On board, cadets were given jobs to do such as painting, swabbing the decks and standing watches. Tours of the ship were conducted by regular crew members and the students watched a movie describing the functions of a landing ship tank (LST).

The second day of the cruise brought bad weather, with the wind gusting up to 25 knots and the wind chill factor reducing the temperature to below zero. The rough seas delayed docking until around 1630 on Friday.

But the cadets were undaunted. Lt. Executive Officer Mark Boulden, a student at Kempsville High School, labeled the cruise a success.

"Cooperation on all levels, from every individual, made the cruise a learning experience as well as an enjoyable one," he said. "I think the NJROTC program is underrated by some students who aren't in it because they don't understand it. If they realized our purpose and spirit, they'd understand what we do here."

He pointed out that the group's rifle team placed 11th in the nation last year and was awarded the Oberholz Award for being the best rifle team in Virginia Beach.

There are six schools in Virginia Beach that offer NJROTC. There is no military obligation and girls are allowed to join.

Out of 2700 students at Kempsville High, 60 are enrolled in NJROTC. Classes meet everyday, with uniforms mandatory on Tuesday and Thursdays.

Cadets attend classes in navigation, operations and military drill. Girls make up 20 to 30 percent of the classes.

The Navy supplies about $1600 a year to support the program.

Soprano, classical guitarist featured at rec center

Timothy P. Olbrych, classical guitarist, and Patrice Pickering, soprano, will appear in the Young People's Concert Series at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center Theatre, 800 Monmouth Lane, on Feb. 22 at 7 p.m.

Olbrych has worked extensively in the New England area and is a graduate of Hartt College of Music with degrees in both education and performance. He has studied with Richard Provost, Gordon Crosskey in England, and has performed in master classes with Oscar Ghiglia, Michael Lorimer and Carlos Barbosa-Lima.

In 1975, Olbrych was a participant in the International Guitar Competition in Toronto, Canada. Now head of the guitar department at Norfolk State College, he has appeared in concert on WGH-FM Radio, WAVY-TV 10, and as guest soloist with the Norfolk Chamber Consort.

Ms. Pickering, Olbrych's wife, received her undergraduate and graduate degrees from Ithaca College, N.Y., and Hartt College of Music, Connecticut. She has studied voice with Dr. Leslie Bennett and William Diard, and participated in workshops with Roberta Peters, Jan Pierce and Hank Butler, stage director at the Metropolitan Opera.

While director of Children's Theatre at Hartt College, she sang with the Connecticut Opera, appeared with the Hartford Symphony, taught voice and was soprano soloist with the Hartford Baroque Ensemble.

All performances are free and reservations are not required. Seating is on a first-come first-serve basis. The concert will be informal with an opportunity for open dialogue between Olbrych, Ms. Pickering and the audience. For further information, call 499-1281.

300 attend free screening

General Hospital of Virginia Beach invited the public to a free screening for coronary risk factors at the hospital on Sunday, Feb. 11. Approximately 300 adults made appointments to see a film; have their blood pressures, heights and weights checked; take a fitness test on a bicycle ergometer; and have blood drawn for three tests - cholesterol, triglycerides and blood sugar (fasting). The screening was held from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m., with much assistance from Virginia Beach public health nurses, the Tidewater Chapter of the American Heart Association, the Virginia Beach Council of Rescue Squads, and other community groups.

Enrollment up at VWC

Spring semester enrollment at Virginia Wesleyan College is the highest in history. Seven hundred forty-one students are registered for the current semester, compared to 737 at the same time last year.

Seven hundred seventy-five were registered for the fall semester. However, almost all colleges and universities lose enrollment in the spring semester because of students completing graduation requirements at mid-year, students who are suspended or expelled because of academic difficulties, and students who drop out. Nineteen Virginia Wesleyan students completed graduation requirements in January.

Of the 741 registered, 715 are full-time students and 26 are part-time. Applications for admission this fall are running slightly ahead of the same period last year.

Beach freshman makes dean's list

Anne B. Clark, a freshman at Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va., has been named to the dean's list for the past semester. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Clark, Jr., of Abingdon Road, Virginia Beach.

Little Theatre musical

"Oliver!" the musical currently featured at The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach, stars John Noss in the title role. Evening performances are at 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, Feb. 23 and 24 and March 2 and 3. Sunday matinee on Feb. 25 is at 3 p.m. Tickets are $4.25 for adults and $2.50 for students. For reservations call the theatre box office at 428-9523. Little Theatre of Virginia Beach is located at 24th Street and Barberton Drive.

Ballet and scholarship auditions are scheduled

The Virginia Beach Community Ballet Company will hold auditions for the 1979-80 season on Saturday, Feb. 24 at the Virginia Beach Conservatory of Arts. Any serious ballet student wishing to audition for the company is invited to do so at this time. All dancers are to come prepared for class in the proper attire.

Miss Dorothy Fiore, who works closely with the conservatory, will judge the company auditions. Miss Fiore freelance teaches and performs throughout the USA and Canada.

Apprentice and junior company auditions will be held from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Dancers must be between the ages of eight and 12 years with at least one year of training to be considered for those two groups.

Senior company auditions will be from 4 to 5:30 p.m. and dancers must be at least 13 years of age with two years of pointe instruction. Senior company candidates should bring pointe shoes. The ballet company is especially looking for males who would be interested in performing with the company.

On Sunday, Feb. 25, the Virginia Beach Conservatory of Arts will hold scholarship auditions for Tidewater ballet students interested in studying at the conservatory. Students wishing to audition must be 11 years of age and should have a minimum of one year of ballet training. Scholarships will be granted for a period of one year with renewals scheduled in January 1980.

Advanced beginner students will be auditioned from 1 to 2:30 p.m.; advanced intermediate students from 2:30 to 4 p.m. Advanced intermediate students will be required to bring pointe shoes.

A scholarship program is available for eligible males in classical and modern training.

Both the scholarship auditions and the Community Ballet tryouts will be held at the Lynnhaven studio of the Virginia Beach Conservatory of Arts, 2703 Avenger Drive, off Lynnhaven Parkway. For additional information call Virginia Biggs at 340-9785 Monday thru Thursday 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Stable dollar needed for success of Savings Bond program

Like the nickel candy bar and other victims of inflation, the $25 U.S. Savings Bond is being discontinued by the Treasury. The government should be humbled, if not humiliated, in announcing the small bond's demise.

A government which sells bonds to citizens as a long-term investment certainly has a responsibility to preserve the value of its currency, so profound is the failure of the U.S. government in that respect that $18.75 — the amount the government now borrows when it issues a bond worth $25 at maturity — is too much of a pittance to be worth all the paperwork.

Starting next year the cheapest bonds offered by the Treasury will cost $25, redeemable in 12 years for $50, thus paying an annual interest rate of 6 percent. How well they do in the marketplace may depend on whether the Treasury can convince investors that they will not be short-changed when they collect $50 in 1992 for the $25 they loaned the government in 1980.

The record of the last 12 years, which saw the dollar lose more than half its purchasing power, does not inspire much confidence in that kind of deal.

If the government finally gets its fiscal and monetary house in order, and can bring some stability to our currency, Uncle Sam will not have to blush when a child empties a piggy bank to buy a bond and takes it home with a sense of pride and security.

Loophole allows students to forget loan repayment

The last Congress enacted the first major revision of federal bankruptcy laws in 40 years. Under the pressure of last fall's adjournment deadline, the House and Senate took the extraordinary step of reconciling their separate and conflicting bills without submitting them to a conference committee.

An apparent consequence of taking such a short-cut with a complicated piece of legislation has surfaced in the federal courts in San Diego, Calif. Inadvertently, we must assume, Congress opened the way for students fresh out of college to use bankruptcy as a means of discharging debts for government grants and student loans that paid for their education.

Keep tax records

Federal law requires a taxpayer to keep the necessary records to prepare a complete and accurate income tax return. You must also keep your records for as long as their contents may be material in administering any Internal Revenue law.

Records to keep —

- receipts, cancelled checks and other evidence to prove amounts claimed as deductions;
- any documents to prove an overpayment of tax if a claim for refund is made;
- copies of tax returns filed.

How long to keep records —

- Records that support an item of income or a deduction must be kept until the statute of limitations for the return expires (three years from the date the return was due or filed, or two years from the date the tax was paid, whichever occurs later).
- Other records, that concern income averaging or property transactions—purchase of a home, for as long as they are material.
- Copies of tax returns filed should be kept since they may be helpful in preparing future returns.

Young farmers sponsor exhibit

Eight-year-old Angela Warren, age 7, and Sherry Davis, age 11, of Virginia Beach were thrilled at the chance to pet this six-week-old Holstein calf on display Saturday at Pembroke Mall. The calf was part of a three-day agricultural exhibit sponsored by the Virginia Beach Farm Bureau Young Farmer Committee. Special features included live animals, grain products and some of the largest and most advanced farm equipment on the east coast.

Proposed center includes pool, gym, office space

A city-wide recreation and community center is in the works if plans of a conglomerate of local organizations are carried out.

Fred Aucamp, representing the Good Government Association, appeared before the Parks and Recreation Commission Tuesday to request its aid in planning the facility. The center, if built, would be located on city-owned land and operated by the city.

The facility would include an indoor swimming pool, gymnasium, tennis courts, meeting rooms and offices for United Communities Fund agencies. ...

Aucamp said that the center was planned to serve all the people of all age groups in the city. Groups which have already pledged their support include the Good Government Association, an ecumenical group in Princess Anne Plaza, Ruritans, Lions, Health, Welfare and Recreation Planning Council and the Virginia Beach Federation of Women's Clubs. ...

The group is hoping for a 26-acre site in the Princess Anne Plaza area. It has been tentatively called the Community Services Park. ...

...In other business, the Commission proposed that a new surfing area be established at Croatan Beach. The area is at the end of Washington Street in Camp Pendleton. A statement in the surfing report read, "The Parks and Recreation Department feels that the existing time limits and designated surfing areas have been established in a fair manner and cannot be improved upon. However, the Department does feel that if an additional surfing area can be established in the Croatan Beach area, if only for one summer, it would help to solve the dangerous conditions that presently exist at the Steel Pier surfing area during the summer season."

Day in court set

Another chapter in the Thoroughgood controversy will be written tomorrow morning in Virginia Beach Circuit Court. Representatives of the Thoroughgood Civic League will receive a hearing before Judge Robert Wahab (whom they requested) on their petition to stop the commercialization of the entrance to their development.

The petition ... seeks a temporary injunction restraining the Thoroughgood Corp. from going ahead with plans for future commercial development. Apparently the original intent of the temporary injunction request cannot be accomplished. ...

The matter blew up about a month ago when residents of Thoroughgood learned that the developers planned commercial structures to house specialty shops and professional offices on about 12 acres of land previously undeveloped off Pleasure House Road at the entrance to Thoroughgood.

Although the land has been zoned commercial since 1955, a number of residents said they had been led to believe it would remain undeveloped. They asked City Council to rezone it. On the advice of City Attorney Harry Marshall and Planning Director Patrick Standing the matter was referred to the city planning commission for a public hearing in April. Marshall pointed out that otherwise he felt the city was leaving itself wide open to a lawsuit for damages should the zoning be changed. ...

Storm damage is minor

Virginia Beach was spared the brunt of the storm which moved up the Atlantic coastline this past weekend. However high winds and tides did result in minor damage, as well as some inconvenience to residents. ...

Wind driven rain, and falling tree limbs, covering thoroughfares of Virginia Beach made driving hazardous in many parts of the city. Although a total of 48 accidents were reported during the storm's passage, there were no reports of serious injuries, and all accidents were of a minor nature.

Flooding up to one foot was reported on several streets in the city, and water was said to be about a foot deep in the flooding of a Tinec Giant supermarket at Baltic Avenue and 29th Street on Sunday. The most severe flooding was reported on roadways of the Broad Bay and Lynnhaven areas. Numerous cars were flooded out in attempts to drive on thoroughfares on Bay Island.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Ridinger
Field Representative

College students urged to report changes

Students getting social security benefits are urged to report changes. There are 600,000 or more students getting monthly social security checks and a great many of them attend schools in Tidewater. It's important that they report certain things to social security.

Students should be sure to let social security know if they have a change in earnings, school enrollment, address or if they become married.

Students can get monthly social security payments when a parent gets retirement or disability benefits or when an insured parent dies. They can continue to get payment up to age 22 as long as they are attending an accredited school on a full time basis.

The changes mentioned above - earnings, school enrollment or marital status can affect their payments.

If a Tidewater student - 18 or over - is getting social security payments and leaves school or starts attending on a part-time basis, he or she should notify the social security office immediately.

They are obligated to tell us of these changes so we can stop the monthly benefits, as required by law.

A student's total yearly earnings from part-time employment or temporary jobs or any self-employment income can also affect social security payments.

Any Tidewater student - who receives social security - and knows his or her earnings for 1979 will exceed $3,480 should report this to the social security office. Otherwise, checks may be sent when a student is not entitled to them - and they will have to be paid back.

Students who have questions about their benefits can visit or call the social security office nearest to where they are.

The Norfolk Social Security Office is at 3661 E. Virginia Beach Blvd., Norfolk, Virginia and the telephone number is 441-6401.

Today College Counts

By D. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

Cooperation with business and industry

Tidewater Community College (TCC), through its Continuing Education departments and in cooperation with the Special Training Division of the Virginia Community College System Offices, can provide special training programs for new and expanding business and industry.

The economic development of the Tidewater area is dependent upon a ready work force with the skills to perform a variety of tasks. When new companies locate here, Tidewater Community College can assist them in training workers. In the case of existing industries, TCC can provide training programs to support expanding technology and new areas of production.

The Virginia Employment Commission cooperates by recruiting prospective employee-students for the training programs.

TCC's special training programs are coordinated with each industry according to the needs of the company. Training programs may incorporate job analysis, recruiting and training of instructors, financial support for job instruction, and an adaptation for continuous training.

The benefits of such training are twofold. The company benefits from more efficient production, and the employee gains in skill and in opportunity for advancement on the job.

Over the years, Tidewater Community College has provided special training programs for business and industry in all areas of Tidewater, and in a variety of job types.

Companies for which training programs have been developed include Columbia Yacht, General Electric, Foster Grant, Snark, Volvo, Peck IronWorks, Medical Center Hospitals, Sihil, Dynaric, and Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. Among the skills taught have been electronics production line work, mechanics, boat building, and management.

Price of new housing continues to accelerate as demand remains high Housing economists are predicting that a middle-priced home in Virginia Beach and Chesapeake will cost $118,000 in 1987. Sound unbelievable? Perhaps not, when you examine the recent record of price jumps for new housing.

In just 10 years, the median price of a new home in Tidewater has doubled, increasing at a rate of 12.5 percent a year. Here's the schedule:

1969	$25,600	1974	$35,900
1970	$23,400	1975	$39,300
1971	$25,200	1976	$44,200
1972	$27,600	1977	$48,700
		1978	$56,000

Over the next 10 years, demand is expected to continue and grow to an all-time high due to the continuing influx of buyers born during the post-World War II baby boom, the perception of home ownership as a good hedge against inflation, and the increase in the number of home buyers who are single and divorced. In Chesapeake and Virginia Beach, the population is expected to increase by almost 50,000 and 100,000 people respectively. To complete the picture, mortgage rates are expected to remain between nine and 11.5 percent throughout the next ten-year period.

The predictions present a powerful argument for buying now, and recent studies suggest that the American people have gotten the message.

In 1987 when that median price house reaches $118,000, it's expected that incomes will have risen at a near comparable rate also. Despite that assurance, many in the housing industry worry that, in fact, a new home may be available only to the upper middle-class and the wealthy. That's a situation no one would want to see, because owning one's own home has been an integral part of the American dream in the 20th century.

Already there is strong evidence that home owners are stretching themselves thin on their monthly mortgage payments. A recent survey by the U.S. League of Savings Associations showed that nearly three-quarters of home buyers with incomes of less than $15,000, one-half with incomes between $15,000 and $20,000 and one-third with incomes between $20,000 and $25,000 spend more than 25 percent of their income on housing.

And many in the heavy demand group of 25 to 35 years of age are being priced out of the market all together.

In the last few years new programs to extend greater purchasing power to the home buyer have been developed. One such program, the FHA 245 Graduated Payment Mortgage program, allows for monthly mortgage payments to increase at a rate of from 2 1/2 to 7 1/2 percent a year in the first five to 10 years. The plan is restricted to single-family, owner-occupied homes. The term of the mortgage is limited to 30 years, and the maximum loan amount is $60,000. There are five different plans currently being used. An example of costs and payments under Plan III follows:

$324.64	First year	$398.74	Fourth year
$347.69	Second year	$426.95	Fifth year
$372.35	Third year	$457.15	Sixth through Thirtieth year

The National Association of Home Builders is pushing for even more liberal graduated mortgage legislation this year. The NAHB proposal, call the Housing Opportunity Act of 1979, would involve no federal subsidy or funds. Rather it is an extension of the FHA-insured Graduated Payment Mortgage plan. According to the NAHB plan, buyers could choose to keep their low initial monthly payment for two or five years. Payments would then increase gradually over the next 10 years and then remain fixed for the duration of the loan.

If passed, this legislation would benefit Tidewater residents with incomes from $16,000 to $24,000 a year who are now finding the financing of a new home to be a heavy burden.

Beach man elected chairman of the board

Robert F. Boyd of Virginia Beach, senior partner in the Norfolk law firm of Boyd, Payne, Gates & Farthing, has been elected chairman of the board of Holly Hill Lumber Co. He was elected at the company's recent annual meeting.

Holly Hill is one of the largest privately held lumber companies in the Southeast. Headquartered in Holly Hill, S.C., the company manufactures industrial, export and home construction lumber, plywood, medium density fiberboard, and furniture in its four plants. The company also farms and manages its own timberland, and forests owned by others.

Boyd has served on the Holly Hill board for 12 years. He is listed in several professional directories, including "Who's Who in Finance and Industry," and serves on numerous philanthropic foundation boards in Tidewater and throughout the nation. Boyd is vice president-finance and a member of the board of Norfolk-based Stewart Sandwichee, Inc., and is chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Virginia State Bar.

He was recently elected to the board of directors of Dundee Cement Company, Dundee, Mich. He is vice chairman of the board of trustees of Virginia Wesleyan College, a trustee of the endowment association of the College of William and Mary, and vice president of the board of trustees of Randolph-Macon Academy.

General Hospital announces changes in visiting hours and policies

The Maternity Unit at General Hospital of Virginia Beach has announced several changes in visiting hours and policies effective immediately.

Each new mother may designate the baby's father or one other person as her "Parenting Partner." This person may visit in the mother's room at any time between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m., with a special Parenting Partner pass which will be issued by the nurses. The pass is not transferable. Any parenting partner who will be in a room when the babies are brought to their mothers must scrub and wear a sterile gown.

The hospital has also extended hours when sibling visitation is permitted in the nursery area. Children aged 2-12 will now be allowed to view their new brothers and sisters through the nursery windows from 2-4 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m., if accompanied by an adult. Only two children per family may be in the nursery area at one time. The children may also visit with their mothers in the second-floor lobbies during these hours. No children under 12 are allowed to visit their mothers' rooms.

Mothers who have requested private rooms to keep their babies with them will now have two options. "Rooming-In" may be continuous, with the baby sharing the mother's room 24 hours a day. Or, the mother and her physician may request modified rooming-in, with the infant being returned to the nursery for the night, and at any time the mother needs rest or treatment.

If the mother is given a private room for rooming-in, her parenting partner may obtain a special pass to visit at any time, day or night. Grandparents will be allowed to visit these rooms and hold the babies during regular visiting hours—2-4 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m. Parenting partners and grandparents must scrub and gown before entering the room. Babies who are rooming-in may be returned to the nursery if their brothers or sisters come to see them.

Al-Del Enterprises opens beauty salon

Al-Del Enterprises, Inc., with offices in Virginia Beach and trading as Edie Adams Cut and Curl, recently opened their ninth local beauty salon at Bayside Shopping Center, 4801 E. Shore Drive, Virginia Beach. The new salon features a unisex section called Haircrafters, along with the regular Edie Adams Cut and Curl format.

President of Al-Del Enterprises, Inc., Delbert A. Sexton, a retired Naval Officer, stated, "The Haircrafters section of our new salon is designed to appeal to men more than a regular beauty salon and even features a separate shampoo area. The split shop concept has been in use in other Edie Adams Cut and Curl Salons in the United States for over three years and has proven to be very popular with the male trade."

Sexton says more salons are planned for the Tidewater area.

Virginia: In the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach on the 7th day of February, 1979.

In Chancery No. 78-2240A

This Cause came on to be heard upon the petition of Alfred E. Smith praying that Robert Lee Smith, Jr. be declared legally dead pursuant to Title 64-1-103 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended, and was argued by counsel; and acquired an undivided fractional share in approximately six acres of real property located in the Little Neck Area of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia; that Robert Lee Smith, Jr. was born in the City of Norfolk, Virginia and resided in the County of Princess Anne, Virginia for all, or most of, his life and that most of the surviving members of his immediate family live in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia; that Robert Lee Smith, Jr. was last seen by any member of his immediate family in September or October of 1960 and has not been seen or heard from since September or October of 1960; that more than seven years have now elapsed since Robert Lee Smith, Jr. was last seen; or heard from, by members of his family, thereby raising the presumption that Robert Lee Smith, Jr. and his wife and children, if any, are deceased; that Alfred E. Smith and other members of the immediate family of Robert Lee Smith, Jr. have used due diligence to locate Robert Lee Smith, Jr. and have been unable to do so; that the only heir at law of Robert Lee Smith, Jr., if deceased, would be his mother, Virginia Williams Smith, who is a resident of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia; that Robert Lee Smith, Jr. left no known last will and testament and that the only known asset of Robert Lee Smith, Jr. is the aforesaid undivided interest in real estate and that there is no necessity for grant of letters of administration; and that on the 19th day of December, 1978, this Court did enter an Order in accordance with Section 64-1-105 et seq. of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended; and that, pursuant to said Order, notice was published in the Virginia Beach Sun, a newspaper published in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia in full accordance with said Order on December 27, 1978 and January 3, 1979; that the said Robert Lee Smith, Jr. did not respond to the published notice aforesaid; and that this Court is satisfied that the legal presumption of death is made out herein and is satisfied that the said Robert Lee Smith, Jr. is dead.

It appearing to the Court that Alfred E. Smith is a resident of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia and is a brother of Robert Lee Smith, Jr. who resided in the County of Princess Anne, Virginia, now the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia; that Robert Lee Smith, Jr. was an heir at law of Robert Lee Smith, Sr., his father, who died intestate in 1934; that as an heir at law of Robert Lee Smith, Sr., Robert Lee Smith, Jr.

It is therefore ordered that this Order be published in the Virginia Beach Sun once a week for two successive weeks; and, further, that it be published in the Miami Herald, a newspaper of general circulation in the City of Miami, Florida, once a week for two successive weeks.

It is further ordered that the said Robert Lee Smith, Jr., if alive, or any person for him, produce to the Court within twelve weeks from the date of the last publication of this order, satisfactory evidence of the continuance in life of the said Robert Lee Smith, Jr.

Entered this 7th day of February, 1979.

To the Honorable Judges of the Court aforesaid:

1. Your Petitioner, City of Virginia Beach, a municipal corporation, respectfully represents that it is a political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia which has been authorized by law to condemn lands for the purpose of construction, widening, improving and maintaining public streets and highways within its jurisdiction.

2. The property intended to be taken in this proceeding is shown on a plat filed herewith marked "Exhibit A," and outlined in red thereon and described as follows:

The land or interest therein, hereinafter described lies in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and is shown as Lots 1 and 2, Block 10 on that certain plat entitled "Virginia Beach Annex No. 2, Norfolk, Virginia," dated July 1905, which plat is recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, in Map Book 3, at Page 24.

3. The interest or estate intended to be taken and compensated for in this proceeding is the fee simple title to the property hereinabove, pursuant to Section 15-1-236 et seq., Title 33.1 Chapter 1, Article 7 and Title 25 Chapter 1.1 of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended and such other general laws are applicable for the purpose of condemning the hereinabove described property.

4. The property to be acquired by this proceeding is necessary for the construction, reconstruction, alteration, maintenance and repair of a portion or portions of a public highway, known as "19th Street," and is part of the road system in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

5. Your petitioner has made a bonafide, but ineffectual effort to acquire the property by purchase, but has been unable to do so because the names and addresses of certain parties who may have an interest in the property are unknown and it is believed the known parties cannot convey marketable title to the property to be condemned.

6. The names of the known owners whose property is to be taken or affected are: Duella Graves, Carrie Cobb, their heirs at law, devisees and assigns.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays for appointment of commissioners as provided by law to ascertain what will constitute just compensation for the land or other property to be condemned for the uses of the City of Virginia Beach herein, and to award damages, if any, resulting to the adjacent or other property of the owners beyond any enhancement in value to such property which may accrue by reason of the acquisition and use of the property condemned.

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, a municipal corporation, will, on the 1st day of March, 1979, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, apply to the Judge of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, at the Courthouse thereof, for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain what will be the just compensation for certain lands or interests therein which the City of Virginia Beach proposes to condemn for PROJECT known as NINETEENTH STREET, as shown on the plat attached to the Petition filed in the above styled cause, and to award damages, if any, resulting to the adjacent or remaining property of the owner(s), beyond the enhancement in value to such property which may accrue by reason of the taking and construction of the work mentioned. The ownership, location and description of the property which is proposed to be condemned, the nature of the construction and the location of the project will fully appear in the Petition and exhibits filed with the same. A copy of the Petition is annexed hereto.

If you fail to appear and submit a list of prospective commissioners at the date and time hereinabove specified, the undersigned will move the Court to submit a panel of prospective commissioners on your behalf, and from the lists submitted to select a panel of nine (9) freeholders to be summoned for the trial of the issue of just compensation.

You are further notified that Grounds of Defense shall be filed, in writing, within twenty-one (21) days from the date this Notice is duly served, and it shall include the value of the property to be taken and an appraisal of any and all damages which may result to the residue by reason of the taking.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In this proceeding the petitioner seeks to acquire by condemnation the fee simple title to a certain parcel of land situated in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, for the construction and maintenance of that certain public street or highway known as "19th Street," which property is shown and described more particularly in the petition and exhibits attached thereto on file in the office of the Clerk of this Court, to which reference is hereby made for a full and accurate description thereof; and for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain just compensation to the owners of any estate or interest in the property to be taken or affected as a result of the taking and use thereof by the petitioner.

For such purposes the petitioner will apply to the Court on the 1st day of March, 1979, at the courthouse thereof, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, VA, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain just compensation as aforesaid.

And it appearing by affidavit filed according to law that the following owners are not residents of the State of Virginia, or their names and addresses are not known and that diligence has been used by and on behalf of the petitioner to ascertain such names and addresses without effect: Carrie Cobb and her lien creditors, if any, and heirs at law, if any; it is ORDERED that the aforesaid owners do appear within ten (10) days after due publication of this order in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and to do what is necessary to protect their interests; and it is FURTHER ORDERED that if any of the above named owners desire to assert any objection or defense to the taking or damaging of his property or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the case and to proceed with the appointment of commissioners he shall file his answer and grounds of defense designating the property in which he claims to be interested, the grounds of any objection or defense to the taking or damaging of his property or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the case and to proceed with the appointment of commissioners for the determination of just compensation.

Should any such owner fail to file his answer and grounds of defense as hereinabove provided, such failure shall not preclude the owner from appearing on the date set for the appointment of commissioners nor from presenting evidence as to valuation and damage nor from sharing in the award of just compensation according to his interest therein or otherwise protecting his rights, but such failure shall preclude such owner from any other defense by way of pleas in bar, abatement or otherwise.

And it is FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this ORDER shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, and a copy hereof shall be posted on the bulletin board of this Court.

art. "I'd guess it takes about 100 hours to hand-quilt an average sized blanket," says Mrs. Lucy. "Count on at least a month if you're doing it by yourself. You usually end up having several projects going at once." Other officers of the newly-formed Tidewater guild are Rosann Fulton, secretary; Jean Fehling, treasurer; Ann Marvin, show committee chairman; and Joyce Kahles, workshop chairman. It's a fascinating, rewarding hobby, Mrs. Lucy concludes. "You put something of yourself into a quilt. And you can work on part of one just about anywhere - while watching TV or waiting at the dentist's office. It can open some interesting conversations!"

Virginia Beach Friends of Music will present the young cellist, Yo-Yo Ma, in recital on Friday, March 2 at 8:30 p.m. at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center, 800 Monmouth Lane, Virginia Beach. The widely recognized musician has been acclaimed by Isaac Stern as "one of the prime talents of our time."

A recent graduate of Harvard University and recipient of the Avery Fisher Prize for 1978, Yo-Yo Ma has performed with major American orchestras. On an international level, he has recorded with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London, and has toured Europe and the Far East both in recital and as orchestral soloist.

Tickets are $5 and may be obtained by sending checks to Virginia Beach Friends of Music, P.O. Box 963, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451, or by calling 428-4901. All seats are reserved and no tickets will be available at the box office the evening of the recital.

Roundball Classic benefits scholarship fund

Who would want to play basketball continuously from 7 p.m., March 9 until 9 p.m., March 11? "Wild and crazy" people, of course. Believe it or not 128 teams from throughout Tidewater and North Carolina will be competing in this unique recreational event at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center.

Teams can be either male, female, or co-ed, challenge games are welcome. Team members are required to be at least 13 years of age. An adult team champion will be determined in the final game on Sunday, March 11.

Registration for an adult team (18 years and up) is $15 and $10 for a youth team (13-18 years). All proceeds from the Roundball Classic will go to the James K. Cole Memorial Scholarship Fund. For further information contact Debbie Campbell or David VanCovern at 467-4884.

Beach students compete in leadership contest

The distributive education students of the six Virginia Beach high schools competed in the annual District Leadership Contest held recently. Various contests were held in the businesses at Pembroke Mall and at Farm Fresh Supermarket on Constitution Avenue. Approximately 450 students from Virginia Beach competed in eight major categories on the master employee and manager-owned levels.

First place winners in the apparel and accessories category were Elena Brooks, Kellam; Karen Lucko, Cox; Robin Basnight, and Connie Wicker, Kempsville.

Food marketing winners were Randall Jones and William Lecznar, Kellam; and John Synder, First Colonial.

In food service top honors went to Tracie Matthews and Deborah Ward, Kellam; and Mike Horvath, Kempsville.

For general merchandise the winners were Eddie Sears, Princess Anne; James LaRahn, Kellam; and Fletcher McRae and Carter McRae, First Colonial.

Debbie Cunningham, Princess Anne; and Bob Richards, Bayside, won the petroleum category, and Tracy Neely, Cox, took honors for job interview.

The sales demonstration winners were Marcie Yaeckel, Kellam; and Sharon Pierce, Kempsville.

The distributive education district winners were student of the year Elena Brooks, Kellam; and Connie Wicker, Kempsville.

The first place winners in all districts in Virginia will compete on the state level in Roanoke, March 16-18. Winners of the state contest will compete in Houston, Texas, at the National Conference in the spring.

Child, Dependent Care Tax Credit Available, IRS Says

Some taxpayers can claim child or disabled dependent care expenses on their 1978 tax return, the Internal Revenue Service said.

The credit is available to married couples who file jointly, where one spouse works full-time and the other works part-time or is a full-time student, or where both work part-time.

The credit also applies to a divorced or separated parent who has custody of a child under 15, even though the parent may not be entitled to a dependency exemption for the child. The parent claiming the credit must, however, have custody for a longer period during the year than the other parent. A deserted spouse is eligible for the credit when the deserting spouse is absent for the last six months of the taxable year.

The credit is 20 percent of eligible expenses. The maximum credit that may be taken is limited to $400 for one dependent and to $800 for two or more dependents.

To qualify for the child and disabled dependent care tax credit, a taxpayer (1) must be employed or in active search of employment while paying for the child's or disabled dependents' care; (2) must have incurred the expense in order to be gainfully employed; (3) must make sure payments for care are not to dependent relatives; and (4) must have maintained a household that included one or more qualifying individuals. Qualifying individuals are dependent children under 15 years of age, a disabled spouse or a disabled dependent of any age.

Publication 503, Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care, which may be ordered by filing out the order blank in the tax package.

Form 1040A

You may use Form 1040A if all your income was from wages, salaries, tips, and other employee compensation, and not more than $400 in dividends or $400 in interest and you do not have itemized deductions in excess of your zero bracket amount.

Earned Income credit aimed at low-income

The earned income credit (EIC) will reduce taxes or result in unanticipated refund checks for many working parents this year.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

Do you have: RED WATER STAINS OR GREEN WATER STAINS?

There are two distinctly different water problems which require different types of water treatment. But the good news is that both problems can easily be solved by your Culligan Man. The First Step: Have Culligan analyze your water and prepare an estimate. Free. No obligation.

Rent any equipment necessary for as low as $3.00 for the first 90 days (plus installation).

Virginia Beach Sports

Coaches select 1978-79 All-District Team

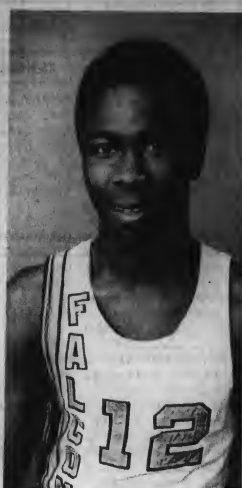

Daryl Christian

Mike Downs

Rich Davidson

Myron Goffigan

Wendell Henry

By MIKE D'ORSO
Virginia Beach Sun Sports Editor

There may have been a rat race for the Beach District basketball title this season, and, as one coach put it, "Any team in this district can beat any other team on a given night," but when it came to selecting the five top ballplayers at the Beach, the decision was a clear-cut one.

Each district coach named his choice of the five best District ballplayers, excluding players from his own team. He then named the ballplayers he felt deserved to be on a "second" team.

Not surprisingly, the coaches were unanimous in their choices of four of the ballplayers on the Beach All-District team, and the fifth ballplayer, Wendell Henry, received a first place vote from every coach but one.

Daryl Christian - In terms of team wins and losses, it was a disappointing year for this Kellam junior, as the Knights could muster only two wins in 18 starts. But in terms of individual performance, the 6'5" Eastern Region scoring leader had a stellar season, in more ways than just scoring points.

"He's the best player at the Beach," states Kellam coach Al Bailey matter-of-factly. "He's not only averaging 27 points a game, but he's got 11 rebounds a game, and something like three blocked shots a game."

"He helps us bring it down against the press, and he is very unselfish. I bet he hasn't taken more than ten bad shots all year."

Christian, who plays strictly forward for the Knights, will be returning next season. How does his future look, both next season and possibly thereafter?

"If he devotes himself this summer to playing in the backcourt, he could play well in major college competition," says Bailey, a former coach with the now defunct Virginia Squires.

"He has the talent to play forward at the major college level, and there is no question that he can score, but whether he can rebound and play defense at forward at his present size is questionable."

How difficult was it for the talented junior to reconcile his team's frustrating season with his own individual accomplishments?

"He takes losses very hard," said Bailey. "It bothers him. He has such great desire to be a winner, and it's been difficult for him, and for the rest of the team, to lose."

Fortunately for Christian, and unfortunately for Kellam opponents, this dismal season for the Knights won't be his last.

Mike Downs - Down's final season at the Beach came to an early end when he broke his foot in a late-season encounter with First Colonial. But his talents are well-recognized by District coaches, and it should surprise no one to find him as an unanimous selection on the All-District team.

As the hub of Kempville's attack, Downs showed the ability to score both inside, with smooth moves and good jumping ability, and outside, with a soft, accurate jump shot.

Chief coach Bill Cochran occasionally needed

Downs to bring the ball upcourt against pressing defenses, and the 6'5" Chief center, who played guard earlier in his career, was aptly able to answer the call.

Downs' importance to the Chiefs was reflected by their performance with and without him. Prior to his injury, the Chiefs were a surging contender for the District crown. Without him, Kempville faded and had to hang on to claim a District tournament spot.

Rich Davidson - Transferring from North Carolina to Cox at the beginning of this season, Davidson was an unknown commodity to Beach District observers. But he took little time in establishing himself as the dominant big man at the Beach.

Building their defense around the broad-shouldered giant, the Falcons picked up steam early in the year and rolled to the Beach District regular season crown.

"Davidson is the best big man, going to the boards offensively, I've ever had," says Cox coach George Ontko. "He does a good job of taking the ball to the hoop, and when he gets the ball, he knows what to do with it."

While Davidson averaged nearly 16 points a game for Cox, his worth to the Falcons was primarily on defense.

"He's definitely the key to our defense. He's an intimidating factor," states Ontko. "He equalizes or offsets other opponents' big men. Without him, we'd definitely be at a loss."

Myron Goffigan - It only makes sense that Cox, riding a balanced attack to the District championship, should place two players on the All-District team.

While Davidson anchored Cox's inside game on defense, Goffigan made things happen at the offensive end of the floor. And according to Ontko, it was Goffigan's ability to discipline his floor game that was a key to Cox's success.

"He doesn't take many bad shots," says Ontko. "His whole ball game is run and shoot, and he did a heckuva job adjusting to our controlled type of offense."

"He's definitely our best outside shooter. If he played in a different type of system, he could average 30 points a game."

But in the Cox system, Goffigan didn't need to score 30 points to be effective. His 16-point average, combined with the rest of the balanced Falcon attack, served adequately as the Falcon spearhead.

Wendell Henry - Bayside's late-season surge put the Marlins into the District tournament, and the key to Bayside's success was Wendell Henry's crystallization.

"His attitude has changed so much since Christmas," observes Bayside coach Johnny Dollar. "He wasn't the ballplayer I knew he could be."

After the solution of inner team problems, Henry became the ballplayer Dollar hoped for and he began to assert himself as the team leader.

Of Henry's take-charge attitude, Dollar says, "Wendell came into his own. He's not a selfish ballplayer. He leads the team in assists - if somebody's open, he'll give it up. He plays at both ends of the floor."

Combining his quickness on defense with a 19-point average, Henry was the major reason for Bayside's surge, and his personal surge landed him an All-District berth.

Beach District this week

In Friday's final night of regular season play, two cliff-hangers resulted in a third place tie between Bayside and Kempville, and Princess Anne's victory over Kellam clinched the second place spot for the Cavaliers.

Kempville watched Cox rebound from a fourth quarter deficit to deal the Chiefs a loss which, combined with Bayside's triple-overtime victory over First Colonial, dropped Kempville into a tie with Bayside for the District third place slot.

The Marlins won Saturday's coin flip for third place, and so they will meet Princess Anne Tuesday night in the opening District tournament game. Kempville meets Cox Wednesday night with the two winners playing Friday night for the tournament championship.

Blues Brothers lead Lynnhaven to Junior High wrestling crown

By MIKE D'ORSO
Virginia Beach Sun Sports Editor

Command performance by the Blues Brothers and Steve Martin highlighted the Virginia Beach Junior High Schools' version of "Saturday Afternoon Live" at the City Junior High School Wrestling Tournament last weekend.

Lynnhaven's Blues, advancing eleven wrestlers into title matches, rolled to the tournament crown, and topping the Blues' list of individual champions were two brothers, Jeff and Greg Burns, who each recorded pins in their weight classes.

Jeff Burns pinned Bayside's Mike Chunta in the 126-pound finals, and brother Greg, a 132-pounder, followed with a pin of his own over Pat McKeever of Virginia Beach Junior High. Both brothers finished the year with unblemished records.

Five other Lynnhaven wrestlers claimed individual crowns as the Blues piled up 236½ team points, almost doubling second place Bayside's total of 123.

Other individual champions for Lynnhaven were: Jim McGovern, who capped his undefeated season with a quick pin in the 91-pound title match; Kenny Piche, who won at 105; Marvin Waller, who finished undefeated at 119; Ronnie Lovelace at 155; and Phil Hall, who dealt Princess Anne's Jimmy Bowman his first loss in the 165-pound title match.

Brandon's diminutive 77-pounder, Steve Martin, was one wild and crazy guy after his emotional 4-3 upset of Lynnhaven's previously undefeated Kris Felthousen in the opening match of the championship finals.

The tiny seventh grader had to resist the lanky Felthousen's struggle in the closing seconds, and when his one-point lead held up, Martin had scored an upset victory for the Chargers.

Princess Anne gained two individual crowns, thanks to Melvin Ridley, who won at 84 pounds, and Terry Taylor's victory at 112 pounds.

Kempsville also claimed two champions in Dan Bergondy, who pinned the Blues' John Belbusti in their 145-pound bout, and Charles Alcorn, who capped his undefeated heavyweight season with a 6-4 decision over Virginia Beach's Brad Bradshaw.

Two of Bayside's five representatives in the finals gained victories as John Quinn held off Lynnhaven's Gregg Strangways to win 6-4 at 98 pounds, and Jeff Goodman claimed the 175-pound title by knocking off Brandon's Charles Bassett, 9-6.

Plaza's Trojans got one crown from John Dew, who was a champion last year. Dew gave Independence's Todd Davis his first defeat in winning the 138-pound match, 8-5.

Final team scores were:

Lynnhaven	236½
Bayside	123
Princess Anne	103½
Independence	86
Virginia Beach	64
Kempsville	61
Plaza	53½
Brandon	50

Individual champions and runners-up were:

Champions	Runners-up
77- Martin (Bran)	Felthousen (Lynn)
84- Ridley (PA)	Smith (Bay)
91- McGovern (Lynn)	Anderson (Bay)
98- Quinn (Bay)	Strangways (Lynn)
105- Piche (Lynn)	Green (Bay)
112- Taylor (PA)	John (Lynn)
119- Waller (Lynn)	Tiaba (Plaza)
126- J. Burns (Lynn)	Chunta (Bay)
132- G. Burns (Lynn)	McKeever (VB)

Patriot Gymnasts edge Cox for Beach District Tournament title

By MIKE D'ORSO
Virginia Beach Sun Sports Editor

First Colonial's talented contingent of gymnasts won the Beach District Gymnastics Meet team championship Saturday at Bayside High School, skinning Cox 103.05 to 99.80.

By edging undefeated regular season titlist Cox for the tournament crown, the Lady Patriots atoned for their only setbacks this year. Cox topped First Colonial twice during the regular season.

Of her team's victory, Patriot coach Lynn Hadley said, "It was like neck and neck. We both wanted it so bad."

A stellar performance by Cox's Jaudon Conkwright led Cox's efforts. The sprightly Falcon finished first on the uneven parallel bars and in the floor exercise to capture the individual All-Around crown.

First Colonial placed two gymnasts in the top four all-around. Lean Leslie Karnitschnig finished second with a strong performance and Betsy Noll placed fourth overall.

"They deserved it. They put in extra effort and time. Those two are hard workers," commented Hadley in reference to her two standouts.

Lisa Weber, Bayside's blond standout, finished third in the All-Around totals, as did her Marlin team in the team totals.

Along with the top four All-Around finishers, the top six finishers in each event will compete in this Saturday's Regional Meet at First Colonial High School.

These are the gymnasts who will represent the Beach in the Regional Meet (in order of finish):

Sam's love

Editor's note: This marks the first fiction ever published by the Virginia Beach Sun - written by Dr. James Foster Crosby, a well-known Virginia Beach pediatrician, pathologist and practitioner of family medicine.

By JAMES FOSTER CROSBY, M.D.
Special Fiction to the Virginia Beach Sun

"Sam! Sam!" From down the street a child's voice is heard over the noise of traffic.

The shouts became nearer, louder, urgent. "Sam! Sam!"

A figure sitting quietly on a nearby park bench turns slightly toward the voice. He lifts his eyes expectantly over his glasses that sit a bit down on his long nose. He unfolds his hands from his lap stretches them out together toward a disheveled six year old who runs headlong into him. The man is shaken by the impact; he clutches at the child, grasps her coat and prevents her fall to the sidewalk. "Tsh Tsk, such a big hurry for such a little girl."

"Sam! Sam! Another one!"

The black haired girl, blue eyes wide with excitement, looks up at the man and says breathlessly, "Sam, Look!" She places a crumpled, damp, balled-up handkerchief in his hand. He opens the handkerchief; in the center lies a small white object.

"My goodness, Liebschen, you lost another one and such a pretty tooth."

"See, Sam; it came from here." The child giggled and pushed up her lip; a dark space appears, a place where a front tooth once was. "It didn't hurt a bit. I just pushed on it with my tongue and it popped out - on the floor."

"That's wonderful! Come, I will walk you home for I must get back to my tailoring. Here, be careful not to lose your tooth."

Sarah's face turned ashen. "I knew there was someone..."

The man turned, took the girl's hand in his and they walked slowly toward the tenements down the street. The child started skipping as she looked up at her companion: "Will it happen tonight, Sam?"

"That I am certain, Ahavati, wait and see." He put his finger against the side of his nose, looked down at his little friend and winked. "You will see."

The man walked the child to the steps of a three story building sitting just off the side walk. He kissed her on the forehead. She impulsively grabbed him around the waist and squeezed. "Oh, Sam." She ran up the steps shouting, "Mama, Mama!"

Sam's eyes moistened; he turned and walked toward his shop across the street. The gold lettering on a black sign above his shop read "Sam Golden-Tailor." He looked down the street where the piers of the Brooklyn Bridge rose high above the buildings. He gazed back at the sign and at the two windows above, the windows to his apartment. The noise of the traffic and the voices of the children playing along the sidewalk behind him faded to a hum as his mind wandered back through the years.

Sam Golden came to America many years ago; but still he clearly remembers his first view of Manhattan from Ellis Island. He and his wife Sarah loved their new home in Brooklyn from the minute they arrived, because of the children. There were so many beautiful, happy children. They once had three children of their own, a son twelve and two beautiful daughters six and three years of age. All three died when their home burned in Stuttgart. Sam almost lost Sarah in the fire; since the tragedy she had not been well.

Sam and Sarah worked hard from early morning until late night. However, each day at 4 p.m. Sam visited the nearby park and rested on the same worn bench. On Friday evening and Saturday Sam went to Temple; Sarah usually, in later years particularly, was unable to accompany her husband as she needed rest, more and more.

The diminutive tailor had many friends; everyone in the poor neighborhood knew the familiar figure on the park bench. The image was always the same; black homburg, black suit, high collar, black tie and black buttoned high top shoes - in winter a long black coat and white silk scarf. Sam's neat, conservative attire was always the same. His friends frequently stopped to chat a minute. They usually asked about Sarah's health; Doctor Pazzo was their source of information. The Doctor frequently confided to all in his office "I don't know what keeps that poor woman alive. If she didn't have Sam - I just don't know."

Sam became more tired as he worried about Sarah's illness. But he continued to work and occupy himself so that he had little time to think about his wife and his lost children.

Sam loved children. He knew the first names of every child under ten. He knew their parents: Jewish, Polish, Italian, Irish, German, French, names. He knew the children's favorite fairy tales, when they had stomach aches, when they were sad, when they scuffed their knees, when they were hungry and especially - when they had a loose tooth. All would run to Sam when the tooth came out. "Sam! Sam! Look! My tooth came out."

Then there would be magic! That night a shiny quarter wrapped in tinfoil in the shape of a star found its way under the pillow of each child who had lost a tooth that day. The next morning there was wonderment and excitement.

"Sam! Sam! Isn't it wonderful? So shiny!"

"Oh yes, it's beautiful, Liebschen!"

The magic was Sam's love for children - for his own children, long lost. Sam's love was magic in another way; He thrived because of his little friends, their excitement, their joy, their need, his need for them.

When Sam and Sarah first came to America business was good. Sam, always thrifty, needed little and was wise in saving. His reputation spread to Manhattan and he tailored for many wealthy businessmen who frequently came to the small shop in this poor section of Brooklyn. Sam would not move away from the children even though fashion and styles changed and his clients found closer tailors. Gradually, Sam's business changed to little more than mending.

His money in the bank dwindled until he now had only his daily small income, always decreasing and increasingly more insufficient. He had four hundred shiny quarters remaining his his desk drawer in the apartment; still he continued to put stars around the coins and secretly gave them to the parents who put them under their children's pillows. He never forgot them although Sarah required more and more attention and Sam became more tired each day.

One day the owner of the building where Sam and Sarah lived and worked advised Sam he was three months behind in his rent. "I'm sorry, Sam, but I must have the income. I have a paying tenant now. Will you vacate? I understand your wife is ill so you may stay in the apartment as long as you wish. Can't you do your work in your apartment? You're really not that busy are you?"

Sam wasn't that busy. He moved his sewing machine upstairs; there was little else needed or remaining in the shop.

Now there were only 100 quarters left and Sam had not one cent in the bank.

The day came when Sam found living very difficult. Sarah was deathly ill and Doctor Pazzo prescribed more medicines that were very costly. Days passed when Sam had not even one garment for mending; his income dwindled to nothing.

Sam did not complain; his friends were not to be burdened with his problems.

Now there were only 100 quarters left and Sam had not one cent in the bank. Sarah agreed the quarters were for the children; Sarah knew Sam would find a way.

It was Rosh Hashanah. Sam had given Sarah almost the last of the food; he hadn't eaten in two days. Sarah was in bed constantly now and Sam spent more and more time sitting quietly in the chair beside her, caring and watching over her. As there was no business, Sam almost lost account of time. He was unaccustomed to idleness.

One cold bleak afternoon, Sam, exhausted, fell asleep. When he awoke it was the eve of the day of atonement, Yom Kippur. He struggled into his overcoat, put on his homburg and scarf and walked to Temple. The next day he prayed all day except for three quick visits to take Sarah nourishment and administer her medicines. She was almost too weak to talk. Sam himself was not able to attend Temple further; he struggled home in the cold. As he started up the stairs to the apartment a tow-headed four year old ran up to him, "Sam! Look! My tooth!"

He put his finger against the side of his nose, looked down at his little friend and winked. "You will see."

"Goodness, Liebschen! Be sure to put it under your pillow." He patted her head and labored up the stairs to the apartment. He removed a quarter from his desk drawer and wrapped it in tinfoil - star shaped. He then left himself down the stairs slowly by the rail and walked the three blocks to Trisha's apartment. He left the star with Trisha's grandmother and returned to his apartment with great effort. Half asleep, weak, he removed his coat and hat and shoes and slumped down beside Sarah. He noted the drawer in his desk which held the quarters was half open. He lay there, too tired to move to close it. He slept.

Sixteen hours later he awoke; Sarah was asleep and breathing easily; he noticed her color was better. She awoke, looked at him and smiled - for the first time in months!

"I had the strangest dream! There were many colored lights and a long tunnel which I was almost at the end of. I wanted to come back so much, then I awoke. I also thought I heard someone here; it must have been you, Sam."

Sam could hardly believe his eyes! Sarah certainly was better. He struggled to his feet and shuffled toward the half-open desk drawer. He suddenly stopped - was there a strange bluish glow coming from the desk? He slowly approached and looked into the drawer. He gasped! The quarters were gone; in their place was a pile of tarnished bronze - like coins about the size of a penny, irregular in shape and thick around the edges. He picked one up and examined it closely. On one side was a double cornucopia with a pomegranate between the horns. On the other side was a wreath with an inscription written in Hebrew. Sam pulled an encyclopedia from the shelf over the desk; under Ancient Coins he found a description of the coin he held in his hand. He was astounded! The coin was from the Hasmodian Dynasty, 141-37 BCE. Sam quickly examined the remaining coins; there were ninety-eight present - all exactly alike. He turned to his wife. "Sarah! It's unbelievable! Our quarters are gone!"

Sarah's face turned ashen. "I knew there was someone in this room. What will we do Sam? No more stars for the children."

"No, No Sarah! They're gone, the quarters are gone, but look at this! There are ninety-eight more like it. How! How!"

"What is it, Sam?"

"My book shows that this is a coin of biblical Israel. It's priceless!"

"Each one is valued at approximately $10,000.00!"

Sam began to remove all the coins and examine them. Underneath the coins he found a star made of silver foil. Sam unfolded the foil; inside lay a child's tooth.

In a short time Sarah's health improved and Sam became stronger; he sat more and more on the park bench with the children.

Year after year passed. Sam and Sarah no longer had to worry about tailoring. Sam gave his life to the children and Sarah gave Sam her devotion.

One afternoon Sam did not come to the park to sit. Dr. Pazzo was advised of his absence. After closing his office, he visited the apartment. No one answered the door. The Doctor entered and found that both Sam and Sarah, each in their 99th year, had died peacefully in their sleep.

Sarah and Sam were buried beside each other. On Sarah's gravestone was inscribed -

Sam Golden
Devoted Wife
Born Sept. 20, 1825 - Died Sept. 28, 1924
On Sam's gravestone was inscribed -
Sam Golden
Tailor of Love
Born Sept. 20, 1825 - Died Sept. 28, 1924

It is said that in the far corner of a cemetery in Brooklyn there is a grave, now without a headstone. From the grave at night sometimes a bluish light can be seen.

Strangely enough, even though Sam Golden has long passed away, quarters continue to be found under the pillows of children.

As if by magic - for a tooth. By a fairy?

On second thought; why not?

What makes a good fairy anyway? A touch of magic?

Wisdom. Lots of love.

Partial solar eclipse to occur Feb. 26

A partial solar eclipse, caused when the moon moves between the earth and the sun, will occur in Virginia from 10:50 a.m. - 1:23 p.m. (EST), Feb. 26. About 60 percent of the sun will be obscured at the time of maximum eclipse (12:06 p.m. EST). At the beginning, a tiny sliver of the sun will be covered, and this will increase gradually until about three-fifths of the sun's surface is obscured.

Virginia Beach residents will be able to view the eclipse, weather permitting, but should use proper observing procedures. One safe viewing method is to project the image of the sun through the eyepiece of a telescope onto a screen, which could be made from a piece of white paper and held a few inches from the eyepiece; or to project the image through a pinhole in a cardboard box.

Under no circumstances should the sun be viewed directly through a telescope or with the naked eye.

Desalting cost projection triples since last summer

By Mike D'Onofrio
Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

The cost of desalinating brackish water at a Cape Coral, Florida plant has turned out to be triple the amount projected here last summer.

Figures given Virginia Beach Public Utilities director Aubrey Watts last summer after a visit to the Florida plant, led to projections of 42 cents to 75 cents per 1,000 gallons.

A recent visit produced additional costs not reported in the original estimate which brings the total cost to $1,428 per 1,000 gallons of water. Originally reported costs amounted to 43 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Virginia Beach has been selected as one of the demonstration sites of desalination by the Office of Water Research and Technology. No decision has been made on the extent of government participation but expectations are that the government will pick up the tab for at least 90 percent and as much as 100 percent of the cost.

The local plant is expected to be started in 1980 with completion by 1981.

Giles Dodd, assistant to the city manager for finance and research, who reviewed the reverse osmosis plant in Florida, presented the costs incurred by the plant. The Virginia Beach plant will also be a reverse osmosis plant. Dodd cautioned that comparisons between plants should consider differences in electricity rates, sources and costs of blending water and the amount of total dissolved solids contained in the raw water.

Among the costs not included with the original report were depreciation for plant and equipment, depreciation on membrane, administrative expenses and fringe benefits.

The total cost for the year ending June 30 was $850,849. The Virginia Plant is expected to have a design capacity to produce 2 million gallons a day. The Florida plant is designed to produce 3½ million gallons a day.

Councilman Donald Merrick, who also visited the plant, told council Monday evening at an informal session that the Cape Coral plant started with six wells and now has nine wells. He said that electrical substations were enclosed because of humidity and salt from the Bay.

The Florida plant places the brine in the Gulf of Mexico, while the Virginia Beach plant expects to mix it with the effluent from the Hampton Road Sanitation District in the Chesapeake Bay. City Manager George Hanbury said that putting more salt in the Bay will actually help with the effluent.

Beach could recoup Rose Hall expenses sooner than expected

The City of Virginia Beach can expect to recoup its expenditure on the Rose Hall property and sooner than expected, City Manager George L. Hanbury told City Council Monday evening.

The purchase of the property -- the Francis Land House and 35 acres on which it is located off Virginia Beach Boulevard -- was the object of considerable controversy two years ago when the city paid $735,000 for the property.

Monday evening Hanbury, at an informal meeting of council, announced commitments for the sale of five parcels containing approximately four acres for a total of $350,000 -- $2 to $2.57 a square foot.

Brill's Antiques has leased the house with its 3½ acres and council Monday evening approved a contract award to Century Concrete Services, Inc., for $111,149 for site improvements for the home. The company presently operates an antique store in Newport News. Under the leasing agreement, Brill's will furnish the house with 18th century English antiques and employees will dress in costumes of the period. The house will be open for public tours

Vegetable enthusiasts find Beach soil produces garden of delight

By PAM VANDEVEER
Virginia Beach Sun Editor

Things are popping up in Virginia Beach. The weather is moderating and recent warm rains and soil signal the start of another growing season, notes Randy Jackson, horticulturist with the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service. Now's the time to plan that vegetable garden for mid-March planting.

"The early spring crops grow well here in Virginia Beach," Jackson says, listing lettuce, onions, peas, radishes, beets, potatoes and turnips as good cool season crops. Dominating during the warmer summer months are tomatoes, peppers, beans and squash.

"A good thing about the climate here is the fact that we have a late winter, with long, mild fall seasons. This allows the gardener to plant an additional crop of beans, califlower, broccoli or collards. They'll stay in production until a hard frost comes, usually somewhere around Nov. 20."

Jackson says Virginia Beach is lucky -- it has the longest growing season in the state.

"Our average early frost occurs around March 20. In the fall, the area near the Chesapeake line will have a frost a month earlier than the north end of the beach."

The reason, he explains, is that frost moves to low areas first and the northern side is higher. Also, a canopy of trees tends to protect the ground from frost.

After the final cold spell in the spring the soil goes from cool to warm very quickly, Jackson adds. "The gardener has to be ready, although lots of rain makes it difficult to work a garden."

Along with a long growing season go greater insect populations and disease problems, Jackson warns.

"In a cooler area you would have one generation of an insect a year. Here we may have three or four. And warm, humid weather causes diseases." Some of the most common garden pests in this area are aphids, spider mites, slugs and the squash vine borer. Mildew is the major disease problem.

"The white fly is a tremendous problem," Jackson adds. "It's almost impossible to control. They reproduce so rapidly and they become resistant to insecticides. They develop new strains."

He stresses that gardeners should read labels before using chemicals on crops, however. "If you use the wrong chemical on your garden, you're eating the vegetables at your own risk."

Jackson estimates that one out of three households in Virginia Beach has vegetable growing during spring and summer.

"The number is increasing each year. Two or three years ago the back-to-nature thing became popular -- people began surrounding themselves with plants inside."

"I don't think it's a fad. I think the present generation is very aware of our environment. People will always love plants."

So how does the beginner go about planning and planting a vegetable garden?

The Virginia Beach Department of See GARDENING, page 11

You don't have to have a large, formal garden to grow vegetables, reminds Randy Jackson of the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service. Use your imagination on ways to grow things in small spaces, like planting onions in an egg carton, as Jackson shows here. The extension service will offer a class for beginning gardeners on March 6.

A question of right and wrong

By MIKE D'ONOFIO

Virginia Beach Sun Sports Editor

What is moral is what you feel good after and what is immoral is what you feel bad after. —Ernest Hemingway

Ethical questions are rarely easy to answer, although Hemingway offers a simplified rule of thumb. Persons dealing with dilemmas of right versus wrong usually end up in grey areas of complication and confusion.

Moral questions are sticky, but as civilized beings, we are obliged to face questions of ethics when they arise. This brings us to Virginia Beach sports and an important issue.

Midway through the current basketball season, the then quiet transfer of two student-athletes, Jesse performance against his ex-classmates in last week's district tournament was just short of devastating, as well as ironic.

Both athletes clearly command attention in local basketball circles, and it is not surprising that the curiosity of local observers has been aroused as to the manner, reasons, and ethics of such a mid-season shift in personnel.

In Nimmo's case, he had no choice but to transfer if he wanted to play basketball. He was dismissed from Bayside's team after their eleventh game of the season.

"He was kicked off the team after our Lake Taylor game for disciplinary reasons," says Dollar. "He was kicked show his ability, even in the tenth grade, he could have been one of the best players that ever played in this district."

The Transfer Rule of the Virginia High School League Rules and Regulations (Section 28-6-1) states:

"The student shall not have enrolled in one high school and subsequently transferred to and enrolled in another high school without a corresponding change in the residence of his parents, parent, or guardian."

It seems that this rule is intended to Both athletes clearly demand attention in local basketball circles, and it is not surprising that the curiosity of local observers has been aroused as to the manner, reasons, and ethics of such a mid-season shift in personnel.

Nimmo and Terrell Hodges, from Bayside High School to Princess Anne High School was effected. Few people took notice except for those coaches, administrators, and individuals directly involved with the transfers.

But, included in those few who did take the notice were other district coaches and close observers of Beach basketball. Among these individuals, some eyebrows were raised as to the circumstances surrounding the mid-year transfer of these two above-average athletes. And there is no doubt that their talents are above-average.

Nimmo was a starter under Bayside coach Johnny Dollar before his mid-season dismissal from the team, and he ranked among the district leaders in individual scoring when he was dismissed.

Hodges, who was not a member of Bayside's basketball program, has more than adequately filled the gap in Princess Anne's front line since joining the team in late January, and his off that very night."

"I heard the next day that he was going to move to P.A. We heard him say that the reason he was going to P.A. was for basketball and to get back at Coach Dollar."

Those motives were reiterated by Nimmo himself during a telephone interview last week. Explaining why he transferred to Princess Anne, Nimmo stated, "I didn't like the way I was treated. I want to play for P.A., and he (Dollar) is going to regret making me leave. Terrell came back to haunt him and that's what I'm going to do."

As for Hodges, it was not by choice that he was not a member of Bayside's basketball program. He was also released by Dollar.

"He came out two years in a row and I cut him," says Dollar, "not because of his ability, but because he wouldn't do what I wanted him to do. He only did what he wanted to do."

"To me, I think he's got more ability than anybody in the District. If he had started to play, I mean really play and cover situations where a student-athlete is forced to change schools by the necessity of a family relocation or some other type of shift in residence.

Should an athlete be forced to shift his residence, this rule insures that he will not be deprived of the opportunity to compete in athletics at his new school.

But, as is the case with all explicitly stated rules, they can be manipulated and applied to situations for which they may not have been constructed.

Apparently, Nimmo's transfer to Princess Anne did not spring from a change of residence, but rather his change of residence sprang from a desire to transfer to Princess Anne -- a desire which was fueled by his dismissal from Bayside's team and his expressed interest in revenge.

Hodges's motives seem to be akin to those of Nimmo. Dollar refused to keep Hodges in the Bayside program without a change in attitude, and Hodges chose to leave rather than

Zodiac featured in March at Beach planetarium

The Virginia Beach City Public Schools Planetarium public program for March will be "The Zodiac." During this program the origin of the constellations of the Zodiac is explored. The constellations of the Zodiac will be outlined in the planetarium sky as slides of the symbols for each constellation are projected.

Also, slides of paintings — by a modern artist — depicting the figures of the Zodiac will be shown. Myths about Zodiacal figures will be related, as well as general horoscopes.

Planetarium hours are Sunday, 7 to 8 p.m., March 4th, 11th, 18th, and 25th; Tuesday, 7 to 8 p.m., March 6th, 13th, and 27th.

The planetarium seats 120 people and is easily accessible from the 44 toll road by taking the Lynnhaven Exit (Exit 5) to the Lynnhaven Parkway and turning right at the first street—South Lynnhaven Road—to Plaza Junior High School, where the planetarium is located.

Telephone the main office at Plaza Junior High School, 486-1971, for reservations. Admission free, children under age 12 may be refused admission unless accompanied by a mature person.

Jazz quintet performs at TCC - Virginia Beach

The Norfolk Jazz Quintet will perform at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College March 6 in Room B-100 at 12:30 p.m. The musical group's appearance is a presentation of Young Audiences, in conjunction with the TCC Student Government Association.

"Flowers with a Flair" is garden council program

The Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach will sponsor "Flowers with a Flair", a special program on flower arranging, by guest lecturer Mrs. Beth Hemingway on Wednesday, March 7 at 10:30 a.m. in the Fellowship Hall of King's Grant Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Hemingway is the author of four books on flower arranging. She is a nationally accredited flower show judge and has given lectures in several states, Canada and Australia. In addition, she has appeared on television in the Richmond area for eight years, demonstrating flower arranging and horticulture.

This special program is open to the public, and tickets are available at the door for $1.50.

Beach Friends of Music plan trip to Washington

The Virginia Beach Friends of Music have reserved a block of tickets for the April 6 recital by Lizar Berman in Washington's Kennedy Center Concert Hall. To members and former concert subscribers on a first-come, first-served basis the Friends of Music offer a short week-end in Washington package which will include round trip bus transportation, hotel accommodations for one night at special group rates, and ticket (orchestra section) to the Lizar Berman recital. Deadline for reservations is March 7. Call H.E. Jones, 464-5086 or 481-4158 for information.

Contact Tidewater offers spring training

Contact Tidewater, a nationally affiliated crisis intervention and referral service, is now seeking responsible caring volunteers for the spring training class which begins at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 6 at United Methodist Church, 18th and Pacific Ave., Virginia Beach.

The course will include teaching series, "The Principles of Counseling"; comprehensive group sessions to define and sharpen listening skills; lectures by psychiatrists, psychologists, and pastoral counselors concerning specific "problem" areas. For further information call 328-2211.

Children may sign up for trip to fire station

The Oceanfront branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library System will present a special program for children ages five and up on Wednesday, March 21, at 4 p.m. The program will involve a trip to the Virginia Beach Fire Station on Arctic Avenue. Children will meet at the library and go as a group to the fire station for a program on fire safety and fire fighting.

Registration is required as the program is limited to 30 children. Registration begins on Thursday, March 1, and must be done in person at the Oceanfront Branch Library at 1811 Arctic Avenue. For further details contact Ellen Burns or Gale Thrift at 428-4113.

Beginning ballet

For a month children at Montessori Children's House learned about the history of ballet, pantomime and the five basic ballet positions. The study climaxed with the Burchfield Ballet coming to the school through the cooperation of the Young Audiences Inc.

The children were delighted to have professional dancers come to perform just for them, incorporating a variety of pantomime, jazz, and ballet. Major Burchfield included the children in the show. The friendly dancers brought out the eager willingness of the young children and many are now dreaming of the day they will be a professional dancer.

Goodwill Industries plans materials drives in March

Goodwill Industries of Tidewater, Inc., with stores located in Norfolk, Portsmouth and Suffolk, will hold two materials drives during the month of March. The first will be at Military Circle Shopping Center on Virginia Beach Boulevard. A Goodwill Truck will be parked next to the Bank of Virginia Building facing Military Highway.

A second drive will be held March 24 at Tower Mall Shopping Center in Portsmouth. A truck also will be parked and manned in the parking lot. The time for the Tower Mall Drive will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dan Miller, Community Resources Director for Goodwill, reports that clothing material is in very short supply at all stores. Goodwill Industries uses the clothing for re-sale and for industrial use. Proceeds received from sale of clothing goes back into support of Goodwill Industries, a center to help train the handicapped become a valuable asset to society.

Bring any clothing or materials that you have stored in your attic, closet or possibly in the planning stages of being thrown away. Goodwill Industries can use these items and put them to good use. If you have any questions, please call 627-7733.

Camelot Hall residents rock-n-roll for heart fund

American Heart Association benefits from the recent rock-n-roll jamboree total $1467. Patients and residents of the Camelot Hall Nursing Home, Virginia Beach, joined with other homes throughout the United States on Valentine's Day to raise the needed dollars to combat heart disease.

Residents rocked in rocking chairs and rolled in wheelchairs; others walked a marked distance as part of the fund raising drive. The Seagull 4H Club of Virginia Beach and Foxwood 4H of Chesapeake sold raffle tickets and solicited donations.

The residents council sponsored a raffle of a handmade quilt. Blood pressures were checked during an open house from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. under the direction of Eileen Evison, public health nurse. Entertainment was available for residents and visitors. Rock-n-rolling was to the music of the Tidewater Senior Citizens Band, and all-coin amusements donated of a jukebox.

Time for termites

The Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture / Cooperative Extension Services advises citizens that March and April are months when termites will usually swarm. There is often some question as to whether an insect found in a house is a termite or an ant.

Termites have two pair of equal-lengthed, long wings and a stout body. Ants have unequal-lengthed wings and a body with a distinct waist.

God Bless You

I seek in prayerful words, dear friend,
My heart's true wish to send you,
That you may know that, far or near,
My loving thoughts attend you.

I cannot find a truer word,
Nor better to address you,
Nor song, nor poem have I heard
Is sweeter than God bless you!

God bless you! So I've wished you all
Of brightness life possesses;
For can there any joy at all
Be yours unless God blesses?

And so, "through all thy days
May shadows touch thee never—"
But this alone—God bless thee—
Then art thou safe forever.

Each of the medal winners becomes eligible to apply for DAR scholarships which are available to students pursuing American history as a course of college study.

Since 1956, the Daughters of the American Revolution have annually sponsored February as American History Month.

On Feb. 1, Mayor Patrick L. Standing issued a proclamation declaring February as American History Month in Virginia Beach and urged all citizens to seek a deeper understanding and appreciation of the history of our country.

The local DAR chapters also sponsor essay contests in February for 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th grade students. Tim McConville, an 8th grade student at Independence Junior High, was declared the Virginia Beach DAR essay contest winner.

Employers question hiring standards

Affirmative Action programs aimed at increasing the proportion of women and minorities getting jobs and promotions or entering colleges have been hard to square with the principle of non-discrimination set forth in the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The apparent contradiction has inspired the Bakke case and others like it, leaving the courts to decide whether or not white males are in fact becoming victims of "reverse discrimination".

Now, a suit against the government by Sears, Roebuck and Co. has entered this legal thicket from another direction. Sears is arguing, on behalf of itself and other retailers, that the government has no right to penalize employers for not meeting preferential hiring standards when the government itself has created conditions in the work force making it difficult if not impossible for the standards to be met.

The suit cites laws and programs that range from the GI Bill of Rights, which has given government help for a college education to far more men than women, to the recent raising of the mandatory retirement age to 70, which is reducing the number of job openings for women and minorities. The lengthy and complex Sears complaint paints a picture of federal agencies working at cross purposes, with employers caught in the middle.

Sears, Roebuck and Co. has stuck its neck out as the plaintiff in a class action suit that could be misinterpreted as resistance to the aim of equal opportunity programs. As Sears chairman Edward R. Telling emphasized in announcing the suit, his company has no apologies to make for its hiring policies.

The purpose, he says, is to cut through "impossible conflicting regulations" and to force "a clarification of irreconcilables" in federal policy. The quarrel, then, is not with women and minorities who may deserve better jobs than they can find. It is with a government that is not entirely innocent in creating their predicament and may be loading employers with too much responsibility to help them out of it.

New airport venture falls by wayside

Another attempt at constructing a general aviation airport for Virginia Beach fell by the wayside Monday at City Council meeting. Council denied the application of C.H. Byler and Virginia Beach Aviation Sales Ltd. for rezoning of land near Larkspur on Holland Road and use permits for the airport and related aviation facilities.

Byler's application had been recommended for denial by the City Planning Commission on the basis that it was improperly drawn. Byler does not own all of the land on which he had asked the rezoning, but he told Council he thought he had the permission of the owner, W.W. Reasor, to include that portion of the land. Reasor said he did not.

Bid Includes Improvement

Reconstruction of Kings Grant Elementary School should begin soon with the building ready for occupancy in September after a bid of $700,800 was accepted by the School Board for the work. ...

The school was heavily damaged by fire on Dec. 17. Included in the bid was the demolition of the old building to the concrete slab. Only the cafeteria was salvageable because of structural damage to classrooms due to intense heat.

Permits lag behind last year

Building permits issued in Virginia Beach in the first two months of 1969 are lagging about $1.3 million behind the pace set a year ago in the same two months.

Discrimination in our elementary schools?

There is, in my opinion, a situation in the public elementary schools that needs to be brought to more attention and changed. That is the policy set by the Physical Education Department of the School Board that excludes most of the best young gymnasts in town from representing their home schools in the annual Intramural Gymnastic Competition.

This may seem a trivial matter to almost everyone except the boys and girls involved - and there are scores of those with no one to speak for them.

A recent call to the Physical Education Department produced the answer that it is "city-wide" policy that those gymnasts who have EVER competed in "private" meets not be eligible for school teams. Well, depending on whom we are talking about; that may or may not be true.

For the past three years, high school and junior high age students who were competing with AAU teams were not supposed to compete for their schools at all. Some ignored this rule. This year the rules were changed for those students in grades 7 through 12 to allow all qualified gymnasts to compete. Some will undoubtedly go on the state meets. But the rules for first through sixth grades remain unchanged! WHY? These kids have school spirit too.

Before I go any further, let me add that I do NOT advocate trained gymnasts competing against those just starting out or who do it for fun, even though they do in the upper grades. I would like to see these boys and girls entered in a separate category. The students are categorized in several ways already, and this would not increase the number on each team as there must be a limit.

Will those of you who feel the same, please join me and write to the Board of Education to get this discriminatory policy changed now?

Council members are playing Santa, resident says

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Yes Virginia B. there is a Santa Claus. Come next Christmas he'll be bringing presents to all the good little boys and girls. But there's another Santa. A Santa that delivers presents several times each year. This Santa is really not one person, but six members of your very own city council. The presents these Santas deliver are the approval of rezoning requests made by all the good developers in our fair city.

For those unfortunates who have missed the opportunity to observe these generous members of our council in action—and you really did miss out if you didn't attend the Feb. 12 meeting of city council—and for those doubting Thomases, there always seems to be a few, may I recommend that you attend the next city council meeting which addresses one or more significant rezoning requests. There you will be able to see for yourself the wonderfully generous spirit exhibited by our six city Santas. Of course if you must be picky and prefer an Alice in Wonderland experience then attend a City Planning Commission meeting when it considers, and of course recommends to Council the approval of, rezoning requests made by our city's developers.

Yes Virginia B. there really is a Santa, and Santas, and within all too few years our city Santas and their little helpers will probably have succeeded in making our city one of the more congested and poorly planned metropolitan areas on the East Coast. That is they will have if the people keep re-electing those council members who wish to play Santa to our local developers.

Change is coming in 1980, reader predicts

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

On August 5, 1977, in the Virginia Beach Beacon, the following quotation appeared: City Council has been getting the reputation of being a "developer council," according to Kempsville Borough Councilman J. Henry McCoy Jr.

Six Virginia Beach councilmen have reinforced any doubts the people might have as to the validity of that 1977 statement. At the Feb. 12, 1979 council meeting two major rezoning petitions were approved on a 6 to 5 vote. The approval of these rezonings could only be interpreted as confirmation a developers council still exists in Virginia Beach.

Before making the motion for approval, one councilman lectured the standing room only crowd on the virtues of accepting change. That councilman's memory is short. A big change came in the 1978 council election. The people spoke by placing three new members on council on a 2 to 1 vote. Those three new members cast their votes against the Feb. 12 rezoning petitions.

Yes, change is coming. In fact it is due to arrive about May 1980. The people will not only accept it but are going to work diligently for it. That change being a turnover of the infamous Virginia Beach Developers Council to the Virginia Beach Peoples Council.

ERA proponents oppose advisory referendum

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

It is interesting that proponents of the Equal Rights Amendment opposed a statewide advisory referendum on this subject. My bill, which was designed to give the people of Virginia an opportunity to express their views on the ERA, was relegated to the House Privileges and Elections Committee. This was the same committee that the ERA proponents have been criticizing for keeping a vote on the ERA from the full House of Delegates. At the same time, the backers of the ERA are denying the people an opportunity to vote.

Why are the proponents of the ERA so fearful of an advisory referendum? They contend that the referendum is a "delaying tactic." I introduced a bill last year to hold an advisory referendum in 1978, and my original bill this year was for an advisory referendum in November of 1979. How does this constitute a "delaying tactic"?

Even if the referendum were held in 1980, there would be nothing to stop the legislature from voting on the ERA in the next session. You can be sure that the ERA proponents will bring the matter up at every legislative session and will keep extending the deadline for ratification as long as they are able to do so. If there is any delaying tactic involved in the ERA, it is the unfair extension of the time limit for ratification without a clear permission for states to rescind.

The real reason for opposition to an advisory referendum is the belief that the voters would overwhelmingly disapprove the ERA. Wherever voters have had the opportunity to express their opinion, they have made this position clear. ERA proponents have cited "polls" that indicate citizen approval of the ERA, yet Bella Abzug has warned her followers against the referendum. Obviously, broad support for the ERA is lacking. The longer this issue drags on, the more reasons the people will find for opposing the Equal Rights Amendment.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your numbers up

By Harvey J. Ridinger
Field Representative

The social security taxes the average person will pay 10 years from now will not constitute as large a proportion of wages as most people may think.

When discussing the 1979 increase in social security taxes and future increases scheduled in the law, many people forget that the increased taxes they may expect to pay assumes that their earnings will also rise.

In order for your taxes to double over the next 10 years, as some news accounts have indicated, your wages would also need to double during this period.

The amount of social security tax a person pays is related to the amount of annual earnings he or she makes.

Because the amount of annual wages subject to the social security tax was increased beyond the levels it was automatically scheduled to reach under prior law, the greatest tax increases will be paid by higher income earners.

The way to get a realistic picture of your future taxes is to look at increases in the tax rate. This states your social security tax as a percentage of your earnings.

In 10 years, under present law, the average person can expect to be paying about 1.52 percent more in social security taxes than the 6.05 percent that he was paying in 1978.

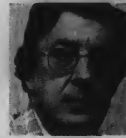

The 1979 increase amounted to about five dollars for the year, or 10 cents a week for the worker making $6,032 during 1979, based on the Federal statutory minimum wage. For a worker earning median wages — estimated to be about $11,300 during 1979 — the social security tax will increase by nine dollars, or about 16 cents a week.

If you are making the maximum wage subject to social security tax, your tax will increase by about $333 for the year. This is because the amount of annual wages subject to the social security tax increases from $17,700 in 1978 to $22,900 for 1979. That means a bigger tax increase for people who are making above the old wage base of $17,700.

Only about 15 percent of workers will see an increase in taxes as a result of the specified increases in the wage base over the next 10 years. The other 85 percent will see increases in their taxes based on increases in the tax rate or in the amount of wages they make. For these workers, social security taxes as a proportion of their wages will not change much.

People who feel that their social security taxes are too high should remember that they are paying for a lot more than retirement benefits. They are also paying for survivors and disability protection for themselves and their families, Medicare in old age, and for people receiving disability benefits for two years or more, and for those who require a kidney transplant or dialysis.

Community and social service at TCC

March is National Social Work Month. It is the time that the profession has selected each year to honor its members and to illustrate the importance of social work to the health of families, communities, and nations.

Tidewater Community College (TCC) joins in the community and national effort to underscore the importance of community and social service by including in its program the Associate in Applied Science degree in Community and Social Service. Each campus and the Norfolk Skills Center offers courses in this curriculum.

For example, the Chesapeake Campus has 59 students in the Community and Social Service curriculum. The course of study is a six-quarter (two year) program that has as its objectives: (1) to bring about a basic understanding of people's needs and the community's impact on these needs, (2) to prepare the student to utilize knowledge and skills in a manner that will enhance the quality of service delivery in the community, (3) to prepare the student to function efficiently at job entry level in varied community service positions, and (4) to prepare the student for continued education at a four-year college or university.

The Community and Social Service curriculum is designed to meet an ever-growing demand for trained personnel to serve as technicians to social service and welfare professionals. The social service technician would perform supportive functions under the direction of the professionals in various public services, social service and welfare agencies.

Employment opportunities in this field and curriculum would include agencies such as: hospitals, welfare departments, mental health clinics, mental retardation agencies, United Way agencies, Traveler's Aid Societies, child and family welfare agencies, child care agencies, rehabilitation agencies, probation departments, senior centers, city social service departments, respite care agencies, nursing homes, and public school systems.

Notes from the shelter industry

The 'taking' issue looms as major concern of future

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications Tidewater Builders Association

With the coming of age of the environmental movement, as exemplified by the recent high interest in coastal management legislation, the issue of "taking" private property for public use has assumed new proportions.

The Fifth Amendment to the Constitution makes it clear that private property cannot be taken for public use without just compensation. However, the interpretation of what constitutes "taking" and what constitutes just compensation presents the difficulty. It is a clear situation when land is condemned and title transferred in order to build a public highway or add on to the national park system. However, if the law tells a person that his two miles of coastline property must remain in their natural state or can only be used subject to certain restrictions, the issue becomes less clear. Take for example a hypothetical case in which a developer had planned to build a carefully designed oceanfront community that would meet both environmental and economic needs according to his planners. If denied that particular use, hasn't his land been "taken" even though he may retain title to it? Wouldn't he then be entitled to just compensation?

Since 1926, it has been accepted by courts and the public generally that zoning is a proper exercise of the government's authority to impose restriction on private property for the public health, safety, and welfare, but not so heavy a restriction as to deprive the land of all possible good use. A matter of interpretation again. What is good use?

There is a view now being espoused that our traditional concept of land ownership must change . . . that every land owner is not automatically entitled to a profit by virtue of his investment, and that the benefits of the land belong not to just one individual but to all of society. That's certainly a revolutionary concept in our American experience, which was based from its inception on the right of the individual to hold property inviolate.

The ownership rights of private land owners must be protected for at least three reasons. First, our system of commerce and laws depends on those rights, and an abrupt change would be economically disruptive. Second, fairness to the individual investor demands protection of those rights . . . supposing, for instance, an individual's stock were confiscated by government fiat. Is land investment any different? And third, profit in land is necessary to provide the extra incentive to an industry already lagging far behind in its ability to meet current and future demand for housing.

With the expected continued rapid growth of Virginia Beach's population, the demand for housing is expected to remain very strong in the coming years. And as we continue to search for the most balanced and effective type of environmental protection for this area, we should keep the 'taking' issue in mind. We should also consider that protecting the environment is not an end in itself. It must be viewed as part of man's total surroundings . . . the ecological amenities that make life worth living are of little use if man has no place to live.

Russell appointed assistant to director of public works

Joseph D. Russell Jr. has been appointed as an Assistant to the Director of Public Works. The appointment, which is effective March 1, was made by C. Oral Lambert Jr., Director of Public Works for the City of Virginia Beach.

Russell's primary responsibilities will include coordination of the department's administrative and financial affairs. A city employee since 1974, he was previously Assistant to the Fire Chief. Russell holds a B.A. degree and a Masters degree in Urban Affairs from Virginia Tech.

Russell will take the position formerly held by P. Wade Kyle, who has become County Administrator of King George County, Virginia.

Virginia Beach Blvd. McDonald's named "outstanding store"

McDonald's, located at 3852 Virginia Beach Boulevard in Virginia Beach, has received the "Outstanding Store Award."

This is the highest honor that can be awarded to a McDonald's. The restaurant's superior rating was determined by McDonald's regional managers on the basis of intensive and detailed reports filed by field consultants. Quality, service and cleanliness were the major deciding factors in selecting the facility.

The restaurant is managed by Betty Portt.

Kempsville High School student Jean Williams created this outfit she models.

As part of the celebration of National Vocational Education week, the Virginia Beach Public Schools Vocational-Technical center held an open house on Feb. 14. More than 2,000 people attended.

Each shop and classroom area not only had standing exhibits, but students were also actively engaged in the respective shop activities. Students from all of the city's six high schools attend the Vo-Tech center part of the school day. Half attend during the morning hours, and the rest during the afternoon hours.

The evening was not just for the parents and families of the students there. Interested persons from all walks of life were there just to look the school over, or even to look for prospective employees.

The visitors were fascinated by the variety of plants in the greenhouse, with the custom upholstery work done there, the beautiful auto paint jobs, the professional cabinets made in the carpentry shop, the whir of motors from the various shops, the printing presses and the commercial art work, and with the hairdos that can be created by the cosmetology class.

A lot of interest was also directed at the continuous fashion show that went on through the evening. The girls in the class wore their own creations. The visitors also stopped off for a snack at the food processing classroom.

The evening was designed to provide a complete overview of the school and what its students can accomplish with the training provided there. For many of those who were there it may have been a critical evening in the educational process. Many students and many parents decided that Vo-Tech was the place for them next year.

The Practical Nursing class provided blood pressure tests for the public during the open house. Virginia Beach policeman James Grady has pressure measured as his wife, Joan, and daughter, Katrina, look on.

It may be a little while, but this little lady is already working on her hair style, with Vo-Tech's help.

FC students win awards in forensics meet

First Colonial High School students captured three first place awards and two second place awards in the Beach District Forensics Meet held on Feb. 21. The five were the most awards won by any of the Virginia Beach high schools.

The meet, held at First Colonial, was a preliminary round in the Virginia High School League sponsored annual event. First and second place winners in the Beach, Eastern and Southeastern districts will compete next in the regional meet to be held in March at Indian River High School in Chesapeake. Winners there will compete in the state meet in Charlottesville in April.

The First Colonial students winning first place honors were Henry Jackson, Boys' Extemporaneous Speaking; Keith Nock, Boys' Original Oratory; and Geafrey Wolfe, Boys' Poetry Reading. Laura Woolridge and Pamela Pearsall, both also of First Colonial, won second place awards in Girls' Original Oratory and Girls' Prose Reading, respectively.

Cox High School also had three first place winners: Mary Evans, Girls' Poetry Reading; Dan Greenbury, Boys' Prose Reading; and Karyn Kraft, Spelling. Yvette Jarashow won Cox's only second place, in Girls' Extemporaneous Speaking.

Bayside High School students took two first place awards: Annette Miller, Girls' Extemporaneous Speaking; and Michele Doty, Girls' Original Oratory. Two second place honors went to Bayside students as well: Dane Butswinks, Boys' Extemporaneous Speaking; and Aaron Nunnery, Boys' Poetry Reading.

Kempsville High School students took three second place awards: Bruce Holley, Boys' Original Oratory; Katie Mellin, Girls' Poetry Reading; and David Belote, Boys' Prose Reading.

Princess Anne High School captured one first place; Marian Eller, Girls' Prose Reading; and one second place, Allison Stern, Spelling.

Practical nursing students set graduation exercises for Thursday, March 8

Graduation exercises will be held Thursday, March 8, at 8 p.m., at Plaza Junior High School for students who have successfully completed their studies in the School of Practical Nursing at the Virginia Beach Public Schools Vocational-Technical Education Center.

There are ten members of the sixth graduating class who will receive their certification from Mildred A. Dozier, R.N., director of Vo-Tech's practical nursing program.

The graduates are Joan Clark, Pilar Cook, Terri Dickens, Deborah Friesz, Jean Houchins, Karen Johnson, Kathy Lock, Ann Morse, Lisa Patterson, and Carole Strawhand.

The students, from the six high schools in Virginia Beach, receive training in all phases of practical nursing at the Vo-Tech center. Half of their school day is spent there, and the other half is spent at their respective high schools.

The students recently participated in the annual open house at the center, where there was a long line throughout the evening as the class offered free blood pressure checks.

Story time cancelled at Oceanfront branch library

The story time for children ages 3 through 8 presented each week at the Oceanfront Branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library System has been cancelled beginning March 1 due to lack of participation.

Ole Miss names Beach grads

Two students from Virginia Beach are among 420 students receiving degrees following the fall semester at The University of Mississippi.

Southall named to Who's Who

Lisa M. Southall of Virginia Beach was among those from Radford College named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Ms. Southall, a senior social work major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Southall of 3512 Sea Horse Way.

The student must have made a positive contribution to the campus life of the student body and to the development of the college by personal example and leadership.

Scholarship fund established

A scholarship fund for middle-income students has been established at Virginia Wesleyan College. The Barton Heights (Richmond) United Methodist Church Scholarship Fund was established Feb. 9 with a $12,500 gift to be placed in the Virginia Wesleyan College endowment. Scholarships will be awarded to United Methodist students by the college.

The gift came about through the merger of Barton Heights UMC and Chamberlayne Heights UMC of Richmond. Barton Heights Church was recently sold, and the proceeds distributed among the five United Methodist colleges of the Virginia United Methodist Church Conference and other charitable agencies of the conference. Barton Heights UMC was founded in 1892. Alexander Armour served as chairman of the Board of Trustees, and his son, Dr. Robert Armour, served as chairman of the contribution's distribution committee.

Nixon, Davis on dean's list

Teresa A. Nixon of Virginia Beach attained the dean's list at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro during the first semester which ended recently.

Miss Nixon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Nixon of Ryder Cup Lane.

Also on the dean's list, with parents residing in Virginia Beach, was Suzanne E. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F.M. Davis of Willow Drive. Miss Davis is an art major.

Beach voice student enters music festival

Debbie Holadia of Lavender Lane, Virginia Beach, a student at Tabernacle Baptist School, was a voice contestant in the recent High School Music Festival and Contests sponsored by Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C. Miss Holadia is a senior.

More than 214 students from 22 states participated in the contests in piano, organ, voice, woodwinds, brass, and strings. The climax was a concert finale with the Festival Band and Chorus and contest winners before an audience of more than 2,000 persons.

Local musician accepted into symphony orchestra

The Purdue University Department of Bands has announced that Paula Elynn Grossman of Gladiola Cres., Virginia Beach, has been accepted for membership in the Purdue University Symphony Orchestra. Paula plays viola in the Beach Channel High School Orchestra and is the daughter of Paul and Rochelle Grossman.

Virginia Beach resident earns dean's list honors

Brian L. Strelitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Strelitz of Barnards Cove Road, Virginia Beach, has been named to the dean's list at Babson College for the 1978 fall semester.

To be named to the dean's list, Strelitz has achieved a cumulative average of above 9.30 on a 12-point scale.

Beach Navy man saves youth's life

Aviation Electronics Technician Third Class (AT3) David M. Polaha, while temporarily assigned to Commander Medium Attack Wing One Staff from Attack Squadron 42's Aviation Electronics at Naval Air Station Oceana, distinguished himself by recently saving the life of a Virginia Beach youth. As a result of his heroic and unselfish act, AT3 Polaha has been recommended for the Navy and Marine Corps Medal.

On Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12, about 4:20 p.m., Petty Officer Polaha was looking out his apartment window in Virginia Beach's Chapel Lake Apartments, when he saw a boy fall through the ice at a nearby lake. Upon seeing this, AT3 Polaha thought back to an article he had read in "Boy's Life" when he was eight years old and in the Cub Scouts. The article informed one what to do if someone fell through ice into frigid waters underneath.

A moment's reflection was all that was needed before AT3 Polaha went to work to save the boy's life. The boy, 11-year-old Anthony Land, had fallen through the ice of Chapel Lake and was about 50 feet from the shoreline when Polaha arrived on the scene. Polaha was informed that the boy's predicament was almost hopeless, since a previous rescue attempt had resulted in another young man falling through the ice near the shoreline.

Undaunted, Petty Officer Polaha chose another route and carefully proceeded across the ice to the exhausted and nearly frozen boy. The wind chill factor that afternoon was 22 degrees Fahrenheit. Within about ten feet of the youth, Polaha quit walking and crawled the rest of the way to the boy. He extended a broken limb to the lad and told him how to grasp it so he could be pulled out of the water. Polaha's assertive behavior and reassuring instructions calmed the panicky youth during the rescue.

There had been no warning signs posted when the incident occurred and reportedly, the ice had been fairly solid the day before. Afterwards, AT3 Polaha took Land and two of his friends to his apartment and gave them all a stern lecture, while helping Land dry out. His advice to the boys: "Stay away from frozen lakes and join a neighborhood scouting troop." The advice given by Polaha apparently was not in vain, since Land remarked, "No way am I going back out on the ice."

In looking back on his act of courage, AT3 Polaha remarked, "You don't think twice about it. Life's a pretty valuable thing. You do what has to be done."

Pelling

Airman Angela D. Pelling, daughter of Mrs. Ruby M. Costella of Alcott Road, Virginia Beach, has been assigned to Keesler AFB, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Pelling will now receive specialized training in the administrative field.

The airman attended Princess Anne High School.

Perry

Staff Sergeant Mark S. Perry, son of retired U.S. Navy Senior Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. Oscar L. Perry of John Hancock Drive, Virginia Beach, is a member of the first Air Force operational unit to receive the General Dynamics-built F-16 air combat fighter.

Sergeant Perry is an aircrew egress systems technician with the Tactical Air Command's 388th Tactical Fighter Wing at Hill AFB, Utah.

The F-16 is a compact, high-performance aircraft designed for air-to-air combat, and delivery of air-to-surface weapons.

Sergeant Perry is a 1972 graduate of Floyd E. Kellam High School. He attended Glendale (Ariz.) Community College and Weber State College, Ogden, Utah.

Anderson

Airman Brenda R. Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Anderson of Faraday Lane, Virginia Beach, has graduated at Sheppard AFB, Tex., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for aircraft maintenance specialists.

Airman Anderson, who was trained to maintain, repair and service aircraft currently in use by the Air Force, is being assigned to Hickam AFB, Hawaii, for duty with a unit of the Pacific Air Force.

The airman is a 1978 graduate of Floyd E. Kellam High School.

Winslow

Selected for instruction in the civil engineering mechanical and electrical field at Sheppard AFB, Tex., after completing basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., is Airman Thomas M. Winslow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Winslow Sr. of Stumpy Lake Lane, Virginia Beach.

During the six weeks at Lackland, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Winslow attended Kempville High School.

Hamilton

Airman Wayne C. Hamilton, whose sister is Kathy M. Hamilton of Ardito Court, Virginia Beach, has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Hamilton will now receive specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field. The airman is a 1977 graduate of Charles E. Gorton High School, Yonkers, N.Y.

VIRGINIA BEACH PUBLIC NOTICE

Correction from Dec. 7, 1977 issue

VIRGINIA: Notice is herein given that on Wednesday, December 21, 1977, the City of Virginia Beach shall submit to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development a request and certification for the release of $2,280,000.00 in Entitlement Funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The request and certification for the release of funds pertains to the Seastack Sanitary Sewage Facility, Seastack Water Facility, Newsome Farms Water Facilities, Newlight Sanitary Sewage, Seastack Street Improvements, Newlight Street Improvements, Gracetown Water Engineering, Graze Program, Newsome Farms Sanitary Sewage, and Contingency monies as outlined in the City's application to HUD on March 15, 1977.

The City of Virginia Beach has prepared an environmental review record respecting the above project for which the release of funds is sought. This record may be reviewed and copies obtained thereof at the Virginia Beach Grants Office from 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday.

The City of Virginia Beach is the official Applicant for the above-referenced funding and the address is: Municipal Center, City of Virginia Beach, Virginia 23456. George L. Hanbury, City Manager, is the Chief Executive Officer representing the Applicant.

The City of Virginia Beach will undertake the project described above the Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The City of Virginia Beach is certifying to HUD that the City of Virginia Beach and George L. Hanbury, in his official capacity as City Manager, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental review, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the City of Virginia Beach may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is one of the following bases: (A) that the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer of the applicant; or (B) that applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), any may be addressed to HUD at 701 East Franklin Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after January 13, 1978 will be considered by HUD.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

Notice is herein given that the City of Virginia Beach has conducted an environmental review and has made a FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT for the Housing Rehabilitation

Virginia Beach Public Notices cont'd

Program outlined in the 1977-78 and 1978-79 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Applications. The City proposes to utilize Federal Funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-383), reauthorized by Congress and amended as of 1977, for the housing rehabilitation program as outlined in the above-mentioned CDBG applications that were submitted to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) on March 15, 1977, and March 15, 1978, respectively.

ACTIVITY: The scope and activities involved in the Housing Rehabilitation Program entails providing community development target area lower (low and moderate) income residents with low-interest loans and/or grants for 1) the payment of water and sewer line and tap fees; and 2) housing rehabilitation that will bring target area substandard housing conditions up to the quality of the City's Minimum Housing Code standards as established by the Department of Permits and Inspections - Housing Division.

FUNDS: The City proposes to request from HUD through a REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS ADVERTISEMENT AND CERTIFICATION that $215,000 be released from the Third CDBG Program Year funding, and that $250,000 be released from the Fourth CDBG Program Year funding to implement the program; the total of the funds equalling $465,000.

FINDING: Through evaluation of the scope and activities involved in the housing rehabilitation program, the City has determined that the activity will have NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT. Therefore, the City has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-190), and no further environmental reviews will be conducted.

REASONS FOR FINDING: The Housing Rehabilitation Program from the City's review to date—

1. will have no adverse impact on the geological, cultural, archeological, architectural or historical aspects of the community development target areas;
2. is not adversely affected by a flood plain, coastal zone or wetlands area;
3. will not disrupt wildlife;
4. will not create an air quality problem;
5. will only produce short-term low-level noise during the implementation of the program;
6. air and water quality will be improved because of the residents' hook-up to water and sewer lines;
7. will only produce, possibly, some minor short-term detrimental environmental effects during the implementation of the rehabilitation program;
8. will provide home improvement assistance to lower income residents in community development target areas to upgrade their substandard housing conditions; and
9. the housing rehabilitation activities have obtained the support and endorsement of the target areas' residents and the City Council of the City of Virginia Beach.

Pursuant to Section 104(h) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, amended as of 1977, and the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-190), an Environmental Review Record has been prepared for the Housing Rehabilitation Program which may be examined at the Office of Community Development, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23456, between 9:00 A.M. and 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday, except on City holidays. Written comments on the above environmental review record will be received by Benjamin C. Moore, Director of the Office of Community Development, at the above address no later than 5:00 p.m., Wednesday, March 21, 1979.

Developers, landowners object to ordinance that will affect farmette subdivisions

Virginia Beach expects to slow down the development of farmette subdivisions with an ordinance approved Monday evening by City Council.

Opposing the action were developers and landowners who object to controls which they believe will lessen the value of their property.

In approving the ordinance unanimously, council refused to include a grandfather clause suggested by attorney Al Etheridge representing Ronald Neighbors and the Penn Corporation. He recommended that the grandfather clause be applicable to property where the preliminary sub-division plat has been filed with the city.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that he would only consider approved subdivision plats, no preliminary subdivision plats.

The ordinance provides for a use permit procedure for development of three or more acre lots on poorly drained soils.

The State Health Department had prohibited the construction of homes on poorly drained soil where water and sewer are not available. In 1976 as an accommodation in agricultural regions where a large landowner wanted to give a parcel to a relative to construct a home, the General Assembly approved a bill permitting construction on three acre lots with the approval of the Health Department.

Regional Health Director Dr. W.B. Crawford said that the feeling was that this provision would not be widely used.

But this has not been so, he told council at an informal session Monday evening. Although lots have been selling for $40,000 to $50,000 apiece, and purchasers have been constructing $150,000 to $200,000 homes on the property, the farmette business is flourishing.

He said that the septic tank systems will not take the extensive strain and that "leapfrog" development results.

He said that in five years these people will say, "We want sewers to our beautiful homes." He said that as one of the advocates of the legislation, "I may open a Pandora's box."

Councilman John A. Baum said that at the time the legislation was passed, the Health Department in Richmond was reluctant. "It was not anticipated it would allow subdivisions and new streets," Baum has considered the inroads of farmette residents in the farming areas will threaten the farm industry.

Hanbury said that the worst type of urban development in the southern part of the city would be to have large numbers of farmettes sprawled throughout the entire agricultural area. He cited destruction of the agricultural land and the expense of services.

Mini horse seminar planned for weekend

The Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture 4-H Division will hold a "Mini Horse Seminar I" on Saturday, March 3. The seminar will be held from 1-5:30 p.m. at the Princess Anne Stables on London Bridge Road.

The schedule is as follows:

2-2:45 p.m. — Fitting and Showmanship - (Western, Hunter, and Saddleseat) include conformation. Instructors: Pam Baker (Hunter); Ms. Ann Clark (Western); Ms. Pris Martin (Saddleseat).

3-3:30 p.m. — Driving Demonstration: Instructor: Charlie Hopkins.

3:45-4:30 p.m. — Judging Conformation buying a Horse - Instructor: (TBA).

4:45-5:30 p.m. — First Aid/Basic Health - includes cuts, scrapes, coggins testing, worming, floating teeth, etc. Instructor: Dr. Melvin Myers, D.V.M.

5:30 p.m. — Program evaluation.

There is no charge for the program and the public is invited to attend. For additional information contact the Department of Agriculture/VPI & SU Extension Service at 427-4617.

The object of this suit is to obtain a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from the said defendant, upon the grounds of separation for more than one year.

And an affidavit having been made and filed that the defendant is not a resident of the State of Virginia, the last known post office address being Route One, Brownstown, Indiana 47220.

It is ordered that Eva Jane Wheeler White do appear on or before the 13th of April, 1979, and do what may be necessary to protect her interest in this suit.

Etheridge said the ordinance deprives the property owner of his property rights without just compensation. He said his clients are expecting to consummate a land purchase which would be upset by the ordinance.

City Attorney Dale Bimmon said that he was "not sure that he has vested property rights with the filing of a preliminary plat...maybe with a final plat."

Crawford told council that if the localities exercised no control, the Health Department may review the matter and the city "would be back where we were." Before the special legislation, there was a moratorium on home construction in the poorly drained areas.

Paul Sellers, a resident of Blackwater who has developed two farmette subdivisions, one on Blackwater Road and one, Woodards Mill, in Great Bridge, opposed the ordinance. He said he hated "to feel we'll discriminate against people who want to live in the country."

He refused to see any conflict between farming and the farmette dwellers. To Sellers it was just a matter of deciding, "was he there before the hogs or were the hogs there before him."

Louis Bryan of Professional Realty also objected, complaining that people have left Virginia Beach because they could not get land.

"Don't put any more restrictions on developers," he said.

Baum said that it makes no sense to take large acreages with poor soils although he said he couldn't see anyone denying anyone to build on an existing highway.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley, in answer to a remark made by Sellers, said that it was a "fallacy of the way of life that we have not been concerned about people who come after us. This is not denying a person reasonable use of land." She said that council did not have to guarantee speculators a profit.

Use procedure studied

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission will study the matter in relation to an application filed by Raymond and Elinda Kauffman for a change of zoning from AG-1 Agricultural District to 1-1 Light Industrial District on a 1.1 acre parcel on the west side of North Landing Road, north of North Landing Bridge.

City Council Monday evening voted to ask the Planning Commission to

Rose Hall property

and will be included in the Virginia Beach Tour.

The properties which have been sold are located along Little Neck Road (which will be renamed King's Grant Road). They include a travel service agency, a realty firm, a dress shop, law office building and medical office building, all to be housed in separate structures in the Colonial motif.

Hanbury said that next Monday he will ask Council to declare all but 13.6 acres of the remaining property to be declared surplus and offered for sale. This property is zoned commercial. Jerry W. Broadway, representative from the Department of Economic Development and Industrial Development, said that he has already received queries from prospects interested in an interior design establishment, and a small shopping center. Broadway said prospects so far are for four to eight more buildings.

Property in the interior of the property, he said, should sell for from $1.80 to $2.80 a square foot and property fronting on Virginia Beach Boulevard should go for $4 to $4.50 a square foot.

On March 13 the Planning Commission will consider an application to rezone the 13.6 acres set aside by Hanbury for a change in zoning from Office to A-1 Apartments. Hanbury said that this property should be offered on the basis of design bids which would also include the offered sales price. If this property is sold for apartments, Hanbury said, council should get out of the land business at Rose Hall much earlier than expected.

Extension service offers tips on Beach vegetable gardening

Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service is sponsoring the sessions. Jackson will teach the classes, which are specifically designed for the first-time gardener.

Times are 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon and 7 to 9:30 p.m. A $1 pre-registration fee is required. Call 427-4611 to sign up.

Free soil testing is one of the many services offered by the extension service. All Virginia Beach libraries have soil sample boxes you can pick up, fill and return to the library.

The department will analyze the soil and make recommendations as to the amount of lime or fertilizer one should apply.

"Most people probably use too much fertilizer," Jackson comments. "It's ok on leafy plants, but the key work is moderation. Use it only when you think it's necessary."

He concludes that the beginning gardener should think out his plans carefully. "Start small, don't go out and dig up the backyard. Beginners tend to overplant. Then July comes and it's 90 degrees and they've got a weed patch."

"Things like succession planting and double row cropping are ways of utilizing space to greatest advantage if you have a small garden area. People who live in apartments can grow the patio tomato and can grow some things in pots. You have to use imagination on ways to grow in small places."

Jackson reminds people that they don't have to have a large, formal garden to grow vegetables. "You can let your garden be a part of your landscaping. It's the imaginative people who always seem to produce the best."

Virginia Beach gardeners interested in receiving the Cooperative Extension Service's regular newsletter can receive it free by calling the office at 427-4611 and signing up. Brochures are also available on classes offered periodically by the horticulture department.

Tip earners must file earnings

Wiping down tables and refilling sugar bowls marks the end of a shift for many waiters and waitresses. Other tip-earners never see a dish rag or condiment during the workday.

But there is at least one sight shared by all who earns tips. It's the quarters and dimes waiting to be counted.

Attached to those stacks of coins, is the responsibility to file a report for any month where tips totaled more than $20. The tip report, according to the Internal Revenue Service, should be filed with the employer so that the proper amount of Federal income and social security taxes can be withheld. Employers who withhold the proper amounts can save their employees from the shock of facing major and often unexpected tax bills at the end of the year.

Failure to report tips to an employer can complicate the task of filing a tax return and result in a sizable penalty at tax time. If a report has not been filed, chances are that social security taxes have not been withheld. A tip earner in this situation must complete not only the standard Form 1040 but also Form 4137. The tip earner will be required to send along any social security taxes due.

Although no law requires a daily recording of tips, many tip earners have discovered that daily tallies make filing the monthly tip report easier. To facilitate the recordkeeping effort, the Internal Revenue Service offers both daily and monthly report forms to taxpayers who want them. The forms, Series 4070, are designed so that it's possible to keep running records of tips and, at the same time, distinguish between tips earned as cash and tips earned on charge receipts. It's a distinction that is necessary when filing a monthly report with the employer.

The deadline for filing the report is the 10th day of the month unless it falls on a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday. If that happens, an extra day is allowed. The report should cover the preceding month if more than $20.00 was earned.

Ordinarily an employer withholds taxes on tips from the regular wages before the regular paycheck is made out. Sometimes, however, taxes on tips amount to more than the regular wages. In this case, the employer can only withhold the proper amount if the employee provides the extra funds to cover withholding. If an employee in this situation decides not to give the employer additional funds to cover taxes, the employer's alternative is to file estimated tax returns throughout the year, thus paying taxes directly to the Internal Revenue Service. This procedure is explained in Publication 505, Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax, which can be ordered or picked up from the local Internal Revenue office.

Gymnastics — Sport as we'd like it

By MIKE D'ORSO
Virginia Beach Sun Sports Editor

Last Friday night's final game of the Beach District basketball tournament went just about as expected. The favored team won, the action was hot and heavy, and the crowd was as intense as the game.

Whether they were screaming their lungs out, beating noisemakers, or throwing debris onto the court, the fist-clenched fans were as involved in the volcanic atmosphere of the basketball game as the players were.

Entering First Colonial's gymnasium Saturday morning to witness the Eastern Regional Gymnastics Meet was like floating into a comparative dream world.

Gone were the buzzing ears, pounding hearts, and fiery eyes of the previous night. In their place came the murmur of gentle conversation among the spectators, colorfully-clad young women padding about or socializing, and mild music filling the gymnasium.

The contrast in atmosphere of these two settings reflects the differences in the nature of the sports, the participants, and the spectators.

While they both involve competition, performance, and intensity, the worlds of basketball and gymnastics revolve in completely different orbits.

Team sports like basketball seem much more focused on winning and losing than on excellence in performance. Admittedly, there is a thin line separating a spontaneous outburst of rhythmic hand-clapping among the spectators.

The intensity at a gymnastics meet may be just as great as it is in other sports, but it is kept completely internal, within the athlete. Nothing but grace is shown as a gymnast performs.

Certainly each competitor seeks success, but that success is not predicated on the performance of others. Each individual attempts to perform to the limit of her capabilities and recognizes this attempt in others.

It is this common empathy and mutual respect which brings competitors together with rounds of applause and bearhugs following a good performance, and solace and gentle squeezes following a letdown.

"It's perfection," states First Colonial coach Lynn Hadley. "It's the ultimate sport for a woman."

"A gymnast has to be ultimately strong, ultimately flexible, and ultimately graceful. It's the hardest sport for a girl."

Hadley is a qualified voice to speak for the sport. Her team, after winning the District tournament two weeks ago, dominated Saturday's Regional Meet.

But it almost defies the spirit of the sport to speak of winning. The intense rivalry and even hatred which is often found between coaches in other sports could not the two, but in experiencing a gymnastics meet, the difference becomes apparent.

While gymnastics meets involve teams, these teams are composed of individuals whose performance relies entirely on themselves.

When a gymnast mounts the balance beam, strolls onto the floor exercise mat, begins her approach for a vault, or ascends the uneven bars, she is completely alone and her performance is in no one's hands but her own.

But it is not this mere focus on the individual which sets gymnastics apart. There is a delicate air of mutual respect and compassion among the gymnasts themselves which infects the entire gymnasium.

In a basketball game, fans will assault an opposing player with noise as he shoots a free throw, praying that his shot will miss the mark. Players often observe that the most meaningful tribute they can receive is the boos of opposing fans.

No such twisted acclaim is found in gymnastics competition. For gymnastics fans, the spectacle is not one of combat, but rather it is more akin to a performance of the arts.

But don't let a comparison to the arts make you think of stuffiness. Saturday's meet was anything but stuffy. During one floor exercise routine, the combination of bouncy music and the jaunty gymnast's rhythm inspired be seen at Saturday's gymnastics meet.

Katy Emerson, Bayside's gymnastics coach, spoke of the family-like relationship between area coaches. "Half of us started gymnastics at the Beach while competing. Daphne Wall (Saturday's Meet Director) was at Cox in the first year they had the State Meet. I competed for Bayside. Lynn Hadley competed for First Colonial. Patty Merrell (Cox gymnastics coach) was at Cox, and Nan Ward (Kempsville gymnastics coach) was one of our best gymnasts at Princess Anne."

"That makes a big difference. You've grown up with it. Ten, twelve, thirteen years."

At Saturday's meet, the competitors from the Beach seemed to overshadow their contemporaries. The last five Eastern Regional championship teams have come from Virginia Beach. Is it the sand and surf that build excellent gymnasts?

"The coaching's better here," says First Colonial gymnast Betsy Noll, who finished fifth in Saturday's All-Around competition. "I just came from the Northern Region and it just seems that here we have harder practices, longer practices, and everyone cares and works."

"A great deal comes from the coaching. A good coach makes you want it more. We work out at least three hours a day and I'll stay for four or five hours just working on one thing, trying to perfect it."

Perfection. This seems to be the standard for gymnasts. They don't judge themselves in comparison to others. It is this absolute standard of perfection which is the goal of each gymnast. This helps explain why the intense forces of rivalry and competition as we see it in other team sports are absent in gymnastics.

And the mark of a champion seems to be devotion, as indicated by Noll's comments. But if this is the key, why are the Beach gymnasts any more devoted than others?

"From my personal experience and viewpoint," says Emerson, "I think the Beach has some of the most qualified and devoted coaches. High school gymnastics coaches around here are big stuff, as big as the private

It is the growth of private clubs which has helped the quality of the sport in general, by offering more practice time and opportunity to gymnasts, for, as Emerson notes, "It's not just a three-month job." For competitors or coaches.

But the private clubs have posed a problem by creating a conflict of interests with young gymnasts, for these clubs require practice time of their representatives and it is difficult for a girl to compete for both a club and her high school.

Says Hampton High School coach Susan Nelson, who has coached championship teams in the past, "It's impossible to go to all the high school practices and all the private club practices."

So many girls have to make a choice, and some schools lose their best gymnasts to private clubs. But at the Beach, this problem has not become as great as elsewhere, and this might be another reason for the Beach's success.

"Around here, you've got a lot of good old, high school-trained gymnasts," says Hadley.

Tops in Hadley's group of good old gymnasts is Leslie Karnitschnig, who took top All-Around honors Saturday. When the engaging Karnitschnig strolled up to receive her awards at the close of Saturday's meet, she had donned a pair of blue jeans over her gymnastics tights, a perfect reflection of the relaxed atmosphere of the competition.

And along with each medal which she was presented, she also received, as did all the top finishers, a flower. Nothing could be more appropriate.

First Colonial Patriots lead Beach onslaught in Eastern Regional Gymnastics Meet

By MIKE D'ORSO

Coach Lynn Hadley's First Colonial gymnastics team showed the way for the talented Beach District as the Patriots won Saturday's Eastern Regional Gymnastics Meet team championship in their own gymnasium.

Leading the Patriots' performance was Leslie Karnitschnig, Karnitschnig, who placed second in All-Around competition in the District meet, franced through her elfish routine in the floor exercise, finished high in vaulting, won the uneven bars, and topped off her day with an enchanting performance on the balance beam to claim the Regional All-Around title.

Also giving an outstanding performance was Bayside's Lisa Weber, who combined her showings in the four events for a second-place All-Around finish, giving Bayside fourth place team honors.

Just behind Weber in the All-Around category was the District All-Around champion, Jaudon Konkright, who gave the top performance in the floor exercise to put her Cox team in the third-place position.

The top nine finishers in each event, as well as the top four All-Around finishers, will travel to Stafford next weekend for the State Meet.

The Beach will be well-represented, with the following girls qualifying for State Meet competition.

change. But the mere desire to transfer is not enough, according to the rules. A change in residence of parents, parent, or guardian is needed.

So if Hodges and Nimmo wanted to transfer, they each needed the consent and cooperation of parents or guardians. They both got this cooperation, and Nimmo gained a guardian in the process.

"When it comes to the eligibility of players, the Beach District principal makes the decision on the student's eligibility," stated Princess Anne principal Letcher Hill during an interview last week.

According to the Princess Anne principal, Jesse Nimmo, accompanied by his father, his uncle (who lives within the residential boundaries of Princess Anne High School), and a guidance counselor, came to Hill's office in January asking to be enrolled at Princess Anne.

If such actions are reduced to "prices paid," the act of transferring from one school to another seems to be reduced to sheer expediency.

"In this case of Mr. Nimmo," stated Hill, "consideration of whether he would enter Princess Anne High School was based solely on School Board policy and procedure."

"One, he had to have legal guardianship, and two, he had to have permission from Pupil Personnel." Obviously, the judgment of a student's parent or guardian becomes important at this point in such a transfer, and the ethical nature of the proceedings depends greatly on the discretion of the adult who is legally responsible for a transferring student.

In Nimmo's case, his father was the adult responsible for him prior to his transfer from Bayside to Princess Anne. Nimmo's father's actions warrant scrutiny based on his past public behavior.

On Friday, January fifth, during a tight fourth quarter in the Bayside-Kempville basketball game, Nimmo's father charged from the spectators' section of the stands onto the playing surface in irate pursuit of a game official. Mr. Nimmo was escorted away by police.

Following last week's tournament contest between Bayside and Princess Anne, Mr. Nimmo was among a group of spectators who verbally attacked Bayside coach Dollar, necessitating a police escort for Dollar to the locker room and later to the team bus.

It was this same individual who was responsible for Jesse Nimmo at the time of the younger Nimmo's transfer from Bayside to Princess Anne.

Following the initial meeting with Hill, Nimmo's uncle obtained legal guardianship of Nimmo, and the School Board granted permission for the transfer.

Nimmo was subsequently enrolled as a student at Princess Anne High School, and in Hill's words, "As far as I'm concerned, Jesse Nimmo is a student at Princess Anne High School."

In Hodges's case, his mother, who claimed an address within the Princess Anne residential boundaries, presented a letter to Hill in January, giving her address as Terrell's.

Upon verification of this shift in residence, Hodges was also admitted as a student at Princess Anne, becoming eligible to compete in athletics, and he did so at the end of January, quickly right or wrong should not take a back seat to practical concerns.

"Says Hill, 'There's a fine line, I suppose, with ethics. We don't determine the ethics when the Virginia High School League Rules are involved.'"

It seems to be exactly this disregard

"There's a fine line, I suppose, with ethics. We don't determine the ethics when the Virginia High School Leagues are involved."

for the ethics of the situation that has resulted in the messy case of Nimmo and Hodges.

Not only is this case messy, but it is also dangerous. If such precedents are set, the disciplinary powers of a coach become severely limited.

Coaches have many concerns; two of the more important ones are winning and exercising control over the team. The latter requires some measure of discipline.

If a coach can rest assured with the fact that a player who is threatened with dismissal has a choice to either change his behavior or forfeit the right to compete, that coach has some amount of leverage in dealing with his players. The worst that can happen, with an undisciplined player, is the loss of that player's talents.

be likely to do something about himself. However, when a player is given a third option, that of moving to another school, the coach loses a vast amount of leverage, and players may be less likely to respond to pressure from the coach.

Moreover, the coach's chances of winning could be adversely affected by exercising disciplinary pressure, because a ballplayer, encouraged by the opportunity to merely switch schools, could end up stinging his former coach in an opponent's uniform.

It seems that Dollar took a firm position in dealing with his ballplayers, and he has suffered because of it.

"You've got no basis for judging someone's past," says Hill. "If anyone prejudices a student because of his behavior in another school, it's unfair to the student."

"If you came in and you were a bona fide student, and I said you couldn't do this or that, then I'd be violating your rights."

Again, this puts us into a hazy area, for when rights come into the picture, everybody's rights must be considered. What about the right of a coach to exercise discipline? What about the rights of individual athletes who do choose to conform their behavior to expected standards? What about the rights of a public which expects standards of fairness and honor to be upheld in the administration of the education and athletics of its youngsters?

"You have to follow the rules, and when you don't, you're wrong. Not only are you wrong, you stand to be corrected," says Hill.

There are rules other than legal ones - moral rules, and wrongs other than technical ones - ethical wrongs, and when such wrongs are committed, they do indeed stand to be corrected.

The case of these two athletes is clearly not one of the mere transfer of two students within the Virginia Beach School system. The circumstances surrounding this situation are tinged with elements of revenge, abuse of rules, and physical and verbal intimidation.

At no level should such influences be tolerated, and they should certainly be kept from affecting amateur athletics and the high school educational process.

Dollar resigns head basketball post at Bayside

Bayside's head basketball coach, Johnny Dollar, resigned his position Thursday following the conclusion of the Marlins' current campaign.

Dollar, who will stay on as an assistant baseball coach at Bayside this spring, spoke of the reasons for his resignation in an interview last weekend.

"I've been disillusioned by high school basketball. I'd been coaching at the junior high level for seven years, and I came up to high school basketball thinking the kids would be dedicated and trying to make something of themselves in basketball for college.

"I found out some of the 'super' athletes wanted things given to them, not just with basketball, but in school and classes. I didn't have any problems at the end of the year. Every kid I have on the team right now gives 100 percent all the time.

"Maybe I'm old fashioned, but I love discipline. I expect a kid to give me 100 percent all the time, and I found I couldn't get that from all the athletes I had. Some of the kids wouldn't do their work in school, and they had terrible attitudes on the floor and in games.

"It's just not fun anymore. I've been coaching for twelve years, and the first ten were enjoyable. To me, coaching wasn't work, it was fun. But when you've got kids who get a bad attitude and you have discipline problems, it becomes work."

Dollar made it clear that these references did not apply to the present members of Bayside's basketball team.

"These sophomores and juniors who are coming back could be an asset to any team, ability-wise and attitude-wise. They work hard in school and out of school."

Falcons, Patriots grab tournament crowns; coaches pick Girls All-District team

By MIKE D'ORSO

Cox quieted any doubters when they dumped Princess Anne in last weekend's Beach District Basketball Tournament's final game.

The Falcons' 52-47 victory was their third over the Cavaliers this season, and although both teams had Regional spots before the game began, the win was far from meaningless for Cox, for it gave the Falcons a chance to play at the Beach this week, as well as the pleasure of relishing two team trophies - one for the regular season championship and one for the tournament title.

"They're a great team," said Cox senior John Steele in reference to the runner-up Cavaliers. "We felt like we hadn't proved anything. If we had lost tonight, those first two wins wouldn't have meant anything."

As it is, the Falcons, loosening up after a tight first half, capped their triumphant Beach District 'season with a tournament championship.

"It's like a dream come true," said Steele. "Always waited for the senior year for this to happen."

Steele and his Cox teammates meet Menchville of the Peninsula District in this week's Eastern Regional Tournament, while Princess Anne must take on last year's state champions, Ferguson, in Newport News.

While Cox was celebrating their victory, First Colonial's girls team was enjoying the fruits of a rubber-match triumph over regular-season champ Kellam in the tournament finals.

Both teams had split during the regular season, so Friday night's outcome was in doubt in some minds. There was no doubt, however, about the final verdict as the Lady Patriots drummed the Knights 52-34.

As they have all season, Jimi Gatlin (24 points) and Lolo Leaks (14 points) led First Colonial's convincing win.

Of her team's immediate prospects, Patriot coach Janet Rowlands observed, "The girls have a better mental attitude this year than they did last year. Last year, they kind of let it get to their heads and took Phoebus too lightly."

First Colonial was knocked out of the Eastern Regionals by Phoebus in the semifinal round of last year's tournament.

Both Kellam and First Colonial will carry the Beach District banner into this week's Eastern Regional Tournament against Peninsula District foes.

"Two" good

As she has done all year, Jimi Gatlin scores for First Colonial in the Patriots' District tournament championship against Kellam. Gatlin totaled 24 points as the Patriots rolled to a 52-34 victory over the regular season champion Knights. Both teams will play in this week's Eastern Regional tournament.

Rebound!

Cox's Rich Davidson (52) and Kempville's Gary Freeman (42) strain for rebound during the Falcons' victory over the Chiefs in their semifinal game of last week's District tournament. Cox went on to the tournament championship.

We're number one . . .

Cox's Falcons surround their spoils of victory following their 52-47 win over Princess Anne in the final game of the Beach District tournament. With that victory came the tournament trophy to go along with their regular season championship trophy.

So are we!

Jimi Gatlin and Lolo Leaks, both first team All-District selections, show off First Colonial's tournament championship trophy.

After the spoke of this weekend's tournament had cleared, the coaches of the District girls teams voted on their choices for this season's Beach All-District team.

Two players were unanimous selections, and fittingly, these two, Jimi Gatlin and Risa Huff, were each the leaders of the two teams which will represent the Beach in the Eastern Regional Tournament.

No final second team spot was named since four players tied for that spot.

Here is the 1978-1979 Virginia Beach Girls All-District Team, as chosen by the District coaches.
